CANTON EXPRESS COLLISION

TRAGIC MISHAP AT SHEKPAI

MOTOR LORRY HIT AT CROSSING

The Canton-Kowloon express was involved in a serious accident early this morning, crashing into a motor-lorry at a level crossing, four Chinese being killed and six seriously injured.

The mishap occurred near Shek-pai Village and the motor-lorry was hurled off the line and wrecked beyond repair, according to preliminary reports of the tragic affair.

The morning express from Canton was the locomotive involved. It had just passed the station for Shek-pai, near the new Canton Government aerodrome when the lorry, carrying vegetables to market suddenly appeared in its track.

TERRIFIC CRASH.
A terrific crash followed. Four aboard the lorry were killed outright and passengers by the train related a grim story of the cries of the injured, most of whom were in a serious condition as the result of severe injuries.

The train pulled up for about half an hour to render what assistance the passengers and crew of the train could give to the injured, who were immediately rushed to hospitals in Canton.

EXPRESS DELAYED.

Shek-pai is only half an hour's trip from Canton and it marks the first station from the main station at the Canton terminus.

As a result of the accident the express arrived at about 11.45 a.m. instead of 11.10. The locomotive bore few marks of the crash.

FIGHTING NEAR TUNGCHOW

FRESH CHINESE TROOPS MOVING UP

REMARKABLE EXODUS SCENES

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, May 24, 11.36 a.m.)

PEKING, MAY 24.

POSITIVE CONFIRMATION OF A LOCAL TRUCE, VERBAL OR WRITTEN, IS STILL LACKING, AND THERE IS A FEAR OF BREAKDOWN IN THE NEGOTIATIONS.

Fighting occurred to the east of Tungchow last night, and although the casualties are officially reported to have been merely ten killed and a number wounded, fresh Chinese troops are arriving at the scene of the action and further fighting is expected.

It is thought possible that word of the supposed truce has not reached the forces there and later news is being awaited with anxiety.

ANOTHER PLANE VISITATION

Earlier it had been reported that hostilities had ceased, with the result that tension on the Peking area greatly relaxed.

Following yesterday morning's aerial display, a vast exodus began, the trains being crammed to the doors. Bands of students forced their way through the windows of the carriages.

AMAZING SCENES.

Corridors, the ends of the platforms, even the steps, the buffers and the roofs of the carriages were occupied by refugees.

Queer cavalcades were seen passing through the streets as whole families made their way through the crowds to the station, taking their entire belongings.

T. V. SOONG'S COMMENT ON TRUCE REPORT

Interviewed by the New York Times, Mr. T. V. Soong declared that the situation arising from the Sino-Japanese hostilities was a world problem.

In reference to the truce report, Mr. Soong declared: "I can see no Chinese Government that pretends to any authority willing to sign any agreement giving up Manchuria or Jehol."—Reuter.

The populace as a whole remained remarkably calm considering the fact that the Japanese forces are virtually knocking at the gates of the former capital. Business continued pretty much as usual, even during the visitation of the Japanese planes.

While great bombers were roaring low over the roofs, for instance, street pedlars continued to cry noodles and other delicacies as they have done for centuries.

BUSINESS CALM.

Planes again visited Peking this morning, but they were flying very high. The doubts regarding the truce are growing.—Our Own Correspondent.

WATCHING TROOP MOVEMENTS.

Peking, May 24.
Shortly after ten o'clock this morning a flight of nine Japanese scouting planes flashed across Peking at a terrific speed, followed by the more leisurely flight of a single bomber.

Apparently, the visitation was made for demonstration purposes, as well as for the purpose of watching the Chinese troop movements.—Reuter.

DIFFICULTY IN NEGOTIATIONS

Peking, May 23.

It is reliably reported that that truce negotiations is not proceeding smoothly and a complete breaking down is possible. The Chinese military authorities are now preparing for eventualities.

It is learned that the nearness of the Japanese troops to Peiping has caused them to make demands which the Northern leaders cannot stomach. If the agreement is not reached, desperate fighting is likely to break out in the vicinity of Peiping.

DEFENCE PREPARATIONS.

At present defence preparations outside Peiping City are being rapidly made.

Peiping is being swarmed with troops and a back-to-the-wall attitude prevails.

The stiffening of the Japanese attitude is causing anxiety that serious developments may occur any moment. The Peiping Authorities yesterday completed a rapid piece of railway construction joining the Peiping-Hankow Railway and the Peiping-Hankow Railway stations, which should prove to be useful if the Japanese bomb the Fengtai junction.—Reuter.

BRITISH AID SOUGHT.

London, May 23.
The British Minister in Peking, Sir Miles Lampson, has been approached by many leaders in China with a view to his mediation between the Japanese and Chinese. No definite request has been made by the Nanking Government but several prominent Chinese have expressed the hope that the British Minister would in this way assist in obtaining a solution of the present situation.—British Wireless.

Coal Famine Threatens Shanghai

ACUTE SITUATION REVEALED

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received May 24, 10.50 a.m.)

The China Press asserts that the suspension of the production by the Kaian Mining Administration owing to the events in North China threatens Shanghai with a coal famine.

The paper points out that at present there is only one month's supply of coal in Shanghai where as normally there is at least two to three months supply.

The China Press quotes certain reports stating that the miners have fled in face of the Japanese advance causing both production and shipments to be suspended.

The paper, fearing that a shortage of coal may shake the wheels of industry with consequent losses to Chinese business houses, has appealed to the Chinese owners to do their utmost to keep the coal coming in to Shanghai from Honan and Shantung.—Reuter.

Senate Enquiry into Working Of J. P. Morgan Co.

IMMENSE PUBLIC INTEREST

NO INCOME TAX PAYMENTS

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received May 24, 10.50 a.m.)

Washington, May 22.
The biggest crowd in the history of Senatorial investigations filled to overflowing the huge committee room of the Senate Office building to-day when Mr. J. P. Morgan appeared before the Senate Stock Market Investigation Committee which is inquiring into the working of the famous J. P. Morgan Company.

Mr. Morgan was legally represented by Mr. John W. Davis, who was once Ambassador at the Court of St. James.

Special corps of investigators have been forming for months among the files of the Morgan Company which, being a private concern, has never had to submit to the usual Governmental bank examinations or to issue a public balance sheet.

MR. MORGAN'S TESTIMONY.

In the course of his testimony, Mr. Morgan revealed that the firm has deposits totalling over $250,000,000 and total assets of $424,000,000.

During his examination, Mr. Morgan read a prepared statement, in which he said that the private banker was a national asset, not a national danger.

In answer to the criticism that the private banker was too powerful, Mr. Morgan pointed out the power which he had, had come from the confidence of the people in his character and credit and not from his possession of large means.

ERRORS OF JUDGMENT.

The banker confessed that he had made mistakes, but these were errors of judgment and not of principle. He also defended the presence of private bankers on Boards of Directors.

He had always been averse to banking directorships for his partners, he said, but he had reluctantly consented to them accepting such positions because in his belief, it was one of the duties of a private banker to be useful in the general affairs of the community.

PAID NO INCOME TAX.

Later Mr. Morgan told the committee that he paid no income tax during the years 1930, 1931 and 1932, and explained that during that period he had had no net taxable income.

Counsel for the Senate Committee disclosed that 167 directorships were held by members of the firm.

The committee decided to ask for the partnership agreement under which the firm operates, for the names of individuals who have deposits over $100,000, the names of bankers to whom loans have been made and a list of "favoured customers" who are offered securities below the market price.

BANKER'S ADMISSION.

Mr. Morgan answered in the affirmative to a question as to whether any loans were overdue, not paid or not well secured by collateral.

Mr. Morgan's office manager said the Company's partners paid no income tax in 1931 and 1932 and only $48,000 in 1930.

As a result of a transaction on January 1 and 2, 1931, the firm claimed there was a loss of $21,000,000 and the U. S. Department of Internal Revenue made no objection to this return. Government experts are at present examining the 1932 returns.—Reuter.

C.E.R. DISPUTE

FURTHER MOSCOW ACCUSATION

PLANNED ACT OF PROVOCATION

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received May 24, 10.50 a.m.)

Moscow, May 24.
A decision to suspend all traffic between the Chinese Eastern Railway and the Ussuri Railway at the end of May was recently made at a conference in the Japanese Embassy at Chenchun.

The reasons for this are alleged in Moscow to be to further damage the Chinese Eastern Railway and the Soviet by interrupting communications with Vladivostok and diverting traffic from the C.E.R. to Dairen and the South Manchurian Railway.

This will have the effect of disorganising the C.E.R. and strengthening the Japanese position in any negotiations for the purchase of the railway, particularly in connection with the purchase price.

STRONG COMMENT.

Izvestia, commenting on the development, says that notwithstanding Japanese-Soviet negotiations over the railway's purchase, aggressive elements in Manchuria are continuing their provocative activities in an effort to present a peaceful regulation of the misunderstandings which have arisen.

"If Tokyo is a party to this (which we hate to believe) it explains the fact that no reply has been received to the Soviet proposal to sell the C.E.R."—Reuter.

NEW HITCH AT GENEVA

FRANCE PRESENTS A PROBLEM

GERMAN RETORT

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received May 24, 10.55 a.m.)

Geneva, May 23.
A fresh crisis has arisen in the Disarmament Conference as the result of French opposition to important provisions of the draft convention.

France is dubious about the strength the security promise conveyed in Mr. Davis's speech and further requires a definite decision on the standardisation of Continental armies before committing herself.

M. Paul-Boncour, the French Foreign Minister, in the course of discussion upon Article Twenty-two of the British draft convention, relating to the destruction of large tanks and land-guns, declared that the French Government could not agree to a reduction while their claims in regard to security and the control and standardisation of armies remained unfulfilled.

GERMANY'S REPORT.

Herr Nudolny, the German delegate, is reported to have retorted that, in that event, Germany would be compelled to withdraw.

AMERICA UNABLE TO AGREE

(By Telegraph. Copyright. Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received May 24, 10.55 a.m.)

Washington, May 14.
Officials are of the opinion that it is hardly possible for America to agree to the French attitude on disarmament, as expounded by M. Paul-Boncour yesterday, when he pronounced against the destruction of "offensive" weapons, which he said should be preserved under the League of Nations.—Reuter.

acquiescence in the British Plan.

It is believed that Sir John Simon is seeking to get into touch with the French to try and reach an understanding.

FOUR-POWER PACT.

Meanwhile Poland and the Little Entente Powers are very alarmed by the reports of the imminence of the signature of the Four-Power Pact.

The Polish representatives at Geneva and Paris have had long interviews with the French authorities, and the Polish Foreign Minister engaged in a long talk with the French Ambassador in Warsaw.

It is understood that the representatives of the Little Entente have also made pressing representations in Paris.

CONSIDERABLE TENSION.

There is considerable tension, it is reported, between France on the one hand and Poland and the Little Entente Powers on the other.

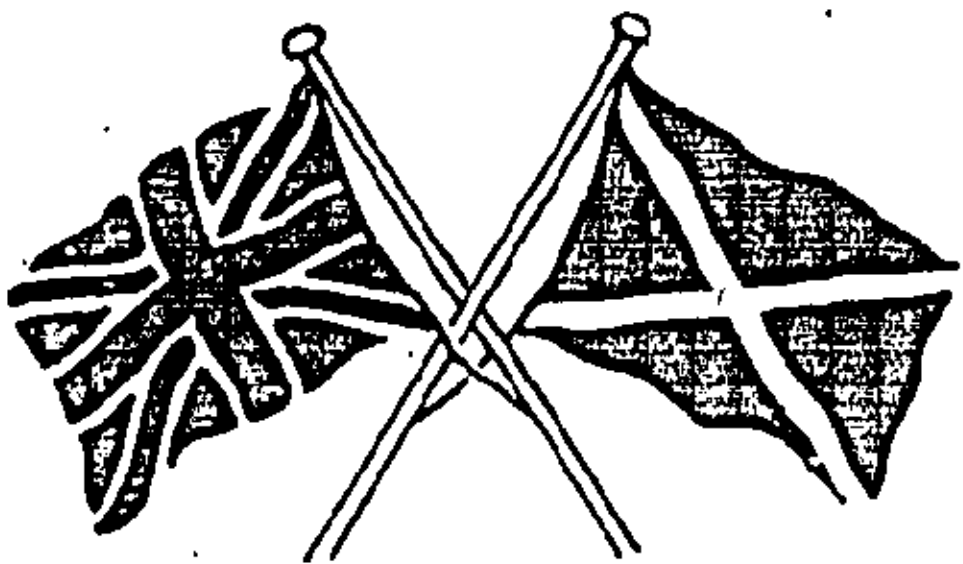

The Four-Power Pact, if concluded, will probably be followed by a new orientation of policy by the Central European States.—Reuter.

GERMANY AND U.S.A.

Berlin, May 23.
Mr. Norman Davis's Geneva statement is regarded as a step forward in the field of disarmament by German official quarters, which stress the American emphasis on the obligation of highly-armed nations to disarm, thus removing the inequality imposed on the disarmed countries.

This is taken as a recognition of Germany's demand for equal rights within the limits of a general armaments reduction to that fixed by the Versailles Treaty.

It is urged that it is now up to France to give tangible proof that she also really wants disarmament.—Continued on Page 2

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

GOOD-BYE TO BULGES

Double Leg Swing Will Cut Down Waistline

Lateral leg-raising . . . to reduce waist and thighs.

By Jac Auer

Do you crave a pinched-in waistline, one of the slender waists that show to advantage in this year's clothes?

To-day's exercise works directly for that. It also does its bit toward further reducing your thighs. It consists of raising both your legs, knees tight together, toes pointing downward, and swinging your legs in as near an arc as you can manage, without letting them touch the floor.

Balance yourself on one side, one arm flat on the floor, hand supporting your head. Place your other hand in front of you on the floor, where it gives you the greatest brace.

Now lift both legs together, toes pointed, and try to swing them up, around and to the back. The first day you may scarcely be able to get them off the floor without tipping over. Keep at it. This exercise calls for determination. Persevere each day until you actually can manipulate the double leg swing in as high an arc as shown in the picture.

After trying the swing twice on your right side, roll over, brace yourself on your left side and swing in reverse direction.

This exercise calls into play all the back muscles through your waistline and all your thigh muscles. It gives them a chance to work as they do not usually have the opportunity to work. In so doing, they build up a co-ordination and a poise that makes for grace. And at the same time, when you get all your muscles working correctly, fat will melt away.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

New Hats Call for New Coiffures.

By Alice Hart

Topknot hats have developed one-sided coiffures that are very new and attractive.

It's what you do with your back hair that counts, these days.

One new style of hairdressing parts the hair on the right side, has a soft, wide wave over both ears and then the back hair is swirled over to the left side where it ends in little flat curls. You wear one of the new coiffure combs slanting across the back of your head, to hold the swirl. A glittering one is grand for evening.

For the woman who doesn't curl her hair, there is a one-sided effect that is obtained by merely swirling all the right back hair over to the left side. It is similar to the first coiffure except that the

CLEAN GARMENTS BEFORE STORING.

Be sure to have your furs and heavy winter coats thoroughly cleaned before you store them away for the summer. Moths are not nearly so liable to get into clean clothes as soiled ones. If you don't have a cedar chest or closet, remember that ordinary newspapers are the next best thing. Wrap each garment separately in a newspaper and then put them all in airtight box. Newspapers are discouraging to moths.

The Feminine Tuxedo

ends merely are smoothed in to give the entire head a very neat, round appearance, with no loose ends whatsoever. Very soft waves over the ears are smoothed in place too, with no curled ends.

For all of these new coiffures hair must be a trifle longer than the regulation bob. Two inches in the back can be taken up by curls, easily. And even the slightest wave pulls up your hair. So don't have it cut too short. No shorn look is good this year.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Let's Banish Some Superstitions About Baby's Care!

By Olive Roberts Barton

What do you do with a baby's fingernails? This question is not so foolish, for only a short time ago I heard an old woman protest when a young mother got out the scissors. "Oh, don't! If you cut them, you'll make him a thief. You never cut them the first time."

"Then how do you get them off? He's scratching me all to pieces, and himself too."

"Why just take his finger in your mouth and nip off the sharp edges with your teeth."

Did you ever?

Cut a baby's nails as soon as they need it—round. Watch the scissors. One of the most tedious jobs I know of is this ceremony of shaping up the baby's hands. Keep his nails short, but not too short. Clean them with a bit of cotton twisted around a toothpick. Be careful not to dig down under the nail.

Washing Baby's Hair

When a baby is born he may or may not have hair. The custom has been for ages to lather and wash his scalp every day. Now, unless you feel that it actually needs it, every day is not considered necessary. Every other day is enough.

If his scalp is dry and gets little crusts on it, sometimes brownish in color, don't try to dig it off, or fine-comb it off. Put on a little olive oil and let it remain for a day. Work it gradually off with a soft cloth at next bath time. If the baby's hair is dry and hay-like use some good scalp oil frequently that your doctor may advise. Olive oil or a little white vaseline are all right.

As the baby gets older, twice a week is often enough, unless he makes mudpies and mistakes his pate for a pie pan, or turns his plate of mashed potatoes upside down on his head. Then clean his head of course. But what is the use of washing all the natural oil out of his hair each day?

Over 4, Then Once a Week

When he is still older, say four years old, once a week is a good schedule. In hot weather oftener, perhaps. Children, of course, have different types of hair. Some can stand more washing than others. But if there is any sign of dryness I would try less frequent washing and a little aid in the way of oil. The doctor, that mine of information, may be able to suggest some treatment if the hair stays too dry and too thin.

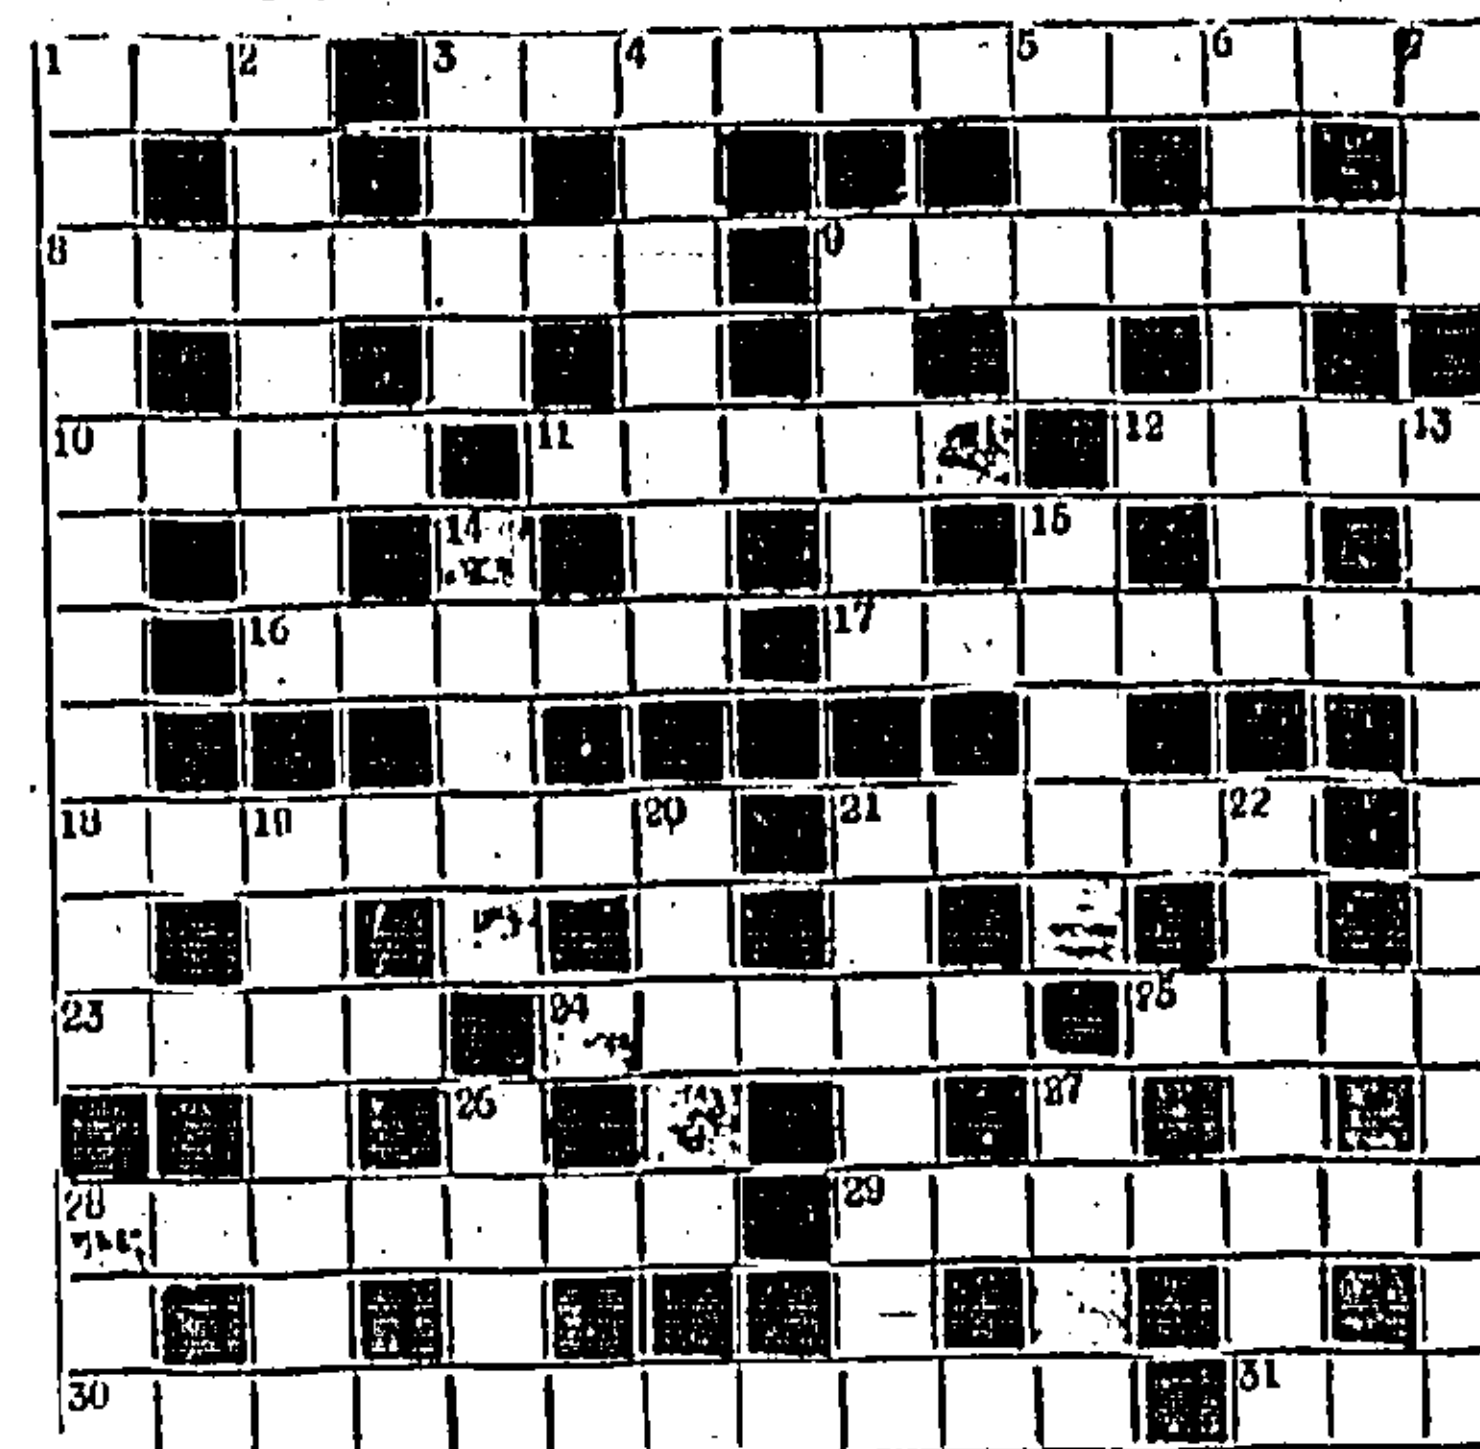

Never rub the scalp too hard. In a new baby not at all. A gentle massaging with the tips of the fingers may be used on the older child to help circulation and loosen the scalp.

Teeth Require Care

And now about the teeth. We are now told to use a small soft tooth brush on the baby's mouth after he has ten teeth. Use it gently up and down. Never irritate the gums. Night and morning are good times. After each meal is still better.

Don't get discouraged if teeth decay in spite of cleaning. They would go faster without it. When first teeth decay have them filled. Watch the "six-year" molars sharply. Get them filled at once if they show signs of going. They don't come in again. The shape of the mouth depends on them.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Do you know Barry Townsend?" asked Mona slowly. She came into the cabin and, closing the door, leaned against it. This other girl, this slip of a youngster really, was clasping Barry's picture to her heart as though she loved him.

She seemed scarcely old enough to love anyone. Yet Mona realized she was not too young. Latin races, maturing early, had produced this girl who was crowning over the photograph.

"Pardon, Madame?" said Celeste, startled. "Do I know Barry?" A man could have loved this girl, Mona thought, for just that delightful, lingering drawl. But there were other reasons as well. Celeste was beautiful. She had wound her hair once more with the black and white silk handkerchief. Lottie's simple white silk frock suited her to perfection. "You know my Barry, Madame?" the girl asked again, wondering. "But naturally! Or you would not have had his picture? Or maybe—he was a—"

"Movie star?" repeated Mona. Relief came over her with a joyous glow. "Then you do not know him? You do not know who he is?"

"I know him," responded the girl assuredly. She set the leather case back again on top of the wardrobe trunk whence she had removed it.

"Where did you see him?" asked Lottie.

"Here," added Mona. "Sit down and don't be afraid. We would like to know where it was you saw Barry Townsend."

The girl hesitated. "I do him no wrong?" she asked carefully. "You are not—"

Celeste's eyes travelled to the ring on Mona's finger.

"His wife?" Mona laughed a little harshly. "No. I am—I am his aunt! Don't be afraid. I have come here in search of Barry and if you can help me find him then you are befriending him. It may be in my power to bring him much wealth."

Celeste sat down slowly. "Yes,"

she said at last, "I will tell you. Why not? Oh, it is nothing! I fell in love with him. Maybe you think I am young?" She drew herself up proudly. "I am sixteen! I met Barry when he went to Barbuda. Hunting. I was there with my father. Barry was there in his what-you-call? Motor sledge. Ah yes! He and another gentleman. A dark man. They came to Barbuda—"

"Barbuda?"

"Another island." There was a little note in the girl's voice. "Barbuda, where gentlemen go to hunt. Oh, a darling island. Planted—is that correct?—with game. A beautiful place. The ancients who owned it used to breed fine slaves there. Only the loveliest of them remained. The others were sold. For generations the slaves from Barbuda excelled in beauty. They brought high prices."

"Not now!" gasped Mona.

"Of course not now!" responded the girl indifferently. She smiled.

"It was there I met Barry."

The girl twisted and looked at her a moment. She smiled winningly. "No."

"Ah," Mona breathed. "Barry did not make love to me. But I love him. I tried to follow him." She shrugged. "So Maria, my maid, was sent to take me to Barbado. Here I learn English."

"You speak it very well."

"I am learning the English way," the girl said reprovingly.

There was a hush and cry outside and then a shout. Lottie stepped to the door and stood against it.

"It's Maria and a couple of officers. They want Celeste."

"Her parents are on board, aren't they?" asked Mona. "Certainly they are! They came back from the club in the tender when I came. They did not expect the daughter. I recall that they planned to visit her at her school after lunch. Lottie, let her go. They are looking for her."

"But these clothes!" Celeste began wistfully.

AMERICA WELCOMES BEER; BERNARD SHAW IN U.S.

Typical of Broadway's salute to "three-point-two" was this bit of joyous elbow-bending in a New York night club. The stroke of 12 uncapped the golden flow.

Except in California, the former Miss May Scribbs, above, is the new Mrs. Buster Keaton, recently married in Mexico to the solemn-faced screen comic. His divorce from Natalie Talmadge will not be final in California until August.

Crowds who waited in a drizzling rain until one minute after midnight to see a complimentary case of beer delivered to the White House were rewarded as shown here when the brewer's big wagon halted to allow a Marine to pass out free bottles to the celebrants.

Here's George Bernard Shaw in New York—all of all places! And granting interviews—of all things! With characteristic bluntness, the Irish dramatist had firmly forewarned both "cordials" when he embarked on his world cruise. But ship news reporters enticed him on deck when he touched at Manhattan for one lecture.

Evidently there's one cameraman who thinks we've looked up to George Bernard Shaw long enough. And this is his view of the Irish playwright and satirist who is always expounding his views of others. The photographer took this angle as Shaw strolled on deck of the Empress of Britain which bore him home from New York after the speech in which he urged Americans to scrap the Constitution, wipe off war debts and provide the leadership to save civilization from ruin.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

When is it safe to make a penalty double? I don't believe it pays to do so unless you have more than one way of defeating the contract.

For example, if the declarer bids for six odd and it looks as though you have two trump tricks, I don't believe that makes a safe double. You should have another possible trick in your hand.

In other words, don't double a contract unless you feel that you can set the declarer two tricks—then if you do lose one of the tricks you are counting on, you are sure to set the contract. There is no such thing as a free double.

However, don't become discouraged if the declarer occasionally makes a contract which you have doubled, because if you always set the declarer when you double, you are not doubling frequently enough. Take for instance the following hand—West cannot be severely criticised for doubling the contract of six hearts, yet Mrs. H. D. Stahl, the former national women's champion, of Pittsburgh, Pa., made six hearts doubled.

The Bidding

Mrs. Stahl in the South opened with one heart. North put in a jump overcall of three clubs which is not only a game-demand bid,

♠ K-6-3
♥ A
♦ A-Q-7-3
♣ A-K-8-4-2
♠ 10-8-2
♥ J-9-8-4-2
♦ K-8-4
♣ 10-7
♠ A-Q-J
♥ K-Q-10-6-5-3
♦ J-6
♣ 6-5					25

but is also a mild slam invitation. Mrs. Stahl replied with three hearts.

North felt that the only thing that her partner could have to justify a re-bid in hearts was the ace of spades and a strong five or six-card heart suit. North's next bid, therefore, was six hearts, which West doubled.

The Play

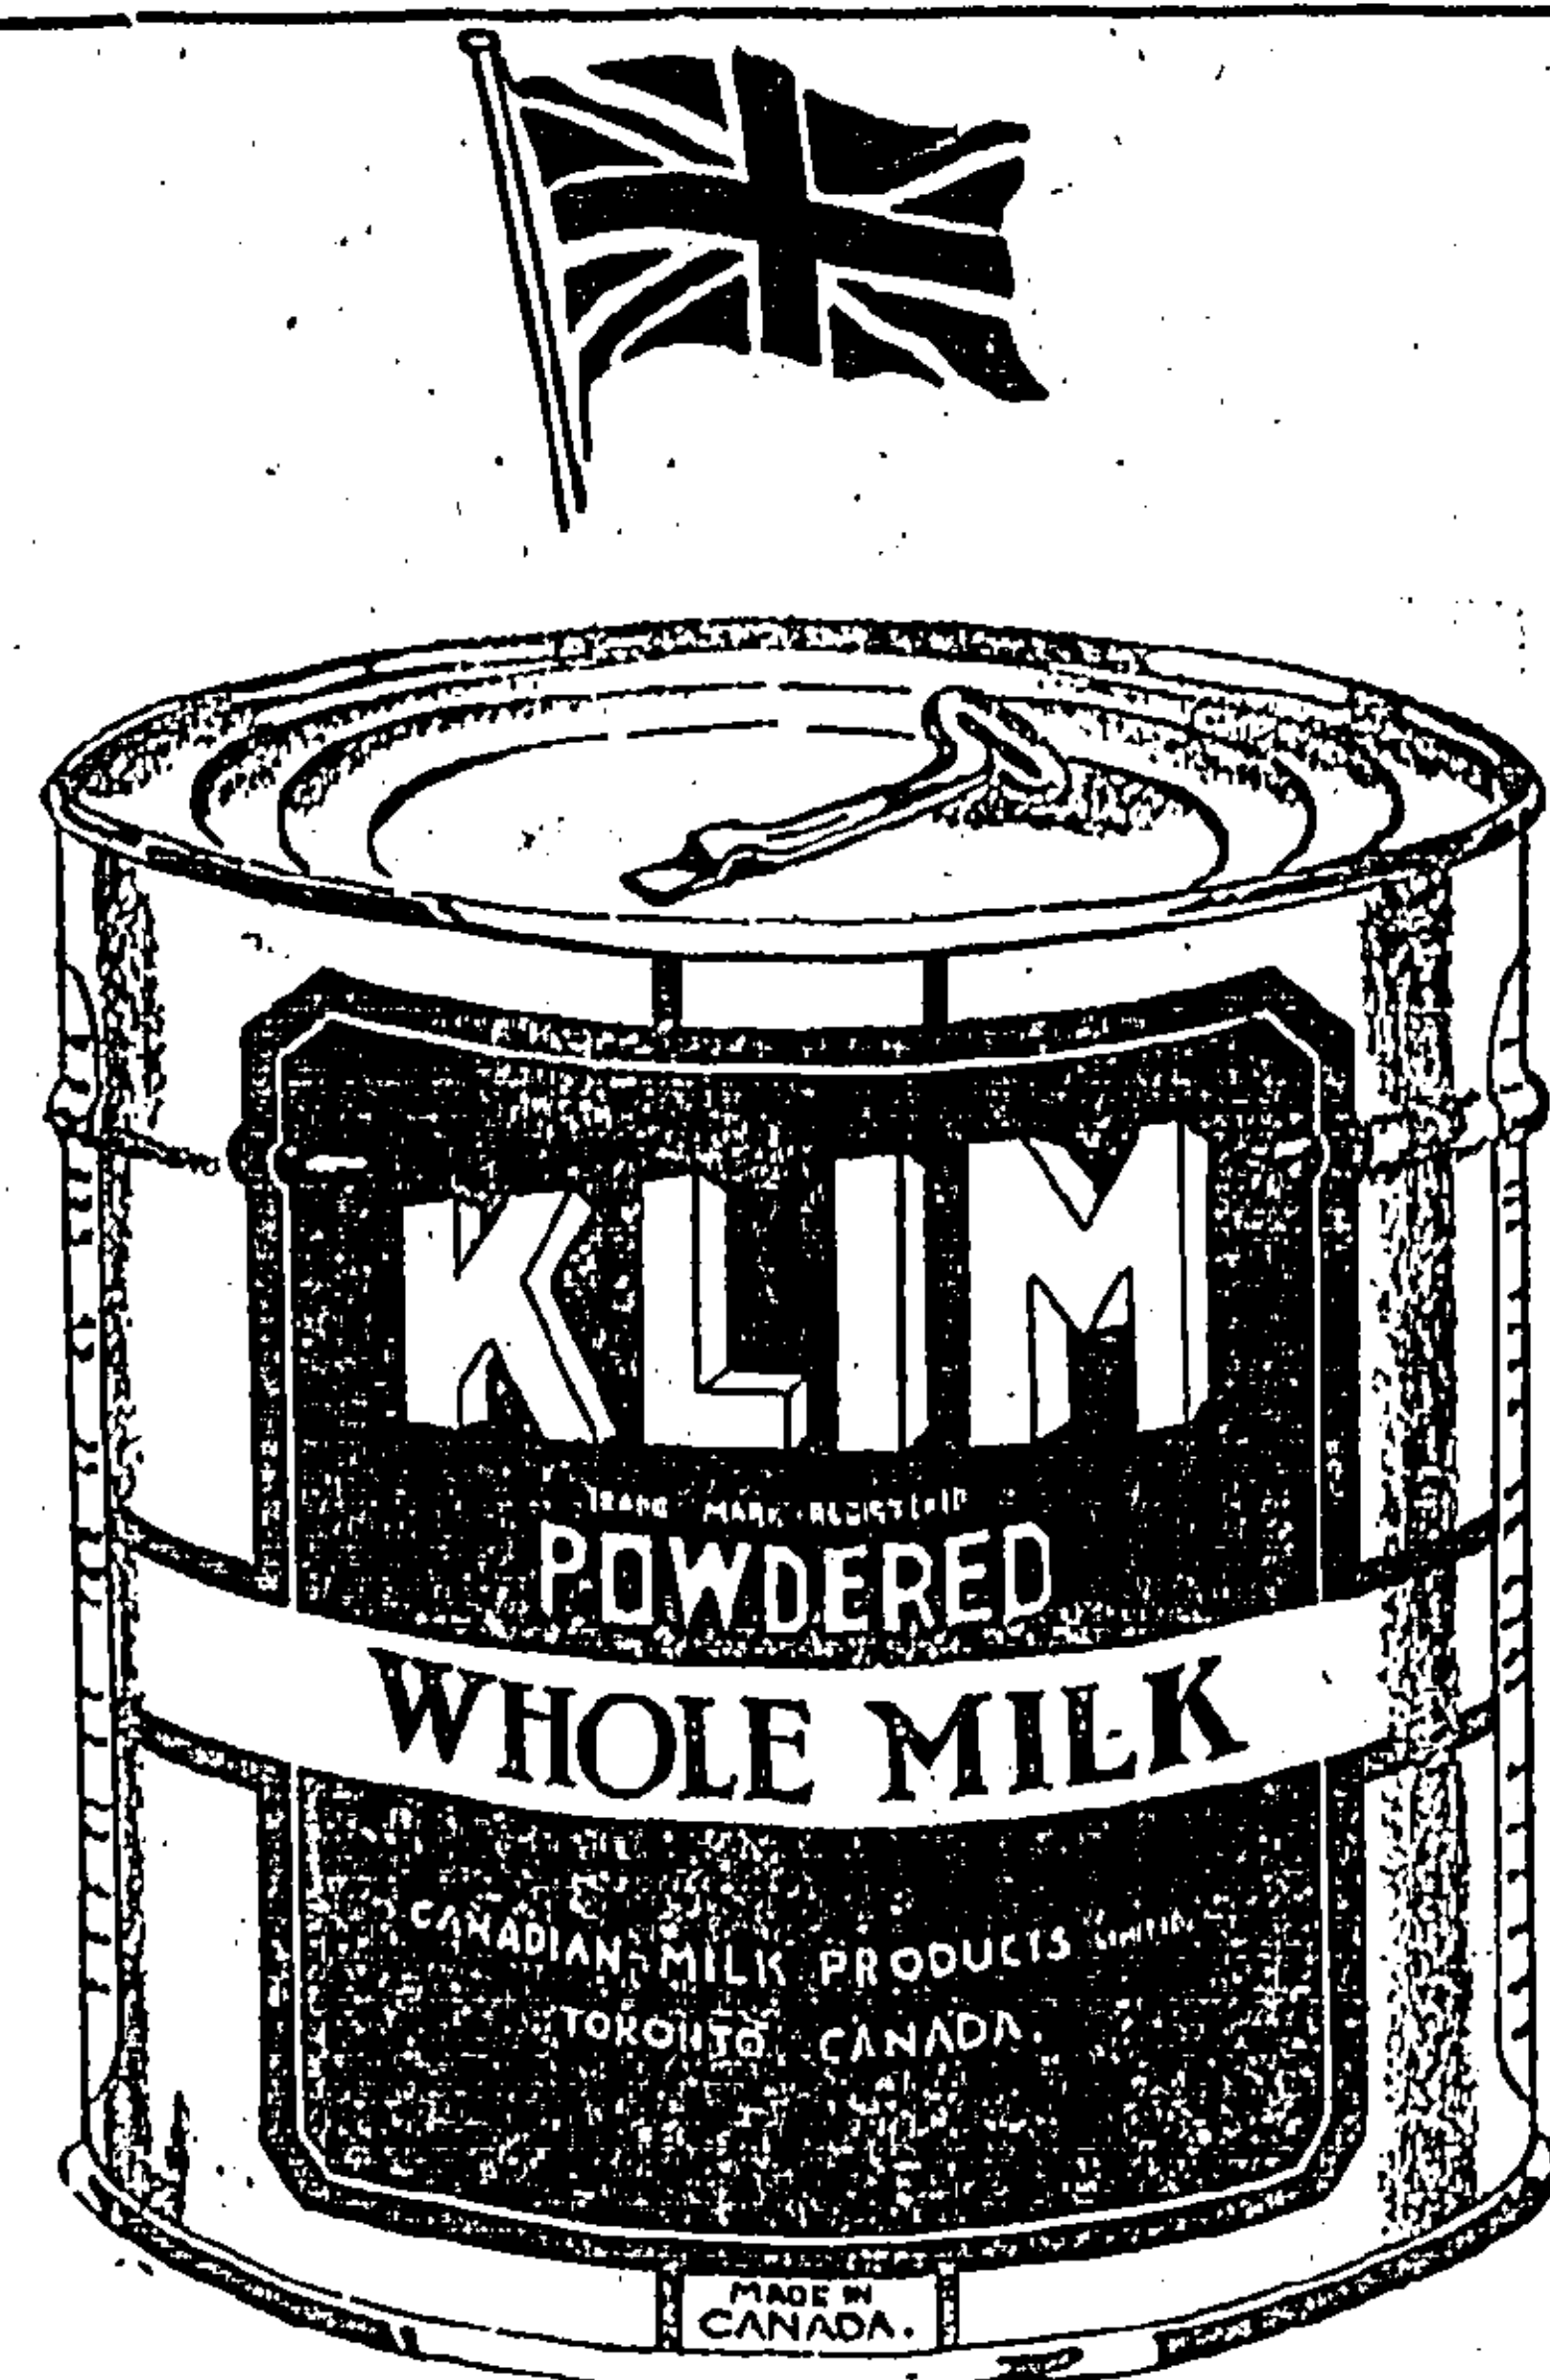

West's opening lead was the ten of clubs, which was won in dummy with the ace. The ace of hearts was played and then a small spade, which the declarer won with the jack.

The king of hearts was then cashed, a small club being discarded from dummy, and East showed out, leaving West with the jack, nine and eight of hearts. Mrs. Stahl still had the queen, ten, six and five of hearts, and it looked as though she might have to lose two heart tricks.

However, she next played her jack of diamonds, West covered and the trick was won with dummy's ace. The queen of diamonds was then played and a small diamond led, Mrs. Stahl trumping with the five of hearts.

The six of clubs was played and won in dummy with the king. Dummy's king of spades was cashed and a small spade led—declarer winning with the ace.

Mrs. Stahl then led the six of hearts, which West was forced to win with the eight. West then had to lead into Mrs. Stahl's tenace position, and Mrs. Stahl had successfully made her contract of six odd by applying an end play.

PEKING CALMER AFTER DAYS OF STRESS

Peking, May 23. After this morning's excitement, with Japanese bombers swooping and diving over the city, sometimes racing along less than 200 feet from the ground, Peking is distinctly calmer.

The Japanese brought 500 fresh troops here from Tientsin to-day, ostensibly for the protection of Japanese lives and property in Peking.

Apparently there was some fighting near Tungchow yesterday afternoon, but by night all was quiet.—Our Special Correspondent.

EMPIRE DAY

Unity strengthening in sentiment and a steadily growing sense of fellowship between the diverse nationalities grouped together in the British Commonwealth impart greater reality to the celebration of Empire Day as year succeeds year. Hongkong's special contribution to Empire consciousness—the Trade Fair, which has brought all who owe allegiance and loyal devotion to the Crown into a common effort for the promotion of mutual benefits—is essentially practical in form although, too, it reinforces, in a small way, the moral solidarity which is the Empire's greatest strength. It is peculiarly fitting, therefore, that the Fair should be inaugurated on this day, an occasion for communion with ourselves, a self examination, gathering inspiration and encouragement for the future. And we think we may feel satisfied. Loose talk of the Rise and Fall of the British Empire has frequently been heard from the lips of foreign observers in the last few years but we still go steadily on our way, changing with the times, living by spirit rather than by form. The changes which are taking place, as for instance in India are not steps towards the dissolution of Empire, but towards an increase in the freedom of the parts, securing a permanence of the unity of the whole. As the liberties grow so do the nations and races of the Commonwealth place a greater store by their unity. The world is, in fact, growing to the conviction that it is only by the wide extension of the ideas upon which the Empire is founded that peace will come to the world. And it is the keen realisation of this truth that keeps apparently loosely-knit units together amid all the strain and stresses of the present anything but placid times. It is not merely tradition. Our inheritance is a living thing. This could not have been demonstrated more effectively than it was at Ottawa when the nations of the Commonwealth brought a new spirit to Imperial trade. Nothing very spectacular was accomplished but no-one would question that closer economic ties were welded, that the delegates achieved a wider view of special interests and laid a firm foundation for substantial advances for future conferences. Those of us who have high hopes of a world steadily changing for the better because of its qualities, rather than because it is the seat of eruptions and revolutions, may safely preserve our faith in the vitality of the Empire.

"Biting The Hand That Feeds Them"

Mr. Neville Chamberlain's promise (or threat) contained in his Budget speech has materialised. The Raeburn Committee findings have been accepted and the English Co-Operative Societies are to be further taxed to provide the Exchequer with an additional £750,000 during this year. Already a bitter controversy has raged around the subject, and the Chancellor's insistence will merely serve to kindle the flame of discontent. The imposition, in fact, may well prove the first nail in the coffin of the National Party. Mr. Chamberlain hopes to receive £750,000 from this income tax adjustment. It is a mere pittance. One questions very seriously whether the amount involved is sufficient to override consideration of the strife and bitterness which must result. Politically, and tactically, it is one of the most foolish moves yet made by the National Government. They bite the hand that has fed them. The Co-Operative Societies are not money-making, profit-taking concerns. They are run for the benefit of the members, and any taxation of the profits is direct taxation of the members, which means the working classes. It was these very people who, when an appeal to patriotism was made, put the National Government into power. Apart from its political aspect, there is the question of principle. It is an issue which has always aroused the Tory back-benchers, but as it is also an issue of prime importance affecting the welfare of thousands of workers, antagonism is certain. This, in fact, is indicated by a statement of Co-Operative Union on the subject that "in view of the nature of the Chancellor's statement it is necessary to say at once that any proposal to introduce a money resolution imposing new and specific taxation upon Co-operative Societies would be unjust and inequitable, and could not be accepted as a settlement as suggested by the Chancellor, and must be opposed until defeated, or, if it is adopted, until it is repealed."

America Shows Her True Colours

No more significant illustration of America's attitude to World Peace, since President's Roosevelt's acceptance in principle of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's disarmament proposals, has been given to the world than the announcement made by Mr. Norman Davis yesterday. America has promised, providing she agrees with the verdict of other States, to join them in dealing with belligerent nations who violate their international obligations. This decision may ultimately have far reaching effects on the Far East situation. It means that if the League of Nations decides to adopt pressure to bring about a settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict, then America is bound to join with the League States in their efforts. This is the guarantee the League has always lacked in its deliberations on the measures to be taken in the Far East imbroglio, and it is not unreasonable to anticipate pressure of some description if Japan makes no real attempt to effect a settlement in the near future.

TEN DAYS IN GERMANY 1.—THE ONE-DAY BOYCOTT

By MILTON BRONNER

A new German unity. Jew. A new place in the sun. Jew. Bands, parades, and flying Swastika banners. Rumours. Censored newspapers. More rumours. Jew. The usual German courtesy to a foreign traveller. A growing, though unspoken uneasiness, as to the economic effects of the war on Jews, for though the actual boycott lasted but one day, a steady, relentless drive continues in Germany, which, if successful, will render some 600,000 people without a country.

Such is the Germany of Adolf Hitler, as observed on a swing through four principal cities.

It appeared in large black letters on a yellow placard. It was pasted on the window of a tiny vegetable shop on an obscure street in Frankfurt, where I arrived on April 1, boycott day.

It might almost have been a cruel April Fool joke. But it wasn't, for in that shop a Jewish widow with four children was trying to eke out a living. And just now business was very bad indeed. Two hefty Nazi Brown Shirts saw to that. Armed with revolvers they guarded the door and warned away all would-be customers. Other guards stood at ease along the curb.

This was the first glimpse of the Hitler action which in one stroke turned back the clock more than a hundred years to the time when the Jews of Frankfurt were compelled to live in the Ghetto. They were locked up every night and were forced to wear yellow gabardines, indicative of their race. The Ghetto walls were topped by Napoleon and the Jews began to live outside, contributing greatly to the town's importance as a banking and business centre. The Rothschilds, as well as many families whose descendants played a big part in American banking and business, originally came from Frankfurt.

I wandered about the town. I saw no one arrested, or attacked. No windows were broken. Iron discipline prevailed. The Nazi leaders passed down the word to remember that if windows were broken and property damaged, it would be the German insurance companies, not the Jews, who would have to pay. So the Jewish merchants showed confidence that the Hitlerites could control their followers when they desired. Though the shops were closed, the show windows were left full of expensive goods which would have been excellent plunder for looters.

The one day boycott revealed in Frankfurt, at least, the immense role Jewish business plays in that town. The leading shopping streets were dead. The Jewish owners chose to close their stores rather than be humiliated by the offensive yellow placards which the Nazi guards were ready to place upon any establishment seeking to do business.

It was a great day for the Nazi guards. The streets were filled with the troops, pistols on hip, swaggering through the streets. Others dashed about on motor cycles, on bicycles and in motor lorries.

On Goethe Platz, in the heart of the town, a Nazi band played Nazi airs. As the day wore on the streets became crowded with curious sight-seers who were out to see what would happen to the Jewish shops. Few Jews, however, were to be seen.

The following morning the Sabbath quiet was broken by the booming of a Nazi band which headed a parade of 600 Nazi troopers who goose-stepped through the town. The Swastika flag flew everywhere.

With the boycott day over, the next step was the appearance of placards announcing certain shops as racially pure German. Meanwhile, among the saddest people in Frankfurt, were the hotel keepers. Their lobbies were deserted and their rooms empty. There were no Jewish and few foreign travellers. Business was already in a bad way, and the war on Jews has not helped it any.

TOMORROW: Mr. Bronner tells of his visit to Leipzig, one of the greatest fur markets of the world.

SEEDS OF SACRIFICE

We rather pride ourselves upon our garden, my wife and I. Our house, built in the days when men knew how to build, is trellised with climbing roses, clematis, and green creepers that turn to russet in the mellow autumn.

Round about such a house, a rectangular professional gardener's garden would be sacrilegious. So ours is an old-world garden. Part of it is given over to flowers, and part to vegetables. There is no strict dividing-line between the useful and the beautiful.

In the centre of the smaller lawn we dug, at the beginning of the winter, a great round bed. An inviting-looking bed. Over this bed my wife and I had our first "garden-quarrel." I wanted to use it for flowers, while she held that it was in a part of the garden that was intended for vegetables. I rejoined that it was absurd to have vegetables in the middle of a lawn.

In the end we never came to a decision. The subject rankled, and we preferred not to discuss it further. However, I took steps. For many weeks now, when my wife has not been about, I have gone to look at that neat circle of brown earth. I have prodded the soil with my fingers, and turned it over with my foot. Then, as my wife appeared on the garden path, I have drawn guiltily back.

Yesterday, to my delight, the first green shoot appeared. I hurried into the house, and fetched my wife, much wondering, to the spot. "There, my dear," I said. "Never again shall you say that I am not a good husband. Our quarrel rankled bitterly, and, late one night, I yielded to your wishes by planting the seeds of luscious vegetables on this round bed."

My wife, rather to my disappointment, laughed. It seemed a queer reward for my nobility. "And I, darling," she replied, "one day when you went up to London, planted the round bed with the seeds of beautiful flowers."

The Very Idea!

COME TO THE FAIR

By Eddie "Blondie" Kelly.

WE were the one of the enormous gathering which attended the opening of the Empire Fair at noon today.

Taking with us three reams of scribbling paper, twelve pencils, four fountain pens, a portable typewriter, a good book, and a few sandwiches, we crept out of the office by the back door!

We crossed to the Ferr on the Star Fairy with the rest of the population. How the crowd got there, or how the news leaked out about the Fair we don't know.

Reliable men, with telescopes and spirit-levels, estimate that over 5,000 people visited the Peninsula Hotel.

Speaking of spirit-levels. Pete and us decided to have a drink. Pete has a weakness for German beer.

"I wonder," he remarked to a still small voice, "if anyone'll say anything if I have a bottle here today."

Said one of the speakers after the first 45 minutes: "However, I will not keep you long. There are 15 to 20 other speakers who want to talk to you."

Another speaker proceeded to read cablegrams from various parts of the world.

One, from President Roosevelt, speaks for itself.

"EMPIRE FAIR COMMITTEE, HONGKONG.—Congratulations on opening of Fair. United States joins rest of world in hoping that you will successfully achieve objective of 'BUY BRITISH.' Can we assist with export prohibition? ROOSEVELT."

Mr. J. A. Lyons, the Prime Minister of Australia, sent the following cable: "EMPIRE FAIR COMMITTEE, HONGKONG.—It's a Fair Cow—LYONS."

There were other cables, but we found out that some of the exhibits in the refreshment section were free.

After they kicked us out we wandered down to the poultry section. We were getting on rather well with some of the chickens until our hen arrived on the scene.

We believe there were some wonderful exhibits of cars, and radios, and machinery, and things, but we got jammed in the queue at the Wine and Spirits section.

We gathered, just before we left, that the Fair is quite a success, and that they're going to hold one every year.

Nothing could be fairer than that.

ARTISTIC.

An artist used to be criticised only by an art critic who discussed perspective and grouping to such an extent that he often didn't bother to look at the catalogue and find out if the picture was a landscape or a still piece of cheese and an onion. But since the spread of cross-word puzzles we have all become cultured enough to visit art galleries, and the artist has to face the professional scorn of people like plumbers, butchers and policemen. We know an artist who recently had completed a picture of a man nursing a dog. Needing some colour, he dressed the man in Elizabethan costume, seated him at a table where a meal was laid, and introduced some snow through an open window at the back.

All the artistic people he knew raved over the colouring and the chiaroscuro, and he finally to hold an exhibition.

One day he was passing it when he saw a man and a girl looking at it, and he hovered round to listen to their praises. But the girl said, "Bill, the bloke who painted that didn't know as much about a parlormaid's job as I do. He's got the knives and forks on the wrong sides."

Presently he got into the habit of hanging round the picture to see what people said about it. The next was a doctor, who knew him. "Old man," said the doctor, "I don't like the look of that fellow there. He's got ossified kidneys, softening of the liver, housemaid's knee, and tennis elbow. I wouldn't give him six months. I can tell the symptoms at a glance."

Then an antique dealer sarcastically inquired how a Chippendale chair managed to get—itsself—invited two centuries before Chippendale was born.

Finally we took a friend who is a well-known dog fancier to see it. He looked at the dog and shuddered. He said that whatever breed it was supposed to be, its eyes were too small, its knees were crooked, it evidently had distemper, and ought to be destroyed on the spot.

At that the artist took the thing home. He altered the man into a little blue-eyed girl in a pink frock, and the dog into a woolly lamb, with a background of green fields. Then he called it "Spring." We don't expect he will have any more trouble with it.

"Great guns, man, I thought you meant four in the afternoon!"

COLONY'S EMPIRE FAIR: OPENING SCENES

WONDERFUL DISPLAY AT PENINSULA HOTEL

THE SHOW SPOTS

OVERNIGHT A MAGICIAN'S WAND MIGHT HAVE BEEN WAVED OVER KOWLOON.

From the farthest flung outposts of the Empire, from busy metropolitan factories and from rural pastures, it drew a comprehensive collection of produce and handicraft, and concentrated them in a remarkable manifestation of the Empire's industrial interests.

Never before has Hongkong such an ambitious commercial pageant as the Empire Fair which His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, officially opened at the Peninsula Hotel at noon to-day.

THE OPENING CEREMONY

STEP across the threshold of the Peninsula Hotel and you enter a new atmosphere: it is not the pungent odour of the newly painted stalls or just unpacked goods, but the more dominant air of unceasingly industriousness engendered by any exhibition. Murks of interrogation seem embossed on every brow. On all sides remarks are prefaced by "Why is it?" or "Where is it?" The queries come in all shapes and sizes, from the inane inquiry of the precocious small boy to the deeply technical conundrum of the expert.

Harassed exhibitors, who have worked well into the night in putting their house in order, always have their answer ready, and couch it to synchronise with the tone of the enquiry. They probably have explained the same detail to a thousand others during the day, but their patience never flags, and they will expatiate on the virtues of their goods as if the query were a new one, for they realise that curiosity aroused may have business in its train.

SATISFYING THE CURIOUS.

It is this spirit of satisfying the curious, apparent on all sides at the Fair, that denotes the beneficial results likely to follow. Questions indicate interest, and businessmen are quick to appreciate interest. The prevalence of seekers after knowledge places the success of the exposition beyond doubt.

A cursory glance round the transformed lounge of the Peninsula reveals little of the intensive organisation and ingenuity that in one day turned a quiet cocktail rendezvous into a hive-like department store. Yesterday an array of coolies advanced in solid phalanxes, removed the tables and chairs previously exclusively dedicated to mahattans and martinis, swung hammers, sawed planks and garished them with bunting. City businessmen sweated in their shirtsleeves, shouted hoarse instructions and arranged their wares according to their respective artistic tastes.

RIOT OF COLOUR.

To-day, the Florentine hall is a riot of colour and bunting, with more Union Jacks to the square inch than wisecracks in a Wheeler and Woolsey film.

Bright ideas in display, attractive colour schemes and judicious employing of novelties are in every stall. Where possible, exhibitors have installed working models: importers of canned goods, textiles and other unromantic articles have pinned their faith in bunting and bright colours.

Apparently in an effort to vindicate itself, Hongkong's much maligned Telephone Company has installed itself right at the main entrance with a display that commands attention. Surmounted by a gigantic hand instrument (special Hackenschmidt model), the exhibit is a mass of gadgets, dials and whirling wheels. The centre of attraction is the working model of the automatic telephone apparatus, with which attendants will carefully explain that subscribers who raise wrong numbers can blame no one but themselves.

INGENIOUS DISPLAY.

Away in the eastern corner, an ingenious display by the Rope Company, a miniature of Eddy-stone, sheds a little light on the subject of rope, and symbolises the safety of using home-made rope. Alongside it is the Green Island Cement Company model of the Hung Hom plant, minus the smoke, as Kowloon residents will observe. Tucked away in the other corner, if you can squeeze through the youthful crowd, are the models of yachts, Spanish galleons and caravels, calculated to make childish eyes glisten. It is one of the show spots.

DOMINIONS TOUR.

Climb the broad staircase from the main lounge and cross out to the spacious verandah of the first floor, and you enter the farthest flung colonies of the Empire. The accents of the trade ambassadors here leave no doubt of the origin of the goods they sell, even if you don't see the Southern Cross and kangaroos on the exhibits.

A survey of the exhibits here takes you on a geographical tour of Australia and New Zealand. For a time you savor in the dried fruit and grape areas, cool off on Mount Cook, and then suddenly jump back to the cities and their factories.

A peep in the Peninsula's Moorish Bar on the ground floor to satisfy yourself that Canadian Club whisky is not the only product of that Dominion, and still you have not seen all of this year's Empire Fair.

COLOURFUL SHOW.

In the two large matchless erected on the vacant block across Nathan Road, the Fair has enlarged its sphere to include the heavyweights exhibits that were excluded from last year's exhibition. Engines whirl at varying speeds, sleek motor-car saloons rev up to show off their latest models and a miniature elevator shows just exactly what happens when you press the button on the ground floor. It is no small tribute to human ingenuity that a display of an article as bereft of romance as machinery is, has been made so attractive and entertaining.

That is Hongkong's British Empire Fair of 1933. Never before in the Colony has the extent of Empire industry and enterprise been drawn with such a colourful and attractive brush.

THE OPENING CEREMONY.

The Opening Ceremony took place in the First Floor Lounge of the Peninsula Hotel at noon.

H.E. the Governor (Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E.) and Lady Peel were met on arrival at the main entrance of the Hotel by the Chairman of the Empire Fair Committee (the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson), accompanied by the Vice-Chairman of the Committee, the Dominion & Commonwealth representatives and the Hon. Secretary of the Fair Committee.

The party proceeded between the ranks of a Guard of Honour of Girl Guides and Boy Scouts to the official dais on the first floor.

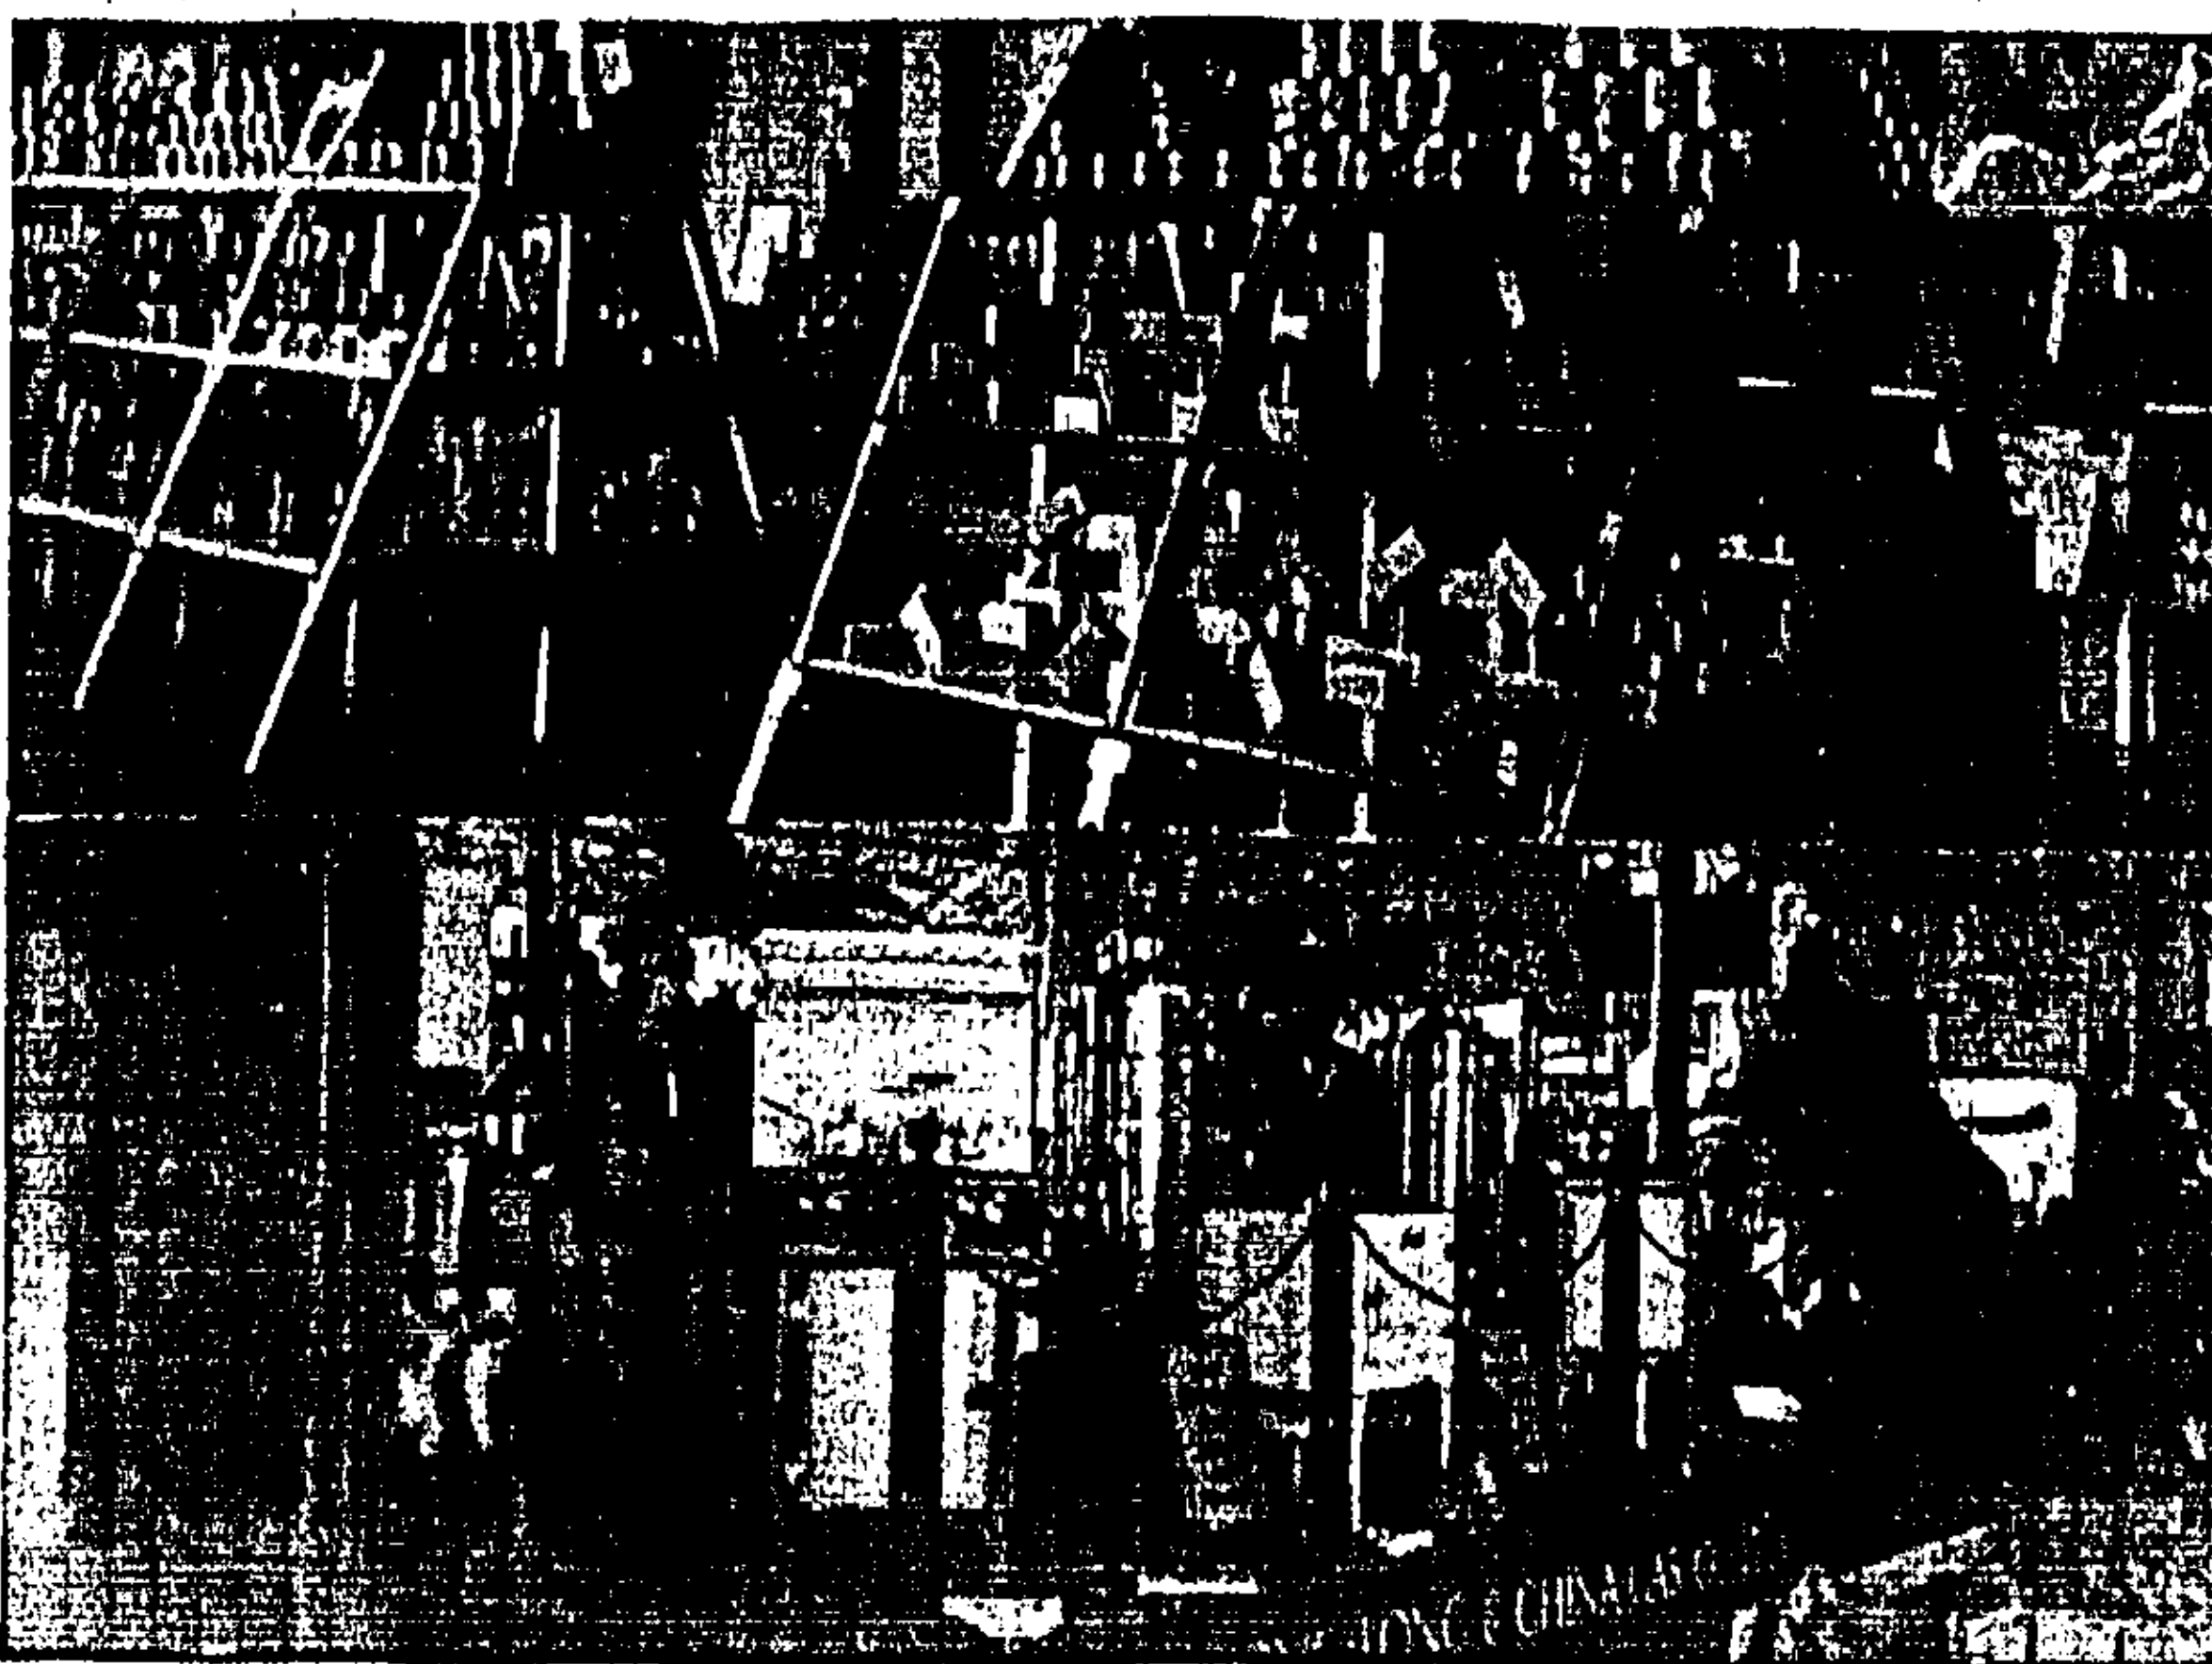

The Chairman was supported on the dais, on the right, by H.E. the Governor, the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government (Mr. Liu Yun-kei), H.B.M. Acting Consul-General (Mr. E. G. Jamieson, C.B.E.), Mr. J. A. Tonkin (representing the Department of Commerce of the Australian Commonwealth Government), Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga (Vice-Chairman) and principal organiser of the Fair Committee. On the left were Lady Peel, the Mayor of Canton (Mr. Liu Chi-wen) and Mrs. Liu Chi-wen, Major V. E. Ducloux (Canadian Trade Commissioner in Hongkong), Mr. S. T. Williamson (Hon. Agent for New Zealand) Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G. (Vice-Chairman).

BRITANNIA TABLEAU.

A tableau, representing Britannia was staged behind the dais. Those attending the opening ceremony included H.E. the General Officer Commanding, Major-General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., C.B.E., and Mrs. Borrett, H.H. the Chief Justice and Mrs. J. R. Wood, representatives of the Consular Body, officials from Canton, the Commodore and Mrs. Marrack, members of the Executive Council, Government officials, members of the General Committee of the Fair, exhibitors and the general public.

MR. PATERSON'S WELCOME.

Addressing the gathering, the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson said—Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen: The first Empire Fair in Hongkong, held a year ago, though it called for a great deal of work from the organisers, was smaller than the Fair we present to you to-day. We

AN EMPIRE DAY MESSAGE

ADDRESS TO 600 CHILDREN

THIS MORNING'S SERVICE

Nearly 600 school children, and many adults, were present in St. John's Cathedral this morning, when Empire Day was fittingly commemorated. Those present included Mr. N. L. Smith, Director of Education, and Mr. A. R. Sutherland, Inspector of Schools.

The service was conducted by the Rev. N. V. Halward, while the Rev. A. D. Stewart preached an inspiring sermon. The Lesson was read by the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave. The service concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

Rev. Stewart spoke of sacrifices for one's country, to die for it, live for it, or to change an enemy into a friend. He referred to Wat Yuen, a famous official in the state of Chou, some 2,000 years ago, who died for his country and whose death is being celebrated this coming Sunday. He also referred to Queen Victoria, Florence Nightingale and Nurse Cavell and recapitulated the story of the good Samaritan. If nations could only turn their enemies to be their friends, he said, there would be no need for guns and fortifications.

The preacher in speaking of the Empire, stressed the significance of Empire Day.

Schools represented were: Peak School, Kowloon Junior School, St. Stephen's Girls' College, Yaumatei School, Queen's College, Ellis Kadorie Indian School, Gap Road School, Garrison School, Vantsal School, Diocesan Girls' School, Diocesan Boys' School, Central British School and Quarry Bay School.

A party of Girl Guides and Wolf Cubs attended the service in uniform, and although many Boy Scouts were present with their respective schools, they were not officially represented.

CATHOLIC SERVICE.

A service for Catholic school-children was held at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Caine Road, this morning.

The musical side of the service was supplemented by the Band of the St. Lewis Industrial School. Children from the Convents, led

MOTHER AND SON WITH DEAD

Sydney (Nova Scotia).

The climax of a dramatic story was reached when the Canadian ice-breaker Montcalm sent out a wireless message stating that she had arrived off the lonely Flint Island lighthouse and taken off the lighthouse-keeper and the body of his drowned son for burial on the mainland.

For five days the folk on the isolated lighthouse had been trying to communicate with watchers on the mainland, but the pack ice prevented any assistance by boat. Then an aeroplane dropped a message asking that two red flashes should be signalled in the case of death or need for urgent assistance.

The two red flashes came. Immediately the Montcalm, under special Government orders, rushed to the rescue from Sydney and after breaking through a mile of ice, found the keeper of the lighthouse with the body of his son. The father had rescued one son from the floating ice but was unable to save the other.

During the funeral service on the mainland the eldest son and the keeper's wife will keep the light going. —Reuter.

BRITISH REPLY TO ROOSEVELT MESSAGE.

London, May 23. The British Ambassador in Washington, Sir Ronald Lindsay, today delivered the following reply to President Roosevelt's recent message:

"His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom have read with much appreciation the message which the President of the United States has addressed to the heads of all countries participating in the Disarmament and Economic Conferences, on 16th May.

"His Majesty's Government feel that the action which Mr. Roosevelt has taken in addressing this message to the peoples of the world is of the highest importance and is well calculated to further the aim which His Majesty's Government have striven to secure, namely, the success of the two world conferences. They entirely share the President's view that on the successful outcome of these conferences hang the future happiness and prosperity of the world.

ENCOURAGING FEATURES.

"They are all the more encouraging by Mr. Roosevelt's message because the President places as the first step of his programme the adoption of the draft disarmament convention presented to the Disarmament Conference by the Prime Minister on the 16th March last.

"His Majesty's Government see in this an earnest of the intention of the United States Government to collaborate at Geneva in pressing for the general adoption of this draft convention as a whole.

"His Majesty's Government believe, for their part, that if this can be attained, the result will be a restoration of confidence between the nations of the world and that thus the best preparation will be made for the vital decisions which the monetary and economic conference will be called upon to take."

Replies from the Governments in the British Dominions have also been delivered to the President. —British Wireless.

made the Opening Ceremony a local affair. I believe His Majesty's Consul-General at Canton was the only visitor from the outside world.

When we found, however, that we were going to put up a show four or five times as large as before, covering an area of over an acre, we felt that we need not be quite so modest. Seeing that the Empire goods on show to-day are all intended for the great market of South China, we invited the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, Mr. Lin Yun-Koy; the Mayor of Canton, Mr. Liu Chi-Wen and Mrs. Liu Chi-Wen; the Inspector-General for Foreign Affairs for Kwangtung, Mr. Kan Chieh-Hou; the Commissioner of Public Safety, General Ho Lok; the Counsellor to the 1st Group Army Headquarters, Colonel C. W. Leung; the Municipal Counsellor and Secretary to the Mayor, Dr. Wu Paak-Shing; and Mrs. Wu Paak-Shing; the Secretary to the Chairman of the Kwangtung Government, Mr. Chow Hok-Tung; and the Secretary to the Commissioner of Public Safety, Mr. W. S. Lun, to accept our hospitality and be present here to-day.

GOVERNOR'S INTEREST.

Therefore it is my privilege this morning, in the first place, to welcome His Excellency the Governor, who has taken the greatest interest in this project and who kindly promised some months ago to perform the Opening Ceremony. Secondly, as this is, I think, the first large gathering which Lady Peel has attended since her recent illness, I am sure you would wish me to express on your behalf our congratulations on her recovery and our pleasure that she is here to grace the occasion.

Next I wish to thank, in the name of the General Committee of the Empire Fair, the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, the Mayor of Canton and the other distinguished Ladies and Gentlemen from Canton who have honoured us to-day by accepting our invitation to the Fair. We trust that what they see here will be of great interest to them and that their visit will strengthen the friendly relations between South China and Hong Kong.

COMMITTEE'S THANKS.

As the Fair has no greatly outgrown even the large amount of space which the Hotel Company has so generously placed at our disposal, I have to express my regret that it is impossible to provide seats for all who are present. The best remedy I can make is to be brief. Let me therefore extend a cordial welcome to His Majesty's Consul-General at Canton, Mr. Jamieson and to our local guests. In particular I wish to take this opportunity of expressing, in all sincerity, grateful thanks to the hundreds of workers and exhibitors for their support and thank also to Mr. Tang and the Directors of the Hongkong & Shanghai Hotels Ltd. for their invaluable assistance, the general public for their attendance and to express the hope that "dividend warrants will soon be ready" in the shape of a large increase of British trade as the result of this Fair.

I will now call upon Major V. E. Ducloux, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Hongkong, to read a message from the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of the Department of Trade and Commerce of the Dominion of Canada.

CANADA'S MESSAGE.

Major Ducloux then read the following message from The Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister, Department of Trade & Commerce, of the Canadian Government:—

The Dominion of Canada cordially associates herself with the Crown Colony of Hong Kong by participating in the British Empire Fair which is opening to-day. It is gratifying to the Canadian Government, and particularly to myself, as Minister of Trade and Commerce, that Canada has been accorded such excellent facilities for this displaying before the citizens of Hong Kong and South China samples of her natural products and manufactures, with a view to further extending inter-imperial trade between these two sections of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is particularly fitting that this Fair should open on May 24th, the anniversary of the "Mother of the Empire", the late Queen Victoria and a day celebrated throughout the British Empire as indicative of its solidarity and its devotion to the Crown.

MUCH IN COMMON.

The Crown Colony of Hong Kong and the Dominion of Canada have much in common. It was in 1841, during the reign of Queen Victoria, that Hong Kong became a Crown Colony and began to flourish under the Union Jack. It was in the same year that Canada had its first democratic government. Direct steamship services between Canada and Hong Kong provide a means of greatly increasing the volume of trade between, and linking closer together, these at one time distant parts of the Empire. Their products and manufactures are to a large extent complementary, and it is to the advantage of both countries that this trade should be considerably increased. Hong Kong is at the spearhead of a large and practically unexploited trade territory which will, when the existing difficulties have passed, provide Hong Kong with a market for many of Canada's products and which in return may provide many of Canada's wants.

UNEXCELLED FACILITIES.

It is natural that Hong Kong, due to its location and the unexcelled facilities offered by its harbour, should serve as a centre of distribution for Canadian products which will eventually be consumed in the Southern part of the Chinese Republic. It is our hope that the importers of Hong Kong will give the fullest consideration to the opportunities offered to them by Canadian producers.

It was with the object of promoting greater trade between Canada and this territory that the appointment of a Trade Commissioner was made in 1929. It is to the advantage of Hong Kong importers to prepare for the future. Canada can provide them with many of their requirements and since it is to their advantage to cultivate a trading partnership with that Dominion.

I congratulate the Chairman and Committee on their efforts to make the Fair a success and feel sure that they will be fully justified by the results obtained.

NEW ZEALAND'S THANKS.

Mr. S. T. Williamson read the following message from Mr. Masters, the Minister of Industries and Commerce in the New Zealand Government:—Please express best wishes of the New Zealand Government for the success of the Empire Fair and appreciation of the efforts of Government, committees, hotel company and others to further Empire trade. Also express our thanks for the assistance rendered to New Zealand in this connection.

AUSTRALIA'S MESSAGE.

Mr. J. A. Tonkin delivered the following message from the Prime Minister of Australia:—The Commonwealth Government, I wish the Empire Fair every success and hope it will mark opening of many new avenues of Empire trade. Appreciation of Hongkong for the encouragement and assistance in launching the Fair, and to the Fair Committee, the Hotel Company, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, and those organisations and associations whose activities have been responsible for this display of Empire products. Your Fair will be successful and beneficial to all British and Dominion participants.—Lyons, Prime Minister.

THE GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

Formally declaring the Fair open, H.E. the Governor said:—Mr. Paterson, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am very pleased to have the privilege to-day of opening the second Empire Products Fair held in Hong Kong. As you know, the idea was started last year as the outcome of a letter addressed by Mrs. Avery, the wife of a former Secretary of State for the Colonies, to my wife, in which among other things she suggested an all-British food day. The proposal to have an Empire Products Fair was taken up with great enthusiasm. My wife assisted in the preliminary stages, but to our regret we were unable to be here for the Fair itself. We were however greatly interested in the accounts which were sent to us. There was no doubt that it was a great triumph, and I take this opportunity of congratulating all those who helped to achieve that success. It was indeed so successful that it was quite rightly decided that another Fair should be held this year, and there is no need for me to say that that decision has been amply justified, and that this year's Fair will greatly surpass that of last year.

ON THE MAP.

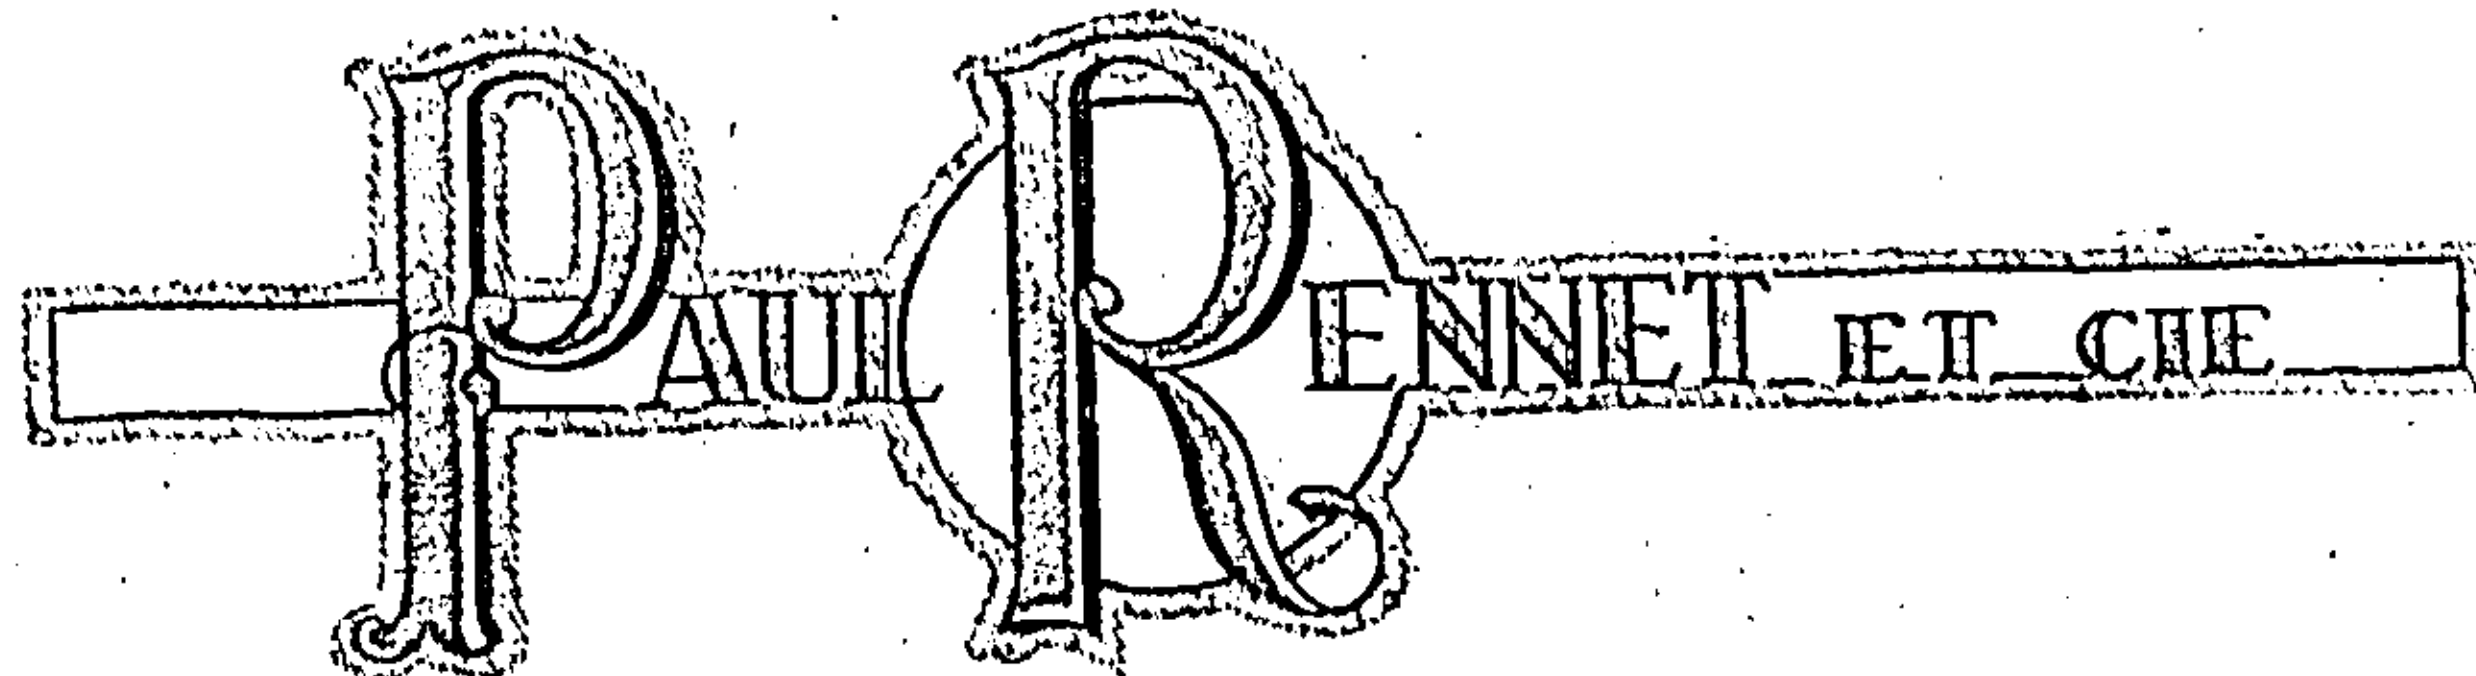

Such Fairs have been instituted in many parts of the Empire. The British Industries Fair was started in a modest way in London soon after the War, and has grown to be of the greatest commercial value. Another Fair of the same kind has been held at Birmingham for the last fourteen years and yearly gains increasing popularity. Many of the colonies participate in that held in London.

Fiji being one of the latest notable additions; and I hope that at no distant date Hong Kong will be able to participate, showing the people at home that this Colony is developing valuable industries of its own.

In a recent edition of a very interesting journal called "The Crown Colonies", I noticed in a map showing the various sources of Empire products that Hong Kong was marked "Local Industries and trans-shipment for China". A few years ago the words "local industries" would probably not have been written, Hong Kong then being considered very little more than a mere transit port. Industries are now growing up in this Colony, one of the most notable perhaps of recent ventures being the brewing of beer! Only recently I was informed by the head of a well known Hong Kong firm that they had a very large order from England for rubber soled shoes manufactured here. These Fairs are great factors in the commercial life of the Empire, and help to make us realise what our great Empire is capable of producing. It is wonderful how little many of us know of its great resources. I had an opportunity of visiting the Fair in London in 1928, and I must confess to great surprise at many of the things I saw there.

HIGH POSITION.

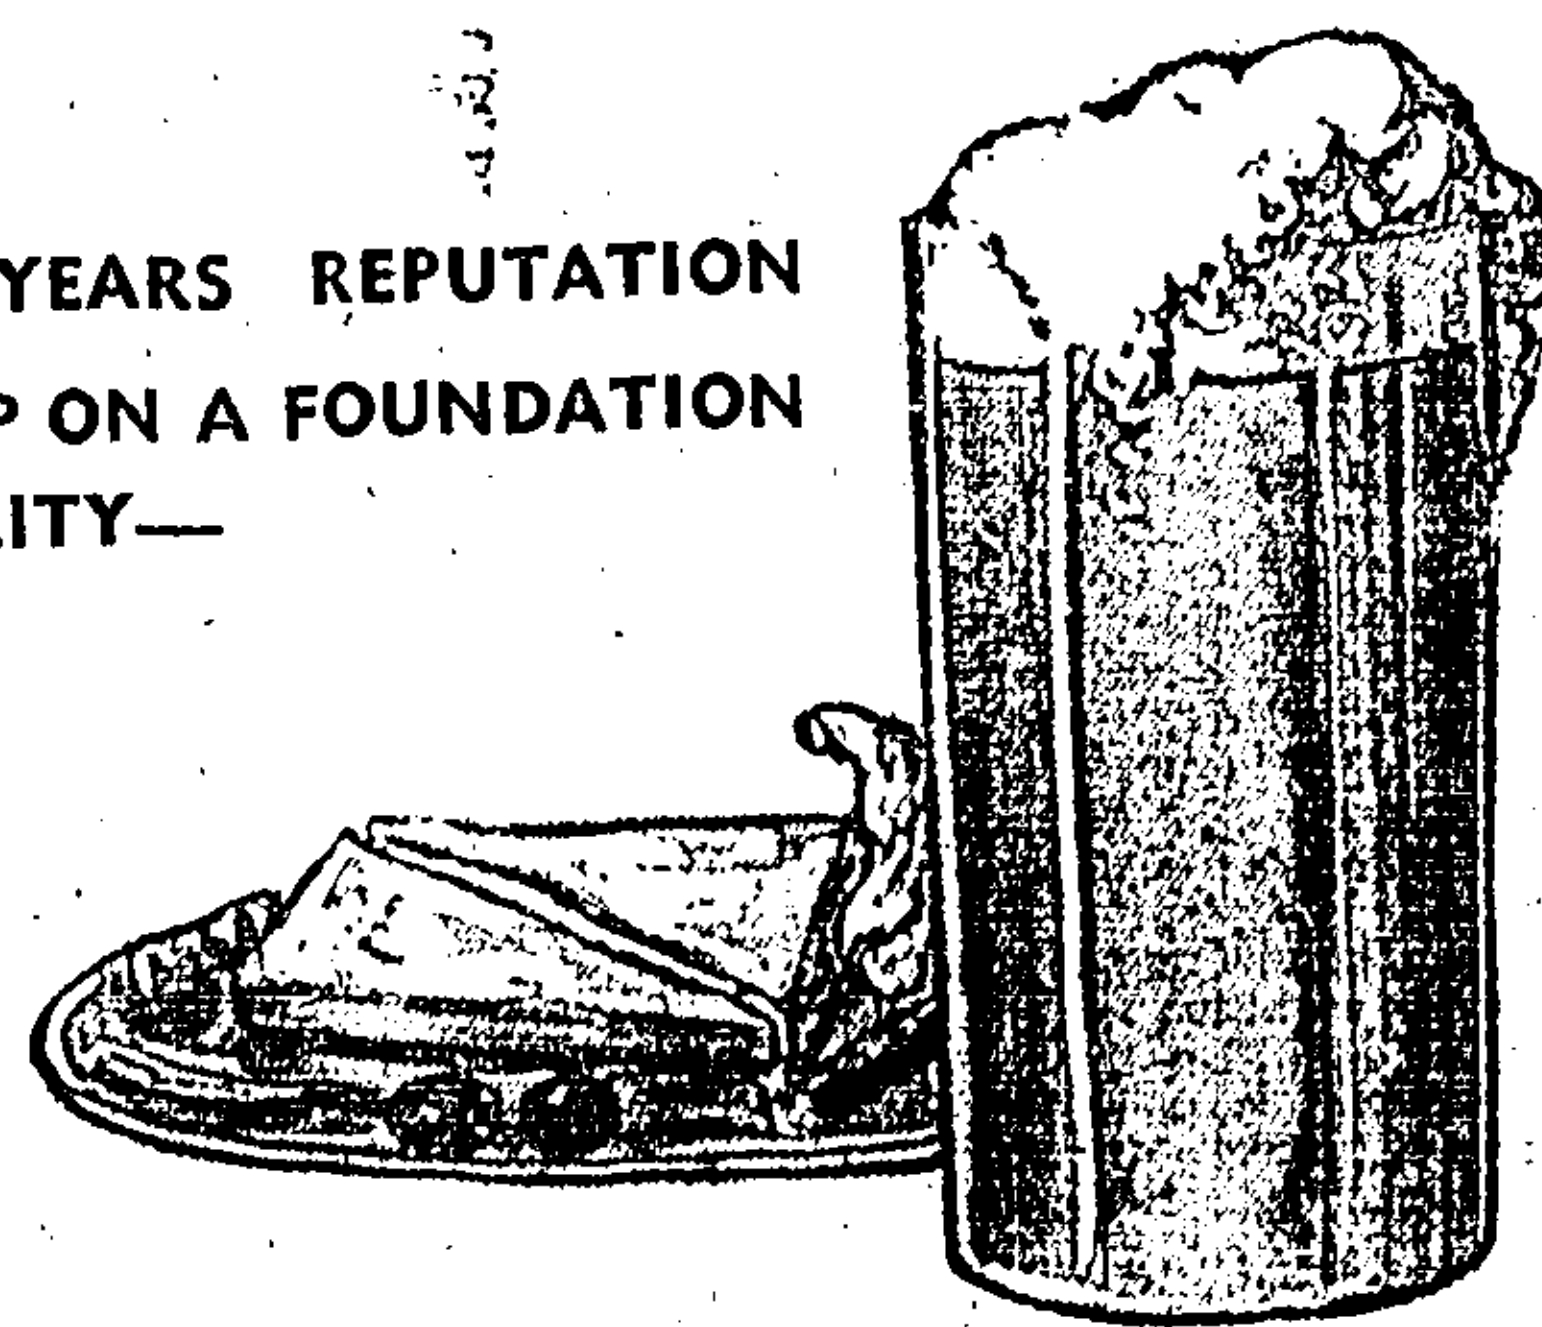

The British Empire has held a high position in trade but owing perhaps to over-confidence has tended to sink in a slough of conservatism, in spite of considerable technical advances in industry. Where we really have to some extent failed is in actual trading. We have been inclined to stand on a past reputation of the excellence of our goods, which has always been high, and have been extraordinarily unwilling to investigate changes in demand. Suppliers seem to hold the view that they should decide on what the consumer should take, ignoring the advice that he who pays the piper has the right to call the tune. This tendency, as far as the Far East is concerned, was recognised by the Economic Mission which visited the Far East over two years ago, and also by Mr. Beale, now Commercial Counsellor to our Peking Legation, who

NEGRO VILLAGE IN RUSSIA

DESCENDANTS OF BLACK SLAVES

AN EXTRAORDINARY DISCOVERY

Helsingfors.
 A complete negro village has been found in the depths of the wildest part of the Caucasus according to reports from Moscow.
 These negroes are described as living in the most primitive manner imaginable. It is believed that they are descendants of the black slaves which Georgian nobles were in the habit of buying in the slave markets of Istanbul hundreds of years ago.
 One theory is that a slave galley must at some time have foundered on the shores of the Black Sea, and that some of the slaves escaped and formed the nucleus of the present colony of "Russian negroes".—Reuter.

GAYEST CITY IN THE WORLD

LONDON WINS PRIDE OF PLACE

Rome.
 The world crisis has transformed London into the gayest city in the world, in the opinion of an Italian visitor who has been writing his impressions of England in the Giornale d'Italia.
 "It seems a paradox, but it is done the less true," he says, "that the crisis has brought an astonishing change in the British capital.
 Some years ago London was the most serious capital in the world.
 Now it boasts a night life before which that of Paris and Berlin must take second place.
 "To hell with the crisis," is the slogan of Englishmen."
 The Prince of Wales, the writer declares, is more responsible than anyone else for the refusal of Londoners to be daunted by the depression. Living up to the motto "Keep smiling," he is to be seen everywhere, and his fellow countrymen live up to his example of cheerfulness.—Reuter.

NEW COMMERCIAL TREATY

England-Iceland Agreement

London, May 23.

A Commercial agreement between the United Kingdom and Iceland, the text of which is now issued, follows similar lines to those recently concluded with Norway and Denmark.

Iceland undertakes that import duties on certain classes of goods in which the United Kingdom is interested will not exceed rates specified in the schedules. Some of these include ad valorem duty at present of 15 per cent. and in certain cases, including cotton, linen and artificial silk, this has been reduced to ten per cent. Not less than 77 per cent. of Iceland's total coal imports will be obtained from the United Kingdom.

The United Kingdom undertakes not to increase existing import of duty of ten per cent. ad valorem on fresh or salted fish from Iceland. In the event of a quantitative regulation being applied, not less than 354,000 cwts. a year of fresh and wet salted fish of which not less than 104,000 cwts must be wet salted fish, will be admitted by the United Kingdom.

A promise of equitable treatment of chilled and frozen mutton and lamb from Iceland has also been given.—British Wireless.

SHORT HAIR NO NOVELTY

SHINGLE DATES BACK TO 1812!

Short hair, which is predicted by that hairdressing authority, M.
 Gaston Boudou, to go on indefinitely in fashion, is not such a novelty.
 He declares that he has some prints which show that women wore shingled hair in 1812.

He says that the decided tondency at the moment is for artificially coloured hair, moulded, hardened, and often lacquered in position.

This vogue has now reached the hairdressing departments of the large stores in London. Grey, so far, is the favourite colour for lacquered hair.

Hats of natural hair are the latest idea in the world of parisian fashion. They are very light, lacquered, and made to match the wearer's natural locks.—Reuter.

LACKING "TEAM SPIRIT"

SPANISH VARSITIES CRITICISED

Madrid.

The one thing Spanish University students lack is the English "team spirit" and "social" education, believes Senor Lasso de la Vega. Reforms now being considered by Parliament may make students better scholars, thinks Senor Vega, but he is worried about their becoming more gentlemanly. He is an ardent admirer of English universities.

No student younger than 17 will be allowed to enter a Spanish university if these reforms are passed by the Government. At present the entrance age is 15.

The bill proposes to give the Minister of Education the power to pension off these teachers with whom he is dissatisfied.

Definite research courses will be available to Spanish students for the first time by the new law, which is intended to replace an 1857 measure.

The English custom of holding regular public lectures in the universities will also be copied.
 And the number of examinations per course—the item which most pleases the students—is to be reduced from 30 to 2.—Reuter.

TALL CRICKET SCORING: BARLING 269, IDDON 204

SUSSEX AND SURREY TOP 500 MARK

LANCASHIRE LOSE 100 PER CENT RECORD

DERBY GIVE KENT A SHOCK

PHENOMENAL scoring featured the first class cricket programme during the last three days, several matches producing well over 100 runs apiece.

As a result the honours list is full of batting achievements, including two double centuries and nine other three figure innings. Lancashire lost their 100 per cent. record, being forced to rest content with first innings points against Warwick after compiling the huge score of 485 for 8 declared.

The outstanding feature of this innings was Iddon's splendid batting which produced him 201 runs. He remained undefeated until the close of the innings.

Warwick, however, easily held their own against this imposing total, and in scoring 314 and 177 for 3 were never in danger of outright defeat.

BARLING'S BATTING.

C. F. Walter's record of making the highest score of the season, achieved only last week, fell before Barling's magnificent innings against Hampshire.

The Surrey batsman helped himself to 269 and Surrey topped the 500 mark before the innings closed.

But the easy wicket allowed Hampshire to score just as freely, and with Mead and Pothecary contributing centuries, Hampshire in spite of a follow on saved the game with ease.

Sussex returned to the form displayed in the first two matches of the season when they outplayed Gloucester to win by an innings.

Sussex amassed the highest score of the season—546, and it was Cook flog the Gloucester at-

KENT SURPRISED.

Derby surprised Kent by administering an eight wickets defeat. Scoring was comparatively low, but it did not prevent Leslie Ames chalking up his first century since returning from Australia.

But the Derby attack proved too good for the Kent men, and with Mitchell bowling his best to capture 8 for 92 and Copson following this up with 5 for 38, defeat was inevitable.

The West Indies continue to show improvement and added the scalp of the M.C.C. to their belt. Headley was again prominent with a fine century.

MOST IMPORTANT GOLF SHOT AUSTRALIAN CHAMP SAYS THE DRIVE

Drastic revision of the British Amateur Championship conditions is advocated by Cyril Tolley, the exholder of that title.

He has been in the United States for nearly two years engaged in the insurance business. "I want to see our Championship decided under totally different conditions," he told Reuter.

"Personally, I would prefer a qualifying round, and then the matches over 36 holes.

"That, I feel sure, would improve the standard of golf.

"An 18 holes game is not an adequate test. There have been occasions when a first class golfer made one mistake early, and he has not had the opportunity to retrieve it.

"Such matches as I suggest would be better guides to international team selection.

"Our present scheme is like a first class lawn tennis player having a one set match at Wimbledon.

"I am totally opposed to the present form of play. "I will compete in the Amateur Championship at St. Andrews, but I would anticipate participation there with much greater enthusiasm if the championship were to be played on the lines in operation in the United States.

ARMY BOXING TITLES Shanghai Honours Shared by E. Lancs & Argylls

SPECTATORS SEE SPIRITED SCRAPS

Six Shanghai Area Open Individual Boxing Championships of the British Forces ranging from bantam to light-heavy weights, were decided at the Union Jack Club last week before a large crowd of spectators.

A fine exhibition of boxing was staged by some of the finalists, with Drum-Major Quilter of the East Lancs, who won the light-weight crown, showing the best form of the evening. Out of the six champions at stake, four were won by representatives of the 2nd Battalion, East Lancashire Regiment, and the other two by the Argyll leather pushers.

MCPHAIL IN FORM.
Most of the boys showed up well yesterday with Pte. McPhail, a tiny bantam doing double duty. McPhail had to meet two opponents in one evening. In the opening bout, he defeated Pte. Kilburn by showing a better knowledge of the game and pushing his left into his opponent's face time and again. His opponent proved to be a slugger, but could not get at the fast moving McPhail.

By virtue of his victory over Kilburn in the semi-final, McPhail qualified to meet Pte. McCormack of the Argylls for the bantam-weight title in the last bout of the evening. After about 1½ hours rest, McPhail went into the ring again and although facing a fast opponent, out-classed him, using some neat right and left hooks and doing some clever dodging.

In the featherweight final, after being pressed in the opening round, Bdsrn. Duff of the East Lancs beat L. Cpl. Collier, also of the East Lancs. Both boys went at each other hammer and tong. Collier used a left jab to advantage in the opening round. The second canto proved to be very even with neither doing much hitting. In the last, Duff went all out and with rights and lefts to the head gained the necessary points for a win.

QUILTER WINS.
Drum-Major Quilter of the East Lancs, former Boy and Army Champion, proved to be much too good for L/Cpl. Smith, East Lancs, in the lightweight class. Quilter showed an excellent knowledge of the finer points of the game and although Smith put up a great front, he could not do much with the exception of keeping on the defensive.

Using a beautiful "one-two," Quilter cut open Smith's mouth in the second round and punished his opponent badly with a two-fisted attack. In the third, the former champion slacked down a little and gave a fine performance of footwork and dodging.

The welterweight tussle proved to be a "Mut and Jeff" affair, with "Lanky" Pte. Mason of the East Lancs defeating Pte. Gallagher of the Argylls. A great deal of slugging and in-fighting was seen in this event, with Mason scoring more often by virtue of his reach and also keeping cooler than Gallagher, who tried time and again to rush his opponent off his feet, only to run into a barrage.

Russian Tennis Club.
Shanghai Cricket Club.
Shanghai Recreation Club.
Waterworks Tennis Club.
Y.M.C.A.

The Jewish Race, Rowing Club and the Russian Tennis Club are entering the league competition for the first time, while the Nagai Wata Kalsha tennis club, winners of the second division last year, will compete for the senior honours this summer.

Second Swimming Gala

Y.M.C.A. EVENT FOR NEXT MONTH

To-morrow they meet the South China Athletic Association in the "Y" Bath at 6 p.m., when the following will turn out for the Europeans:—H. Angus; K. Jenner and A. Donn; E. Ralston; W. Schreuder; W. Kerr and W. Campbell, Reserve:—H. Lange.

On Saturday at the Chinese Bathing Club, starting at 9 p.m. the Y.M. will turn out the following side to oppose the home team:—H. Angus; H. Lange and K. Jenner; R. Goldman; G. Fowler, W. Schreuder and W. Kerr. Reserve:—C. Chadderton.

DERBY SCRATCH.

Highlander Formerly A Favourite.

London, May 23. Highlander, which was amongst the favourites for the Derby, has been scratched.—Reuter.

FLOORED 4 TIMES.
The end came in the third round after Gray had rushed out of his corner then after some 20 seconds, switched to the defensive, only to be battered all over the ring and touching the canvas four times. Each time, however, he came up for more. The light-heavyweight bout provided some entertainment with "Tubby" Pte. Jordan, East Lancs, defeating Pte. Magee, East Lancs. On entering the ring, it seemed that Jordan was much to fat and short to stand any chance against his opponent, but after a rather slow first round, "Tubby" showed his worth and surprising speed to outscore Magee completely.

ANOTHER LOCAL FOOTBALL SURPRISE

BORDERERS TO PLAY ARTILLERY FOR RUNNERS-UP POSITION

SPORTING GESTURE BY THE S.W.B.

DIFFICULTY REGARDING SERVICES V CHINESE CHARITY GAME

(By "Veritas")

As a result of a sporting gesture on the part of the South Wales Borderers, it is probable that a replay for the Runners-up position of Division 1 of the Football League will take place this week end between the S.W.B. and the Royal Artillery.

The Borderers finished up on Allen is still in hospital, but his level peggings with the Artillery, deputy will be Wroe. The eleven but enjoyed a superior goal average. Their position was, however, made possible, by the awarding of four points from their match with the Police, who were unable to play the return fixture.

The Borderers have offered to meet the Artillery on Saturday in a play off match, and for this, I understand, they have obtained the permission of the Football Association. The Gunners have accepted the offer.

CLASH WITH CHARITY GAME.

There is however, one fly in the ointment. The fixture clashes with the charity game between the Combined Services and Chinese, arranged for last week, and forced to be held over to this Saturday.

The best part of the original Combined Services team is composed of Borderers and R.A., Combe, Allen, Pardoe and Seal of the Gunners having been chosen, and Mullane and Podmore of the Borderers.

At the moment there appears to be a little difficulty regarding the time of kick off for the two matches, and it may mean one of the two games being played on Sunday.

If however, both are played on Saturday, it will mean a complete re-arrangement of the Services eleven to oppose the Chinese. The team will have to be composed of Lincoln and Navy representatives. The Artillery have already decided on their team to meet the Borderers, and it is the strongest they can turn out at the moment.

Combe; Wroe and Green-shields; Rodgers, Pardoe and Harris; Wood, Gough, Bryant, McDonald and Seal.

A CLOSE FINISH.

Ferguson Wins Bowls Singles Title.

TWO-SHOT VICTORY.

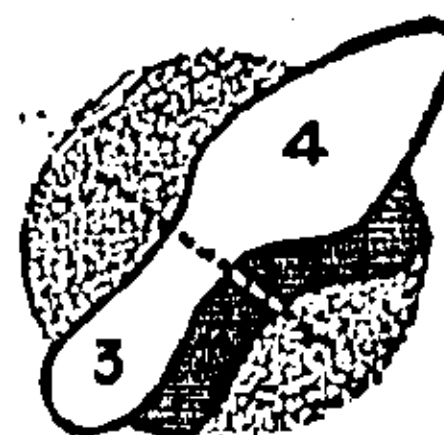

By the narrow margin of two shots T. Ferguson of the Kowloon Cricket Club eliminated C. E. Marques of the Club de Recreio in the open lawn bowls singles championship on the Kowloon B.C.C. green yesterday afternoon.

Ferguson was playing better bowls than his opponent during the first half of the game and at the 18th head had established a commanding lead of 20 shots to 10. However, he had much difficulty in securing the single point for victory and allowed his opponent to score on the next seven heads before he qualified to meet A. E. Coates of the Craigengower C.C. in the second round, winning by 21 shots to 10.

On another rink J. S. Logan and J. MacDonald of the Kowloon Bowling Green played a very one-sided game with the former running out winner by 21 shots to eight on the start and at no time did MacDonald look dangerous.

W. V. Field of the Craigengower C.C. and J. G. Ozorio, the Club de Recreio player were engaged in another somewhat one-sided game with the Happy Valley representative entering the next round by winning 22-10.

RUNNYMEL

A black and white illustration of a knight in armor, holding a sword and looking towards a small castle in the distance. The knight is shown from the waist up, wearing a helmet with a visor and a surcoat. He holds a sword with both hands, the blade pointing downwards. In the background, a small castle with multiple towers is visible on a hill. The style is simple and graphic, typical of a children's book illustration.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

At the King's Theatre to-day you will have a further opportunity of seeing the Gainsborough picture, "Jack the Boy." This is exquisite comedy with Jack Hulbert at his best. The story, written by Jack Hulbert and Douglas Furber, concerns the ambitions of Jack Brown, son of a police chief who, determined to show that he can brighten the force, joins up as a constable and sets himself to capture a gang of "smash and grab" raiders.

It does so but not before he and Mrs. Boddley, proprietress of the Cafe Loch Lomond and possessing a real "Scottish" accent (Cicely Courtneidge), treat us to some of the funniest incidents seen in a comedy. Jack also does some delightful singing and dancing.

Winifred Shotter, Francis Lister and Peter Gawthorne are also in the cast.

"Red Dust"
The peculiar odour of boiling sap from rubber trees recently brought curious citizens in nearby districts to the high fence surrounding the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer "back lot." Those who had the ambition to climb on boxes and peep over were startled to see a complete jungle rubber factory in operation.

This elaborate installation was made to provide authentic scenes for "Red Dust", a picture of life on rubber plantations which features Clark Gable and Jean Harlow. The production is now at the Queen's Theatre.

"Explorers of the World"
A unique film of exploration and high adventure in far away lands is showing at the Central Theatre to-day. It represents the first experiment of its kind, combining the expeditions and thrilling exploits of six celebrated explorers.

Explorers represented in the picture are James L. Clark, vice-director of The American Museum of Natural History, with motion pictures of Africa; Harold MacCracken and his films of his Siberian-Arctic Expeditions; Gene Lamb and his scenes of China and Tibet; Dr. Laurence M. Gould and his story of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition; Lt. Commander J.B. Stenhouse and his adventures in the Southern Seas; and Harold Noyce with his spectacular scenes of the headwaters of the Amazon in Brazil.

It is the best film of its kind presented to the Hongkong public, and as each and every explorer in the film represented a leading scientific institution or a government in his undertakings, the authenticity of every scene and episode is beyond question.

"A Passport To Hell"
Charmingly youthful, daintily feminine are the modes designed and created for Elissa Landi in "A Passport To Hell", coming to the King's Theatre in type from negligees to stunning formal. The sports clothes are especially attractive, and all forgotten is the theory that in order to be correct they must be masculine in inspiration. There is a sports costume of white and blue with a lace blouse that features a full bifurcated skirt which is the essence of femininity.

A negligee of royal blue carmena crepe is trimmed in red, white and blue Strass beads. A street costume of white crepe Roma with royal blue and white stripes and a formal of white alligator satin which boasts a bolero of haquet sequins boasts of a split skirt with a slight train. It is one of the most attractive gowns of the collection.

Playing opposite the star are Paul Lukas and Alexander Kirkland. In the cast are such other favourites as Warner Oland, Yola D'Avril, Donald Crisp and Earle Foxe.

"Madame Butterfly"
The treasured romance of the theatre, "Madame Butterfly", turned into a motion picture by Marion Gering and a cast headed by Sylvia Sydney, Cary Grant and Charlie Ruggles, has been booked for the Queen's Theatre to open to-morrow.

The story by John Luther Long and the play by David Belasco have both been brought up to date in the process of filming. B.P. Schulberg, who produced the picture for Paramount, and Gering, who directed, nevertheless took pains to retain the spirit of the original.

Miss Sydney, her dark eyes and eyebrows slanted, her hair lacquered, her figure draped in colourful oriental costumes, plays the role of Cho-Cho-San, the demure Japanese maiden wooed by the young American naval officer stationed in the city in which she lives. Cary Grant, husky, virile Englishman who is treading Hollywood's path to stardom, plays the latter role.

LOVE OR MONEY?

taking the girl by the shoulders. "Can you tell us where Barry is now?"

"Holiday Island, I think. That is where—"

"Where is Holiday Island?" asked Lottie sharply.

"I don't know. It was an island, that's all. Barry bought it—"

"Celeste!" roared her father outside the door. "Are you there? Come out. No more nonsense!"

"You may have the dress," Lottie said hurriedly. Unbuckling her wrist watch, she added, "And this." She motioned Mona to be still, took Barry's picture from the frame, slid it between the pages of a magazine and put it in the girl's arms. The hurry and flurry outside had subsided. The searchers were exploring the crew's quarters.

"Come with me," Lottie said. "I'll take you down this way and get a boat for you. Maybe the quartermaster won't recognize you. Come!"

The quartermaster preferred not to recognize the crestfallen young lady who hung on Lottie's arm and grasped a magazine convulsively. Lottie secured a boat, gave the oarsmen two shillings and bade him move off.

She watched while the little bark bobbed its way to the quay. "Now," she said to the quartermaster, "take this message to Celeste's father and that nurse. Tell them Mademoiselle has gone ashore."

Mona met her with a white face.

"Look here," Lottie began without waiting for her to speak, "if you are going to faint at every girl who is in love with Barry down here you'd better get a grip on yourself. That kid has a high school crush on Barry. She admits he didn't care for her and he probably didn't even know she was around. You know what men are when they go hunting."

"I know what pretty French girls are when they go hunting!" returned Mona. "And you gave her his picture!"

"You can get a dozen others by cabling and having them sent air mail. Sallie would attend to it, or Mrs. Raxon. I gave her the portrait to get rid of her because she gave us quite a tip."

Lottie sank into a chair. "In the first place she said Barry had bought Holiday Island. That narrows things down somewhat. There's a man at Port of Spain, the captain told me, who can tell us where Holiday Island is. We reach Port of Spain to-morrow. We can charter a plane there and fly to Holiday. It's easy!"

"We may have passed Holiday Island," Mona suggested.

"Yes; but if we charter a plane we can fly back or down or across—wherever we must go—in no time!" Mona nodded miserably. "I'm glad I brought you along, Lottie," she said meekly.

"Listen, Mona. I'm as anxious to see that dark-haired friend of Barry's as you are to find Barry."

"Are you in love with Steve?"

"Maybe. That remains to be seen! Come on, let's have tea."

The evening dragged. The girls went to the dance at the Aquatic Club to make the time pass more quickly. At midnight the party returned to the Miranda and at one o'clock she had cleared for Port of Spain.

But at Port of Spain Lottie and Mona, in the kindly guidance of young Dr. Allen, failed to find the man who they hoped would direct them to Holiday Island. He had gone fishing at Gasparee and would not be back for several days.

"Then we'll stay several days," Mona decided.

London, May 23.
An astonishing story was related by a Company Sergeant-Major of the Scots Guards at a

The C.S.M. told the Court that when visiting the guard on the were lying asleep in the guard-

Before the court-martial were Sergeant Albert Fincherly, of

was N.C.O. in charge of the Hyde

William Fisher Cavender.

The story was told by Company Sergeant Major Taylor, of the same battalion, who related that on visiting the magazine at 5.55

BIG JAPANESE NAVAL MANOEUVERS

London, May 18.
According to the Daily Telegraph, extensive Japanese naval manoeuvres are due to take place in August.

The paper states that the entire Japanese fleet, consisting of over 200 vessels, will participate. The fleet will be divided into an attacking force and a defending force, the weaker force representing the Japanese fleet.

"The 'enemy' fleet will be crossing the Pacific to attack the coasts of Japan. The Japanese fleet will engage the 'enemy' after he has been weakened by submarine and aerial attacks carried out from secret bases in the mandatory islands.

REST OF MEN ASLEEP.

On enquiring the whereabouts of the sentry, the guardsman replied: "I am."

C.S.M. Taylor found the rest of the guard asleep in the guard-room, unwashed and unshaven, although the sentry was due to be relieved at 6 a.m.

The decision of the court will be promulgated in each case.—

SUBMARINE RAMMED

MISHAP OFF ABERDEEN COAST

DAMAGED BUT NOT SERIOUSLY

London, May 23.
The British submarine, L.23, of a similar type to the craft which were formerly stationed in Hongkong, was rammed to-day by a trawler off Kinnaird Head, Aberdeenshire.

A thick fog was the principal cause of the collision which occurred about seven miles off the point.

There was considerable excitement aboard the trawler, the "Lord Davidson," but the master was relieved to find that the damage done was slight.

COMMANDER'S REPORT.

The commander of the L.23 reported to the Admiralty that although the submarine was making water slightly this could be kept under and he needed no assistance.

The submarine was, however, encorted to Rosyth, where she will go into dock for repairs.

The L.23 is a vessel of 760 tons, with a complement of about thirty men.—British Wireless.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

GOOD-BYE TO BULGES

Double Leg Swing
Will Cut Down
Waistline

Lateral leg-raising . . . to reduce waist and thighs.

By Jac Auer

Do you crave a pinched-in waistline, one of the slender waists that show to advantage in this year's clothes? To-day's exercise works directly for that. It also does its bit toward further reducing your thighs. It consists of raising both your legs, knees tight together, toes pointing downward, and swinging your legs in as near an arc as you can manage, without letting them touch the floor.

Balance yourself on one side, one arm flat on the floor, hand supporting your head. Place your other hand in front of you on the floor, where it gives you the greatest brace. Now lift both legs together, toes pointed, and try to swing them up, around and to the back. The first day you may scarcely be able to get them off the floor without tipping over. Keep at it. This exercise calls for determination. Persevere each day until you actually can manipulate the double leg swing in as high an arc as shown in the picture.

After trying the swing twice on your right side, roll over, brace yourself on your left side and swing in reverse direction. This exercise calls into play all the back muscles through your waistline and all your thigh muscles. It gives them a chance to work as they do not usually have the opportunity to work. In so doing, they build up a co-ordination and a poise that makes for grace. And at the same time, when you get all your muscles working correctly, fat will melt away.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

New Hats Call for New Coiffures.

By Alicia Hart

Topped hats have developed one-sided coiffures that are very new and attractive.

It's what you do with your back hair that counts, these days.

One new style of hairdressing parts the hair on the right side, has a soft, wide wave over both ears and then the back hair is swirled over to the left side where it ends in little flat curls. You wear one of the new coiffure combs slanting across the back of your head, to hold the swirl. A glittering one is grand for evening.

For the woman who doesn't curl her hair, there is a one-sided effect that is obtained by merely swirling all the right back hair over to the left side. It is similar to the first coiffure except that the

CLEAN GARMENTS BEFORE STORING

Be sure to have your furs and heavy winter coats thoroughly cleaned before you store them away for the summer. Moths are not nearly so liable to get into clean clothes as soiled ones. If you don't have a cedar chest or closet, remember that ordinary newspapers are the next best thing. Wrap each garment separately in a newspaper and then put them all in airtight box. Newspapers are discouraging to moths.

The Feminine Tuxedo

ends merely are smoothed in to give the entire head a very neat, round appearance, with no loose ends whatsoever. Very soft waves over the ears are smoothed in place too, with no curled ends.

For all of these new coiffures hair must be a trifle longer than the regulation bob. Two inches in the back can be taken up by curls, easily. And even the slightest wave pulls up your hair. So don't have it cut too short. No shorn look is good this year.

YOUR CHILDREN.

Let's Banish Some Superstitions About Baby's Care!

By Olive Roberts Barton

What do you do with a baby's fingernails? This question is not so foolish, for only a short time ago I heard an old woman protest when a young mother got out the scissors. "Oh, don't! If you cut them, you'll make him a thief. You never cut them the first time."

"Then how do you get them off? He's scratching me all to pieces, and himself too."

"Why just take his finger in your mouth and nip off the sharp edges with your teeth."

Did you ever?

Cut a baby's nails as soon as they need it—round. Watch the scissors. One of the most ticklish jobs I know of is this ceremony of shaping up short but not too short. Clean them with a bit of cotton twisted around a toothpick. Be careful not to dig down under the nail.

Washing Baby's Hair

When a baby is born he may or may not have hair. The custom has been for ages to lather and wash his scalp every day. Now, unless you feel that it actually needs it, every day is not considered necessary. Every other day is enough.

If his scalp is dry and gets little crusts on it, sometimes brownish in color, don't try to dig it off, or fine-comb it off. Put on a little olive oil and let it remain for a day. Work it gradually off with a soft cloth at next bath time. If the baby's hair is dry and hay-like use some good scalp oil frequently that your doctor may advise. Olive oil or a little white vaseline are all right.

As the baby gets older, twice a week is often enough, unless he makes mudpies and mistakes his pate for a pie pan, or turns his plate of mashed potatoes upside down on his head. Then clean his head of course. But what is the use of washing all the natural oil out of his hair each day?

Over 4, Then Once a Week

When he is still older, say four years old, once a week is a good schedule. In hot weather oftener, perhaps. Children, of course, have different types of hair. Some can stand more washing than others. But if there is any sign of dryness I would try less frequent washing and a little aid in the way of oil. The doctor, that mine of information, may be able to suggest some treatment if the hair stays too dry and too thin.

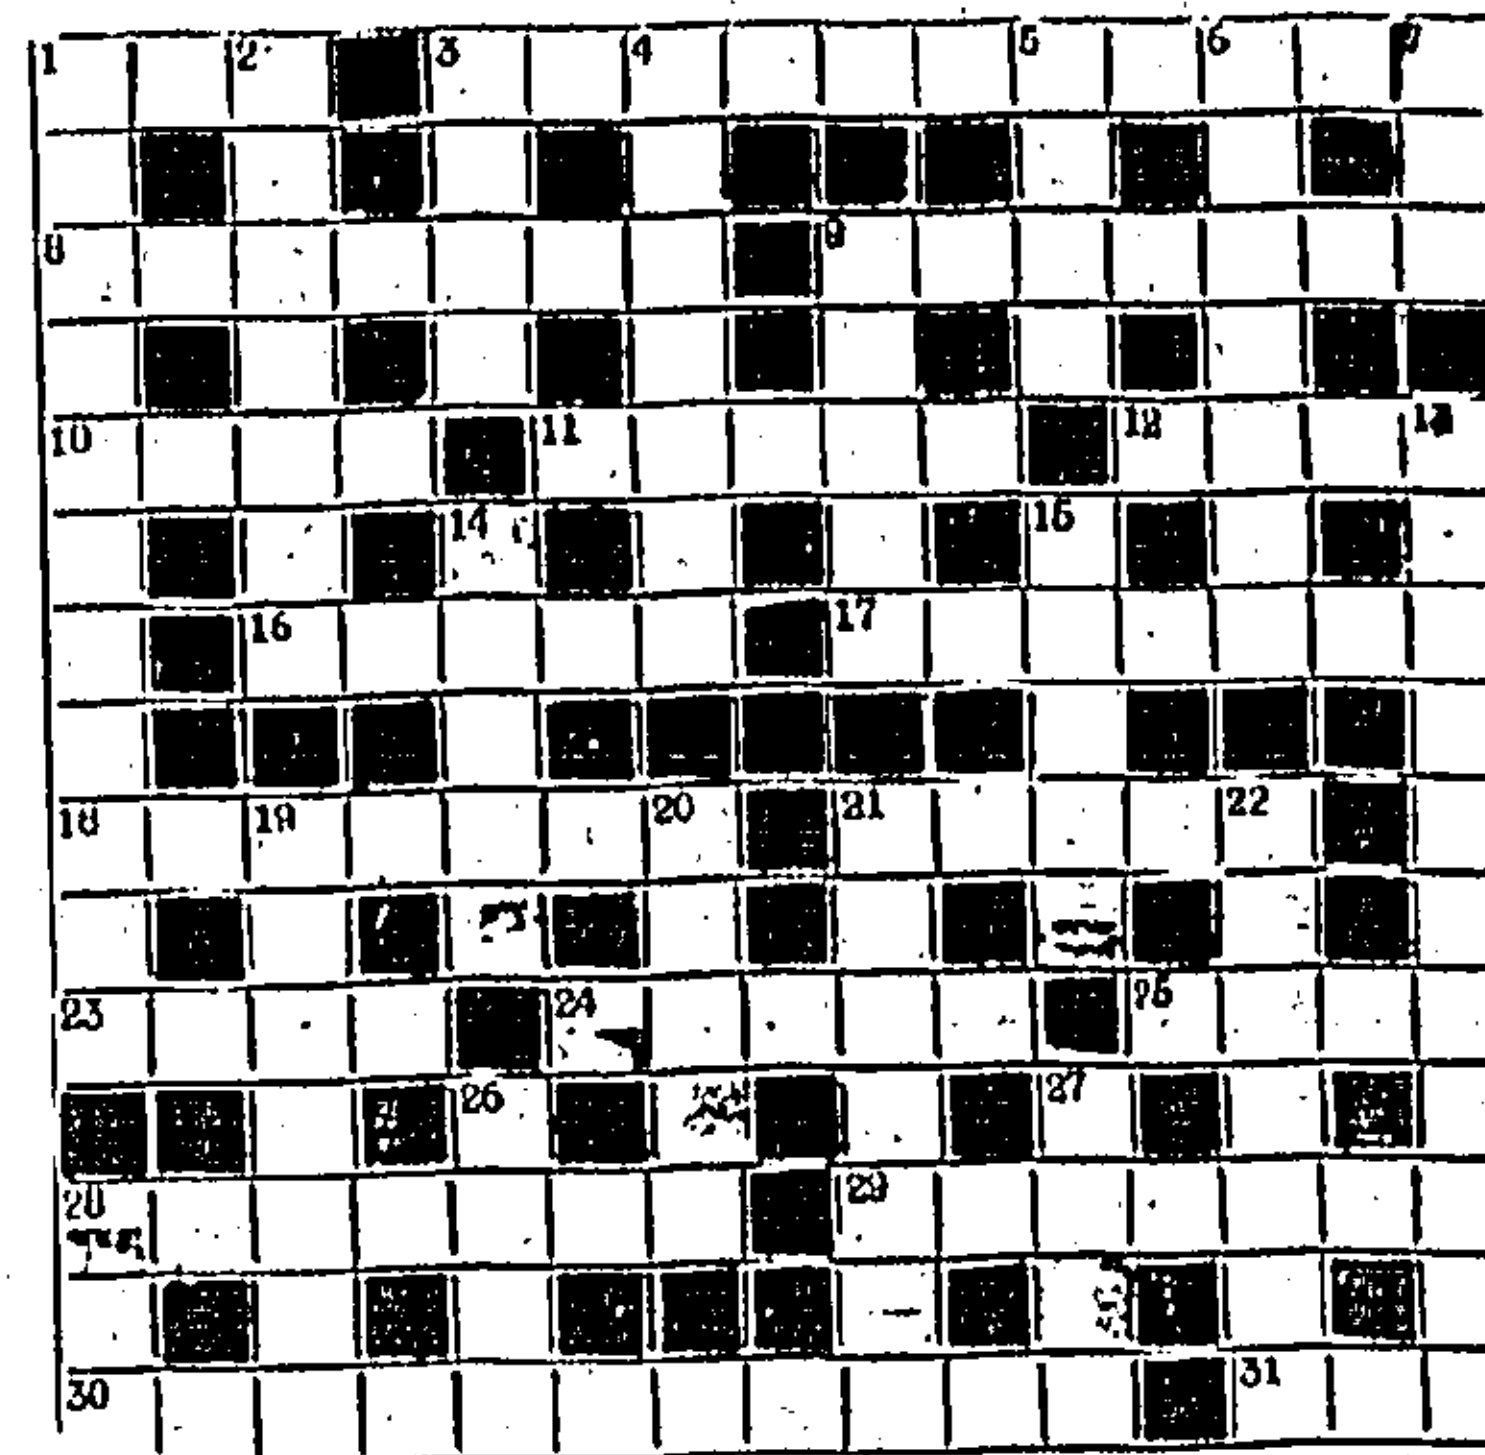

Never rub the scalp too hard. In a new baby not at all. A gentle massaging with the tips of the fingers may be used on the older child to help circulation and loosen the scalp.

Teeth Require Care

And now about the teeth. We are now told to use a small soft tooth brush on the baby's mouth after he has ten teeth. Use it gently up and down. Never irritate the gums. Night and morning are good times. After each meal is still better.

Don't get discouraged if teeth decay in spite of cleaning. They would go faster without it. When first teeth decay have them filled. Watch the "six-year" molars sharply. Get them filled at once if they show signs of going. They don't come in again. The shape of the mouth depends on them.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

CHAPTER XXXVII

"Do you know Barry Townsend?" asked Mona slowly. She came into the cabin and, closing the door, leaned against it. This other girl, this slip of a youngster really, was clasping Barry's picture to her heart as though she loved him.

She seemed scarcely old enough to love anyone. Yet Mona realized she was not too young. Latin races maturing early, had produced this girl who was crooning over the photograph.

"Pardon, Madame?" said Celeste, startled. "Do I know Barry?" A man could have loved this girl, Mona thought, for just that delightful, lingering drawl.

But there were other reasons as well. Celeste was beautiful. She had wound her hair once more with the black and white silk handkerchief. Lottie's simple white silk frock suited her to perfection. "You know my Barry, Madame?" the girl asked again, wondering. "But naturally! Or you would not have had his picture? Or maybe—he was a—movie star?"

"Movie star?" repeated Mona. Relief came over her with a joyous glow. "Then you do not know him? You do not know who he is?"

"I know him," responded the girl assuredly. She set the leather case back again on top of the wardrobe trunk whence she had removed it.

"Where did you see him?" asked Lottie.

"Here," added Mona. "Sit down and don't be afraid. We would like to know where it was you saw Barry Townsend."

The girl hesitated. "I do him no wrong?" she asked carefully. "You are not—"

Celeste's eyes travelled to the ring on Mona's finger.

"His wife?" Mona laughed a little harshly. "No, I am—I am his aunt! Don't be afraid. I have come here in search of Barry and if you can help me find him then you are befriending him. It may be in my power to bring him much wealth."

Celeste sat down slowly. "Yes,"

she said at last, "I will tell you. Why not? Oh, it is nothing! I fell in love with him. Maybe you think I am young?" She drew herself up proudly. "I am sixteen! I met Barry when he went to Barbuda. Hunting. I was there with my father. Barry was there in his what-you-call? Motor sled. Ah yes! He and another gentleman. A dark man. They came to Barbuda—"

"Barbuda?"

"Another island." There was a lifting note in the girl's voice. "Barbuda, where gentlemen go to hunt. Oh, a darling island. Planted—is that correct?—with game. A beautiful place. The ancients who owned it used to breed fine slaves there. Only the loveliest of them remained. The others were sold. For generations the slaves from Barbuda excelled in beauty. They brought high prices."

"Not now!" gasped Mona.

"Of course not now!" responded the girl indifferently. She smiled. "It was there I met Barry."

"And he—made love to you?" asked Lottie.

The girl twisted and looked at her a moment. She smiled winningly. "No."

"Ah," Mona breathed.

"Barry did not make love to me. But I love him. I tried to follow him." She shrugged. "So Maria, my maid, was sent to take me to Barbados. Here I learn English."

"You speak it very well."

"I am learning the English way," the girl said reprovingly.

There was a hue and cry outside and then a shout. Lottie stepped to the door and stood against it.

"It's Maria and a couple of officers. They want Celeste."

"Her parents are on board, aren't they?" asked Mona. "Certainly they are! They came back from the club in the tender when I came. They did not expect the daughter. I recall that they planned to visit her at her school after lunch. Lottie, let her go. They are looking for her."

"But these clothes!" Celeste began wistfully.

AMERICA WELCOMES BEER; BERNARD SHAW IN U.S.

Typical of Broadway's salute to "three-point-two" was this bit of joyous elbow-bending in a New York night club. The stroke of 12 uncapped the golden flow.

Except in California, the former Miss May Scribbs, above, is the new Mrs. Buster Keaton, recently married in Mexico to the solemn-faced screen comic. His divorce from Natalie Talmadge will not be final in California until August.

Crowds who waited in a drizzling rain until one minute after midnight to see a complimentary case of beer delivered to the White House were rewarded as shown here when the brewer's big wagon halted to allow a Marine to pass out free bottles to the celebrants.

Here's George Bernard Shaw in New York—of all places! And granting interviews—of all things! With characteristic bluntness, the Irish dramatist had firmly forewarned both "oracles" when he embarked on his world cruise. But ship news reporters enticed him on deck when he touched at Manhattan for one lecture.

Evidently there's one cameraman who thinks we've looked up to George Bernard Shaw long enough. And this is his view of the Irish playwright and satirist who is always expounding his views of others. The photographer took this angle as Shaw strolled on deck of the Empress of Britain which bore him home from New York after the speech in which he urged Americans to scrap the Constitution, wipe off war debts and provide the leadership to save civilization from BRITISH APPROVAL.

ROOSEVELT'S ATTITUDE WINS ACCLAIM

London, May 23. The British Government feels that the action taken by President Roosevelt is of the highest importance and well calculated to further the success of the two world conferences states the text of Britain's reply to Mr. Roosevelt's message to the nations of the world.

The Government entirely shares Mr. Roosevelt's view on the successful outcome of these conferences and the future happiness and prosperity of the world.

The fact that Mr. Roosevelt places as a first step his programme for the adoption of the Disarmament Convention is regarded as an earnest of the intention of the United States to collaborate at Geneva, pressing for the general adoption of the draft convention as a whole.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

When is it safe to make a penalty double? I don't believe it pays to do so unless you have more than one way of defeating the contract.

For example, if the declarer bids for six odd and it looks as though you have two trump tricks, I don't believe that makes a safe double. You should have another possible trick in your hand.

In other words, don't double a contract unless you feel that you can set the declarer two tricks—then if you do lose one of the tricks you are counting on, you are sure to set the contract. There is no such thing as a free double.

However, don't become discouraged if the declarer occasionally makes a contract which you have doubled, because if you always set the declarer when you double, you are not doubling frequently enough. Take for instance the following hand—West cannot be severely criticised for doubling the contract of six hearts, yet Mrs. H. D. Stahl, the former national women's champion, of Pittsburgh, Pa., made six hearts doubled.

The Bidding

Mrs. Stahl in the South opened with one heart. North put in a jump overall of three clubs which is not only a game-demand bid,

♠K-6-3	♠A	♠A-Q-7-3	♠A-K-8-4-2
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7
♠10-8-2	♠J-9-8-4-2	♠K-8-4	♠10-7

but is also a mild slam invitation. Mrs. Stahl replied with three hearts.

North felt that the only thing that her partner could have to justify a re-bid in hearts was the ace of spades and a strong five or six-card heart suit. North's next bid, therefore, was six hearts, which West doubled.

The Play

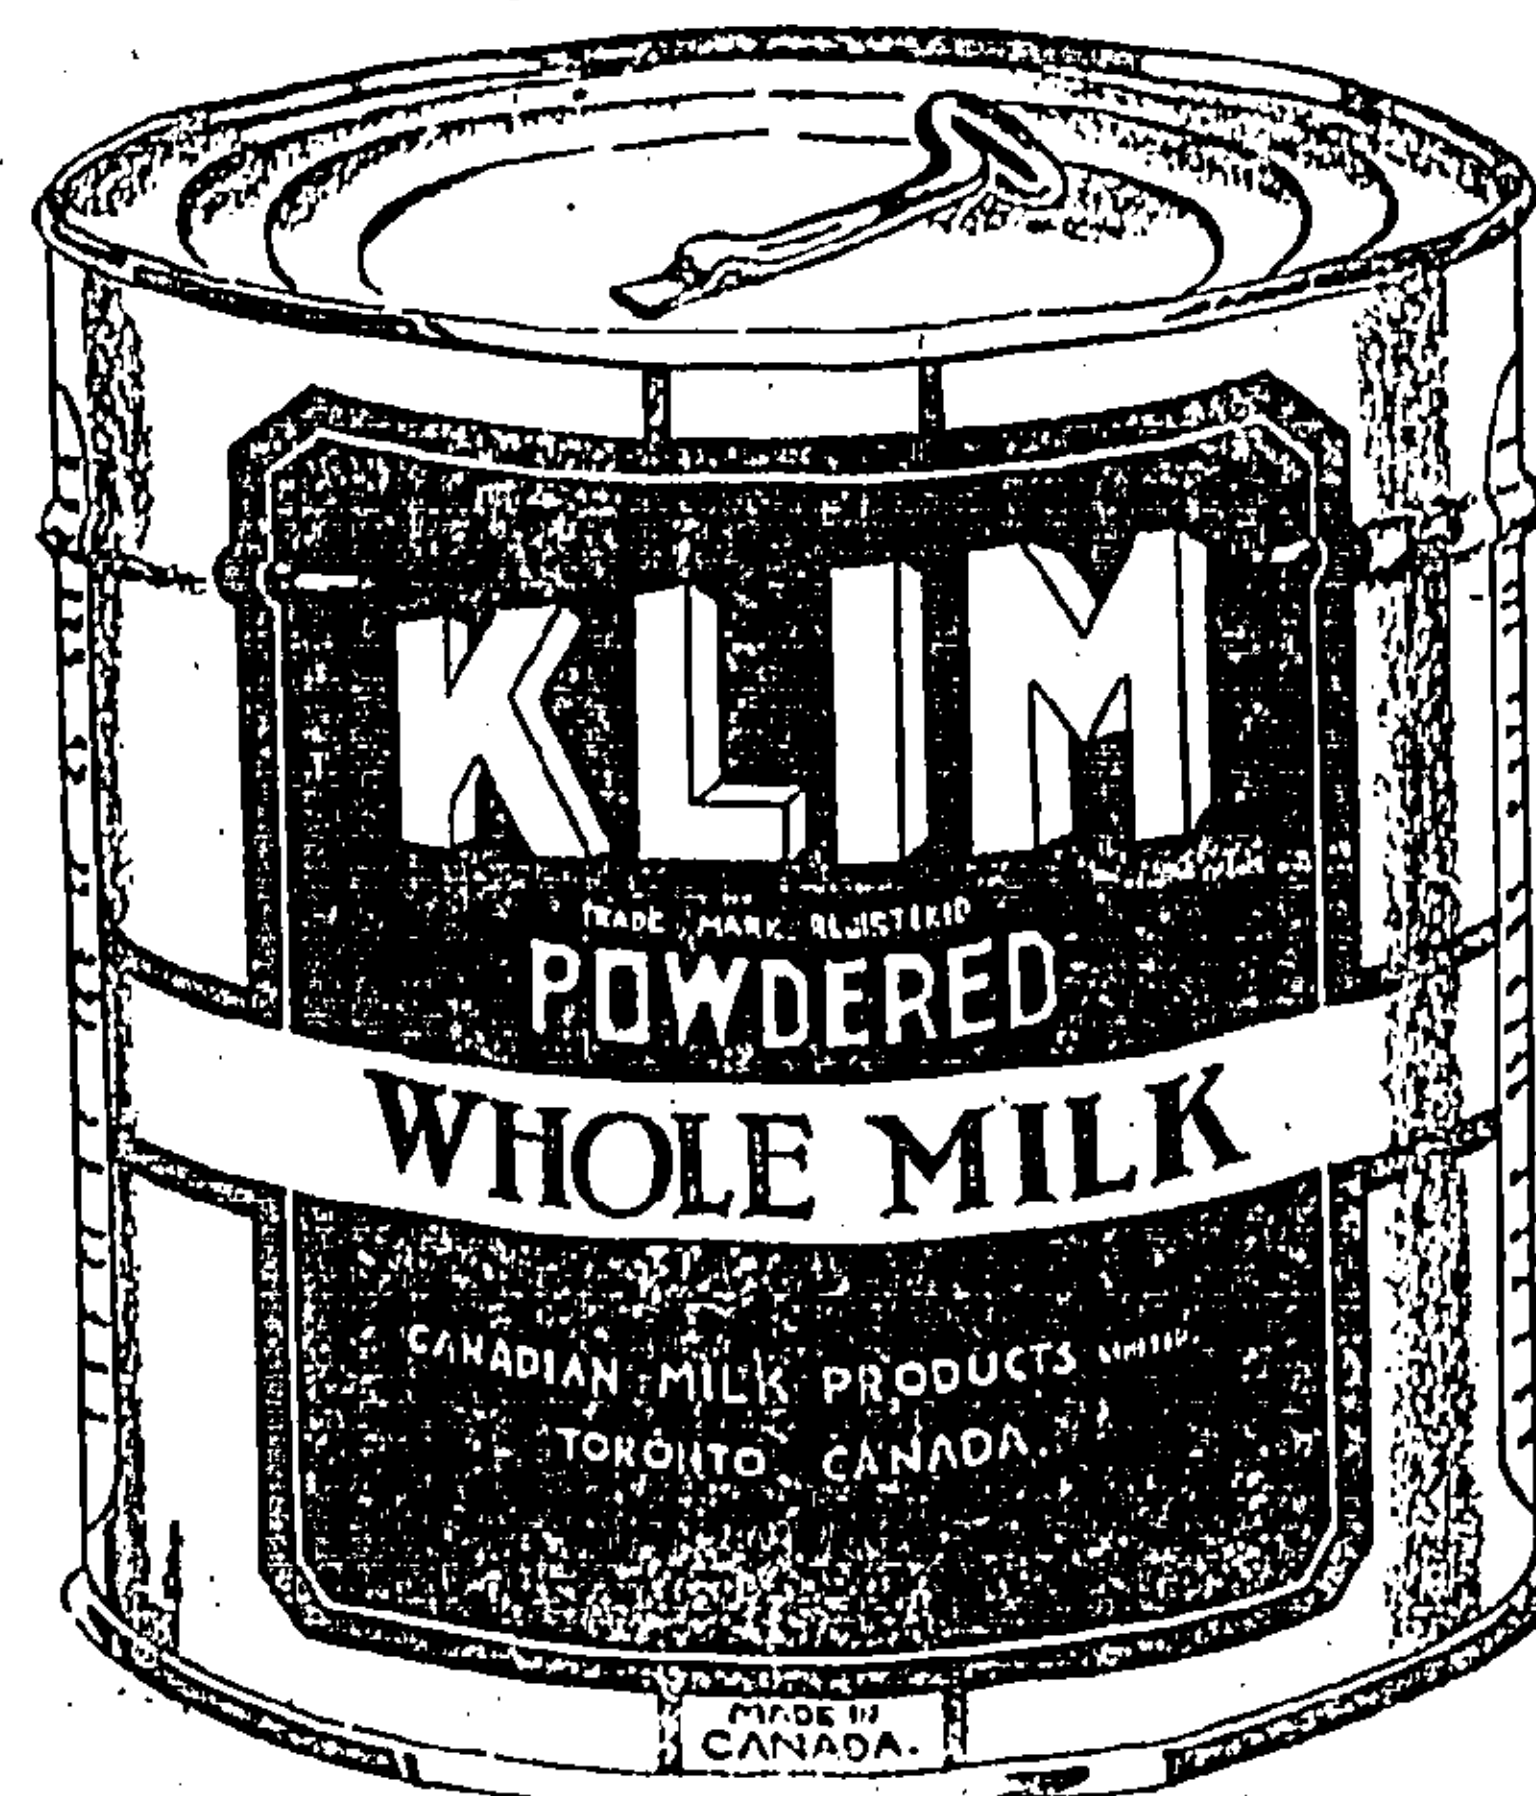

West's opening lead was the ten of clubs, which was won in dummy with the ace. The ace of hearts was played and then a small spade, which the declarer won with the jack.

The king of hearts was then cashed, a small club being discarded from dummy, and East showed out, leaving West with the jack, nine and eight of hearts. Mrs. Stahl still had the queen, ten, six and five of hearts, and it looked as though she might have to lose two heart tricks.

However, she next played her jack of diamonds, West covered and the trick was won with dummy's ace. The queen of diamonds was then played and a small diamond led. Mrs. Stahl trumping with the five of hearts.

The six of clubs was played and won in dummy with the king. Dummy's king of spades was cashed and a small spade led—declarer winning with the ace.

Mrs. Stahl then led the six of hearts, which West was forced to win with the eight. West then had to lead into Mrs. Stahl's ten-ace position, and Mrs. Stahl had successfully made her contract of six odd by applying an end play.

PRESS DEMANDS SAFETY BE GUARANTEED

Paris, May 23.
With few exceptions, the French Press receives Mr. Norman Davis' speech to the Geneva Conference on Disarmament, with reserve. Generally it is stated that France must not abandon the substance for the shadow. There must be no disarmament until the safety of France is amply guaranteed, and in this respect the Davis guarantee is considered meagre.—Reuter.

FORMER WATCHMAN CHARGED.

HAWKER STABBED IN WEST POINT DISTRICT

Trouble between an ex-District Watchman and a former itinerant hawk, which led to a serious stabbing affair in West Point on April 21, had a sequel before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon, when Lau So, formerly a District Watchman, was charged with inflicting grievous bodily injury to Li Chuen. The case is being taken as one for committal.

Detective-Sergeant O'Donovan said that on April 21, about 8.20 p.m., a Chinese detective, accompanied by two friends, was walking up Western Street, when he heard a whistle. He ran forward, and at the same moment the defendant came running up blowing the whistle, and pointed to another man running away. The detective left the defendant in charge of his two friends, gave chase, and soon caught up to the other man, who was the complainant. The complainant was holding his stomach, and appeared to be severely wounded. He told the detective that Lau So, (defendant) had stabbed him.

The detective took complainant to No. 7 Station and there they found defendant, who had also come to make a report that he had been assaulted. The complainant recognised Lau So as the man who had injured him. The defendant also had an incised wound in his index finger. Both men were removed to hospital, and the complainant was operated upon.

A statement was taken from defendant and he admitted having had a fight with complainant, but said he was not the man who had assaulted him. On the morning of April 23 the complainant's condition becoming serious, his dying dispositions were taken, and Lau So was charged the following day.

There was no definite evidence, other than the complainant's statement, that the defendant was the man who injured him. The complainant said that when he was a hawk, the defendant had been aggressive towards him, and meeting him on April 21 he had accused him of that, and struck him. Defendant struck him back and stabbed him. The defendant alleged that there was another man involved.

Evidence was heard, and the hearing was adjourned.

EMPIRE DAY

Unity strengthening in sentiment and a steadily growing sense of fellowship between the diverse nationalities grouped together in the British Commonwealth impart greater reality to the celebration of Empire Day as year succeeds year. Hongkong's special contribution to Empire consciousness—the Trade Fair, which has brought all who owe allegiance and loyal devotion to the Crown into a common effort for the promotion of mutual benefits—is essentially practical in form although, too, it reinforces, in a small way, the moral solidarity which is the Empire's greatest strength. It is peculiarly fitting, therefore, that the Fair should be inaugurated on this day, an occasion for communion with ourselves, a self examination, gathering inspiration and encouragement for the future. And we think we may feel satisfied. Loose talk of the Rise and Fall of the British Empire has frequently been heard from the lips of foreign observers in the last few years but we still go steadily on our way, changing with the times, living by spirit rather than by form. The changes which are taking place, as for instance in India are not steps towards the dissolution of Empire, but towards an increase in the freedom of the parts, securing a permanence of the unity of the whole. As the liberties grow so do the nations and races of the Commonwealth place a greater store by their unity. The world is, in fact, growing to the conviction that it is only by the wide extension of the ideas upon which the Empire is founded that peace will come to the world. And it is the keen realisation of this truth that keeps apparently loosely-knit units together amid all the strain and stresses of the present anything but placid times. It is not merely tradition. Our inheritance is a living thing. This could not have been demonstrated more effectively than it was at Ottawa when the nations of the Commonwealth brought a new spirit to Imperial trade. Nothing very spectacular was accomplished but no-one would question that closer economic ties were welded, that the delegates achieved a wider view of special interests and laid a firm foundation for substantial advances for future conferences. Those of us who have high hopes of a world steadily changing for the better because of its qualities, rather than because it is the seat of eruptions and revolutions, may safely preserve our faith in the vitality of the Empire.

"Biting The Hand That Feeds Them"

Mr. Neville Chamberlain's promise (or threat) contained in his Budget speech has materialised. The Raeburn Committee findings have been accepted and the English Co-Operative Societies are to be further taxed to provide the Exchequer with an additional £750,000 during this year. Already a bitter controversy has raged around the subject, and the Chancellor's insistence will merely serve to kindle the flame of discontent. The imposition, in fact, make well prove the first nail in the coffin of the National Party. Mr. Chamberlain hopes to receive £750,000 from this income tax adjustment. It is a mere pittance. One questions very seriously whether the amount involved is sufficient to override consideration of the strife and bitterness which must result. Politically, and tactically, it is one of the most foolish moves yet made by the National Government. They bite the hand that has fed them. The Co-Operative Societies are not money-making, profit-taking concerns. They are run for the benefit of the members, and any taxation of the profits is direct taxation of the members, which means the working classes. It was these very people who, when an appeal to patriotism was made, put the National Government into power. Apart from its political aspect, there is the question of principle. It is an issue which has always aroused the Tory back-benchers, but as it is also an issue of prime importance affecting the welfare of thousands of workers, antagonism is certain. This, in fact, is indicated by a statement of Co-Operative Union on the subject that "in view of the nature of the Chancellor's statement it is necessary to say at once that any proposal to introduce a money resolution imposing new and specific taxation upon Co-operative Societies would be unjust and inequitable, and could not be accepted as a settlement as suggested by the Chancellor, and must be opposed until defeated, or, if it is adopted, until it is repealed."

America Shows Her True Colours

No more significant illustration of America's attitude to World Peace, since President's Roosevelt's acceptance in principle of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's disarmament proposals, has been given to the world than the announcement made by Mr. Norman Davis yesterday. America has promised, providing she agrees with the verdict of other States, to join them in dealing with belligerent nations who violate their international obligations. This decision may ultimately have far reaching effects on the Far East situation. It means that if the League of Nations decides to adopt pressure to bring about a settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict, then America is bound to join with the League States in their efforts. This is the guarantee the League has always lacked its deliberations on the measures to be taken in the Far East imbroglio, and it is not unreasonable to anticipate pressure of some description if Japan makes no real attempt to effect a settlement in the near future.

TEN DAYS IN GERMANY 1.—THE ONE-DAY BOYCOTT

By MILTON BRONNER

A new German unity. Jew. A new place in the sun. Jew. Bands, parades, and flying Swastika banners. Rumours. Censored newspapers. More rumours. Jew. The usual German courtesy to a foreign traveller. A growing, though unspoken uneasiness, as to the economic effects of the war on Jews, for though the actual boycott lasted but one day, a steady, relentless drive continues in Germany, which, if successful, will render some 600,000 people without a country.

Such is the Germany of Adolf Hitler, as observed on a swing through four principal cities.

It appeared in large black letters on a yellow placard. It was pasted on the window of a tiny vegetable shop on an obscure street in Frankfurt, where I arrived on April 1, boycott day. It might almost have been a cruel April Fool joke. But it wasn't. For in that shop a Jewish widow with four children was trying to eke out a living. And just now business was very bad indeed. Two hefty Nazi Brown Shirts saw to that. Armed with revolvers they guarded the door and warned away all would-be customers. Other guards stood at ease along the curb.

This was the first glimpse of the Hitler action which in one stroke turned back the clock more than a hundred years to the time when the Jews of Frankfurt were compelled to live in the Ghetto. They were locked up every night and were forced to wear yellow armbands, indicative of their race. The Ghetto walls were topped by Napoleon and the Jews began to live outside, contributing greatly to the town's importance as a banking and business centre. The Rothschilds, as well as many families whose descendants played a big part in American banking and business, originally came from Frankfurt.

I wandered about the town. I saw no one arrested, or attacked. No windows were broken. Iron discipline prevailed. The Nazi leaders had passed down the word to remember that if windows were broken and property damaged, it would be the German insurance companies, not the Jews, who would have to pay. So the Jewish merchants showed confidence that the Hitlerites could control their followers when they desired. Though the shops were closed, the show windows were left full of expensive goods which would have been excellent plunder for looters.

The one day boycott revealed in Frankfurt, at least, the immense role Jewish business plays in that town. The leading shopping streets were dead. The Jewish owners chose to close their stores rather than be humiliated by the offensive yellow placards which the Nazi guards were ready to place upon any establishment seeking to do business.

My wife, rather to my disappointment, laughed. It seemed a queer reward for my nobility. "And I, darling," she replied, "one day when you went up to London, planted the round bed with the seeds of beautiful flowers."

On Goethe Platz, in the heart of the town, a Nazi band played Nazi airs. As the day wore on the streets became crowded with curious sight-seers who were out to see what would happen to the Jewish shops. Few Jews, however, were to be seen.

The following morning the Sabbath quiet was broken by the booming of a Nazi band which headed a parade of 500 Nazi troopers who goose-stepped through the town. The Swastika flag flew everywhere.

With the boycott day over, the next step was the appearance of placards announcing certain shops as racially pure German. Meantime, among the saddest people in Frankfurt, were the hotel keepers. Their lobbies were deserted and their rooms empty. There were no Jewish and few foreign travellers. Business was already in a bad way, and the war on Jews had not helped it any.

TOMORROW: Mr. Bronner tells of his visit to Leipzig, one of the greatest fur markets of the world.

SEEDS OF SACRIFICE

We rather pride ourselves upon our garden, my wife and I. Our house, built in the days when men knew how to build, is trellised with climbing roses, clematis, and green creepers that turn to russet in the mellow autumn.

Round about such a house, a rectangular professional gardener's garden would be sacrilegious. So ours is an old-world garden. Part of it is given over to flowers, and part to vegetables. There is no strict dividing-line between the useful and the beautiful.

In the centre of the smaller lawn we dug, at the beginning of the winter, a great round bed. An inviting-looking bed. Over this bed my wife and I had our first "garden-quarrel." I wanted to use it for flowers, while she held that it was in a part of the garden that was intended for vegetables. I rejoined that it was absurd to have vegetables in the middle of a lawn.

In the end we never came to a decision. The subject rankled, and we preferred not to discuss it further. However, I took steps. For many weeks now, when my wife has not been about, I have gone to look at that neat circle of brown earth. I have prodded the soil with my fingers, and turned it over with my foot. Then, as my wife appeared on the garden path, I have drawn guiltily back.

Yesterday, to my delight, the first green shoot appeared. I hurried into the house, and fetched my wife, much wondering, to the spot. "There, my dear," I said. "Never again shall you say that I am not a good husband. Our quarrel rankled bitterly, and, late one night, I yielded to your wishes by planting the seeds of luscious vegetables on this round bed."

My wife, rather to my disappointment, laughed. It seemed a queer reward for my nobility. "And I, darling," she replied, "one day when you went up to London, planted the round bed with the seeds of beautiful flowers."

The Very Idea!

COME TO THE FAIR

By Eddie "Blondie" Kelly.

WE were the one of the enormous gathering which attended the opening of the Empire Fair at noon to-day.

Taking with us three reams of scribbling paper, twelve pencils, four fountain pens, a portable typewriter, a good book, and a few sandwiches, we crept out of the office by the back door!

We crossed to the Ferris on the Star Fair with the rest of the population. How the crowd got there, or how the news leaked out about the Fair we don't know.

Reliable men, with telescopes and spirit-levels, estimate that over 5,000 people visited the Peninsula Hotel.

Speaking of spirit-levels. Pete and us decided to have a drink. Pete has a weakness for German beer.

"I wonder," he remarked in a still small voice, "if anyone's any anything if I have a little here to-day."

Said one of the speakers after the first 45 minutes: "However, I will not keep you long. There are 15 to 20 other speakers who want to talk to you."

Another speaker proceeded to read cablegrams from various parts of the world.

One, from President Roosevelt, speaks for itself.

Mr. J. A. Lyons, the Prime Minister of Australia, sent the following cable:

"EMPIRE FAIR COMMITTEE, HONGKONG.—It's a Fair Cow.—LYONS."

There were other cables, but we found out that some of the exhibits in the refreshment section were free.

After they kicked us out we wandered down to the poultry section. We were getting on rather well with some of the chickens until our hen arrived on the scene.

We believe there were some wonderful exhibits of cars, and radios, and machinery, and things, but we got jammed in the queue at the Wine and Spirits section.

We gathered, just before we left, that the Fair is quite a success, and that they're going to hold one every year.

ARTISTIC.

An artist used to be criticised only by an art critic who discussed perspective and grouping to such an extent that he often didn't bother to look at the catalogue and find out if the picture was a landscape or a still piece of cheese and an onion. But since the spread of cross-word puzzles we have all become cultured enough to visit art galleries, and the artist has to face the professional scorn of people like plumbers, butchers and policemen. We know an artist who recently had completed a picture of a man nursing a dog. Needing some colour, he dressed the man in Elizabethan costume, seated him at a table where a meal was laid, and introduced some snow through an open window at the back.

All the artistic people he knew raved over the colouring and the chiaroscuro, and he finally to hold an exhibition.

One day he was passing it when he saw a man and a girl looking at it, and he hovered round to listen to their praises. But the girl said, "Bill, the bloke who painted that didn't know as much about a parlourmaid's job as I do. He's got the knives and forks on the wrong sides."

Presently he got into the habit of hanging round the picture to see what people said about it. The next was a doctor, who knew him. "Old man," said the doctor, "I don't like the look of that fellow there. He's got ossified kidneys, softening of the liver, housemaid's knee, and tennis elbow. I wouldn't give him six months. I can tell the symptoms at a glance."

Then an antique dealer sarcastically inquired how a Chippendale chair managed to get itself invented two centuries before Chippendale was born.

Finally we took a friend who is a well-known dog fancier to see it. He looked at the dog and shuddered. He said that whatever breed it was supposed to be, its eyes were too small, its knees were crooked, it evidently had distemper, and ought to be destroyed on the spot.

At that the artist took the thing home. He altered the man into a little blue-eyed girl in a pink frock, and the dog into a woolly baalamb, with a background of green fields. Then he called it "Spring." We don't expect he will have any more trouble with it.

"Great guns, man, I thought you meant four in the afternoon!"

Secretary of the Fair Committee. The party proceeded between the ranks of a Guard of Honour of Girl Guides and Boy Scouts to the official dais on the first floor. The Chairman was supported on the dais, on the right, by H.E. the Governor, the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government (Mr. Liu Yun-koy), H.B.M. Acting Consul-General (Mr. E. G. Jamieson, C.B.E.), Mr. J. A. Tonkin (representing the Department of Commerce of the Australian Commonwealth Government), Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga (Vice-Chairman) and principal organiser of the Fair Committee. On the left were Lady Peel, the Mayor of Canton (Mr. Liu Chi-wen) and Mrs. Liu Chi-wen, Major V. E. Dulos (Canadian Trade Commissioner in Hongkong), Mr. S. T. Williamson (Hon. Agent for New Zealand) (Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G. (Vice-Chairman).

BRITANNIA TABLEAU.

A tableau, representing Britannia was staged behind the dais. Those attending the opening ceremony included H.E. the Governor, Mr. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., C.B.E., and Mrs. Borrett, H.H. the Chief Justice and Mrs. J. R. Wood, representatives of the Consular Body, officials from Canton, the Commodore and Mrs. Marrack, members of the Executive Council, Government officials, members of the General Committee of the Fair, exhibitors and the general public.

MR. PATERSON'S WELCOME.

Addressing the gathering, the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson said: "Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen: The first Empire Fair in Hongkong, held a year ago, though it called for a great deal of work from the organisers, was smaller than the Fair we present to you to-day. We made the Opening Ceremony a local affair. I believe His Majesty's Consul-General at Canton was the only visitor from the outside world. When we found, however, that we were going to put up a show four or five times as large as before, covering an area of over an acre, we felt that we need not be quite so modest. Seeing that the Empire Fair is a show today are all intended for the great market of South China, we invited the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, Mr. Lin Yun-koy; the Mayor of Canton, Mr. Liu Chi-wen and Mrs. Liu Chi-wen; the Inspector-General for Foreign Affairs for Kwangtung, Mr. Kan Chieh-hou; the Commissioner of Public Safety, General Ho Lok; the Counsellor to the 1st Group Army Headquarters, Colonel C. W. Leung; the Municipal Commissioner, Mr. W. S. Lam; the Mayor of Canton, Mr. Liu Chi-wen and Mrs. Liu Chi-wen; the Secretary to the Canton Government, Mr. Chow Hok-tong and the Secretary to the Commissioner of Public Safety, Mr. W. S. Lam, to attend our hospitality and be present here to-day."

GOVERNOR'S INTEREST.

Therefore it is my privilege this morning in the first place, to welcome His Excellency the Governor, who has taken the greatest interest in this project and who kindly promised some months ago to perform the Opening Ceremony. Secondly, as this is, I think, the first large gathering which Lady Peel has attended since her recent illness, I am sure you would wish me to express on your behalf our congratulations on her recovery and our pleasure that she is here to grace the occasion.

Next I wish to thank, in the name of the General Committee of the Empire Fair, the Chairman of the Kwangtung Provincial Government, the Mayor of Canton and the other distinguished Ladies and Gentlemen from Canton who have honoured us to-day by accepting our invitation to the Fair. We trust that what they see here will be of great interest to them and that their visit will further strengthen the friendly relations between South China and Hong Kong.

COMMITTEE'S THANKS.

As the Fair has so greatly outgrown even the large amount of space which the Hotel Company has so generously placed at our disposal, I have to express my regret that it is impossible to provide seats for all who are present. The best remedy I can make is to be brief. Let me therefore extend a cordial welcome to His Majesty's Acting Consul-General at Canton, Mr. Jamieson and to our local guests. In particular I wish to take this opportunity of expressing, in all sincerity, grateful thanks to the hundreds of workers and exhibitors for their support. I want also to thank Mr. Taggart and the Directors of the Hongkong & Shanghai Hotels Ltd. for their invaluable assistance, the general public for their attendance and to express the hope that "dividend warrants" will soon be ready in the shape of a large increase of British trade as the result of this Fair.

I will now call upon Major V. E. Dulos, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Hongkong, to read a message from the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of the Department of Trade and Commerce of the Dominion of Canada.

CANADA'S MESSAGE.

Major Dulos then read the following message from The Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister, Department of Trade & Commerce, of the Canadian Government:—
The Dominion of Canada cordially associates itself with the Opening of the Empire Fair by participating in the British Empire Fair which is opening to-day. It is gratifying to the Canadian Government, and particularly to myself, as Minister of Trade and Commerce, that Canada has been accorded such excellent facilities for thus displaying before the citizens of Hong Kong and South China samples of her natural products and manufactures, with a view to further extending inter-imperial trade between these two sections of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is particularly fitting that this Fair should open on May 24th, the anniversary of the "Mother of the Empire", the late Queen Victoria and a day celebrated throughout the British Empire as indicative of its solidarity and its devotion to the Crown.

MUCH IN COMMON.

The Crown Colony of Hong Kong and the Dominion of Canada have much in common. It was in 1841, during the reign of Queen Victoria, that Hong Kong became a Crown Colony and began to flourish under the Union Jack. It was in the same year that Canada had its first democratic government. Direct steamship services between Canada and Hong Kong provide a means of greatly increasing the volume of trade between, and linking closer together, these at one time distant parts of the Empire. Their products and manufactures are to a large extent complementary, and it is to the advantage of both countries that this trade should be considerably increased. Hong Kong is at the spearhead of a large and practically unexploited trade territory which will, when the existing difficulties have passed, provide Hong Kong with a market for many of Canada's products and which in return may provide many of Canada's wants.

UNEXCELLED FACILITIES.

It is natural that Hong Kong, due to its location and the unexcelled facilities offered by its harbour, should serve as a centre of distribution for Canadian products which will eventually be consumed in the Southern part of the Chinese Republic. It is our hope that the importers of Hong Kong will give the fullest consideration to the opportunities offered to them by Canadian producers.

It was with the object of promoting greater trade between Canada and this territory that the appointment of a Trade Commissioner was made in 1929. It is to the advantage of Hong Kong importers to prepare for the future. Canada can provide them with many of their requirements and since it is to their advantage to cultivate a trading partnership with that Dominion.

I congratulate the Chairman and Committee on their efforts to make the Fair a success and feel sure that they will be fully justified by the results obtained.

NEW ZEALAND'S THANKS.

Mr. S. T. Williamson read the following message from Mr. Masters, the Minister of Industries and Commerce in the New Zealand Government:—Please express best wishes of the New Zealand Government for the success of the Empire Fair and appreciation of the efforts of Government, committee, hotel company and others to further Empire trade. Please express our thanks for the assistance rendered to New Zealand in this connection.

AUSTRALIA'S MESSAGE.

Mr. J. A. Tonkin delivered the following message from the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth Government of Australia:—On behalf of the Commonwealth Government, I wish the Empire Fair every success and hope it will mark the opening of new avenues of Empire trade. Appreciation is expressed to the Government of Hong Kong for the encouragement and assistance in launching the Fair, and to the Fair Committee, the Hotel Company, the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, and these organisations and associations whose activities have been responsible for this display of Empire products. Your Fair will be successful and beneficial to all British and Dominion participants.—Lyons, Prime Minister.

THE GOVERNOR'S SPEECH.

Formally declaring the Fair open, H.E. the Governor said:—Mr. Paterson, Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen: I am very pleased to have the privilege to-day of opening the second Empire Fair. Fair held in Hong Kong. As you know, the idea was started last year as the outcome of a letter addressed by Mrs. Amery, the wife of a former Secretary of State for the Colonies, to my wife, in which among other things she suggested an all-British food day. The proposal to have an Empire Products Fair was taken up with great enthusiasm. My wife assisted in the preliminary stages, but to our regret we were unable to be here for the Fair itself. We were however greatly interested in the accounts which were sent to us. There was no doubt that it was a great triumph, and I take this opportunity of congratulating all those who helped to achieve that triumph. It was indeed so successful that it was quite rightly decided that another Fair should be held this year, and there is no need for me to say that that decision has been amply justified, and that this year's Fair will greatly surpass that of last year.

ON THE MAP.

Such Fairs have been instituted in many parts of the Empire. The British Industries Fair was started in a modest way in London soon after the War, and has grown to be of the greatest commercial value. Another Fair of the same kind has been held at Birmingham for the last fourteen years and yearly gains increasing popularity. Many of the colonies participate in that held in London. Fiji being one of the latest notable additions; and I hope that at no distant date Hong Kong will be able to participate, showing the people at home that this Colony is developing valuable industries of its own.

In a recent edition of a very interesting journal called "The Crown Colonies", I noticed in a map showing the various sources of Empire products that Hong Kong was marked "Local industries and trans-shipment for China". A few years ago the words "local industries" would probably not have been written, Hong Kong then being considered very little more than a mere transit port. Industries are now growing up in this Colony, one of the most notable perhaps of recent ventures being the brewing of beer! Only recently I was informed by the head of a well known Hong Kong firm that they had a very large order from England for rubber shoes manufactured here. These Fairs are great factors in the commercial life of the Empire, and help to make us realise changes in the great Empire is capable of producing. It is wonderful how little many of us know of its great resources. I had an opportunity of visiting the Fair in London in 1928, and I must confess to great surprise at many of the things I saw there.

HIGH POSITION.

The British Empire has held a high position in trade, but owing perhaps to over-confidence has tended to sink in a slough of complacency. In spite of considerable technical advances in industry, where we really have to some extent failed in actual trading.

We have been inclined to stand on a past reputation of the excellence of our goods, which has always been high and have been extraordinarily unwilling to investigate changes in demand. Suppliers seem to hold the view that they should decide on what the consumer should take, ignoring the advice that he who pays the piper has the right to call the tune. This tendency, as far as the Far East is concerned, was recognised by the Economic Mission which visited the Far East over two years ago, and also by Mr. Beale, now Commercial Counsellor to our Peking Legation, who drew attention to it in a report which he wrote on trade in Malaya some years ago, when I first met him there. There is no doubt that many of our large suppliers have followed for untold years, and have not appreciated the necessity of studying their markets. I think that I can truthfully say that great improvements have now been made in our methods. The quality of our goods has always been of a high standard and with a better realisation of the special needs and desires of our customers I feel that there is every prospect of a considerable increase in trade. If however suppliers wish to achieve a maximum of success I think that they should employ what I might term, special Trade Commissioners of their own to carry out a continuous investigation of the needs and desires of those whose custom they wish to retain and develop.

BRITISH COMMISSIONER.

At the same time I must say that I think that it is time that we had something in the nature of a British Trade Commissioner here to represent the Home Country and those parts of the Empire which are not at present represented, and I am in hopes that such an appointment may materialise in the not far distant future.

Major Dulos, the Canadian Trade Commissioner, has been with us for some time, and I congratulate him on the success which he has made of his appointment. I also would like to offer him our special thanks for the very great assistance he has given both at last year's Fair and this Fair. He has indeed been a tower of strength.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

HOPE IS THE BEST POSSESSION.
NONE ARE COMPLETELY WRETCHED BUT THOSE WHO ARE WITHOUT HOPE.
—Hazlitt.

The fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board was held yesterday, with Mr. T. Mcgregor, the President, in the chair. Others present were the Hon. Mr. A. G. W. Tickle, Vice-President, Dr. G. W. Pope, M. O. H., Mr. F. C. Hall, Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. C. Champkin, Mr. C. J. Roe, Secretary, and Mr. Ng Muk-kei, assistant secretary. A letter from the Government relative to the appointment of the Hon. Mr. A. G. W. Tickle to be Vice-President of the Board was approved, and the appointment of Mr. G. Champkin to serve on the Select Committee for Colonial Cemetery and Landmarks, in place of Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy, was confirmed. The other business was purely formal.

Two leasehold properties, Nos. 10 and 20, Leighton Hill Road, included in the estate of the late Mr. Shalk Cassin Ismail, were put up for sale in Messrs. Hughes & Hough's auction rooms yesterday by order of the Official Trustee, but were withdrawn, as a satisfactory advance on the upset price of $10,000 for each lot was not secured.

During the past week, three cases of smallpox, with four deaths, one case of diphtheria with one death, three cases of typhoid, six cases of meningitis with five deaths, and one case of purpural fever were reported to the local health authorities. Of the small-pox cases, two were from the Victoria district and one from the New Territories. On Monday, one case of diphtheria was also reported. Deaths from tuberculosis, last week totalled 63.

TO THE ORGANISERS.

We greatly appreciate the friendly message from the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of the Department of Trade and Commerce in Canada, which Mr. Major Dulos has just read. It is a message which indicates that true Empire spirit and desire for co-operation at the development of which we should all aim. I think there is a great deal to be done in fostering trade between Hong Kong and Canada, and I agree with Mr. Stevens that we have many interests in common. I passed through Canada on my way home last year but had very little time to study conditions there. I was impressed however in particular by three products which I thought could with advantage be exported on a larger scale to Hong Kong, namely motor-cars, fruit and beer. However with the establishment of a local brewery perhaps I had better not extol the value of Canadian liquor!

ADVERTISING BRITISH GOODS.

Trade between Australia and New Zealand and this Colony is growing, and I congratulate Mr. Williamson, who has acted as honorary agent for those Dominions, on this successful development. I also thank him for his valuable assistance in connection with this Fair.

We greatly appreciate the friendly messages from Australia and New Zealand which he and Mr. Tonkin have just conveyed to us. I take this opportunity of welcoming to Hong Kong Mr. Tonkin who has just arrived as the representative of the Commonwealth of Australia.

In the matter of advertising, too, we British have been behind other nations. Lulled perhaps by an excessive feeling of confidence and faith in our own products and achievements, we have tended to consider it unnecessary to advertise and push these products. In these days however it must be conceded that if we are to capture the markets, it is necessary to advertise our goods.

In opening this Fair to-day, I appeal for greater support for British products, and in that term of course I include the products of this—British—Colony. The number of unemployed at home and in other parts of the Empire is very large, due partly to economic depression and partly to the fact that new inventions often diminish the need for man power. It is necessary therefore, in order to cope with this problem, to develop to the full the resources of the Empire. Team work is called for and we should realise that in supporting British industries we make a valuable contribution to the solution of a difficult imperial problem. It is essential however that such industries should be efficient and economical and not allow themselves to be lulled into a wrong sense of security under the impression that if the whole Empire will buy British-made goods things will become easy and less effort be necessary.

TARIFF QUESTION.

Our great Empire must be nearly self-supporting, and certainly should be capable of being made so. In spite of the tradition of free trade, we have been driven to some extent to tariffs, but there is a school, and a very powerful one, which is not satisfied that that is the proper line to follow. At all events I have no hesitation in saying that the imposition of tariffs must not be allowed to interfere with efficiency and economy in production. Fundamentally it is most important that we should learn to produce goods which can compete successfully with similar goods of other countries, and at an economic price to the consumer. Tariffs would be entirely bad if they were to militate against this.

Hong Kong, while undoubtedly growing industrially, is still mainly a transit port, and there is no doubt in my mind that tariffs would do more harm than good. It would be fatal to impose tariffs to help one or two industries, if by surrendering the principle which we have followed for many years we were to ruin the main trade of the port.

None of it must be remembered that this Colony is not, except to a small extent, a primary producer and that in regard to its industries it is largely dependent on imported material. In these circumstances I need hardly stress the danger and difficulty of tariffs.

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

I have not yet had an opportunity of seeing the exhibits to-day, but from what I have learnt there is no doubt that this Fair affords considerable evidence of what can be obtained from Empire sources, and also what this Colony is capable of producing.

I am very glad that there is such a fine exhibit of produce from the New Territories, and I trust that substantial purchases will be made. One cannot but be struck by the great industry and ability of the local agriculturist in producing what he does. The Territories have long been noted for producing some of the finest rice in the world, and to-day they are able to produce many varieties of fruit and vegetables, but more requires to be done in the direction of proper marketing, and I should like to see the principles of co-operation developed in this respect. It has been proved that pineapples can be successfully grown, and I should like to see an up-to-date canning factory for this form of fruit developed in the Colony. To compete however with the canned products of other countries such as Hawaii and Malaya improved methods must be introduced, and new strains imported.

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

The industrial tendency is undoubtedly growing in this Colony, and in spite of the slump and the fact that some factories have had to close

It would take too long to mention by name the many residents who have helped towards the organisation of the Fair, but I desire especially to thank the Directors of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels for again allocating to the Fair such a large amount of space in the Peninsula Hotel. Mr. Taggart has helped in innumerable ways towards the successful organisation of the Fair, and the Hotel staff has co-operated in every possible way.

PRIME MOVERS.

The Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson has ably presided over meetings, but on the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga and his sons, Mr. H. Braga and Mr. A. M. Braga, has fallen the brunt of the work of organisation of exhibit, to which they have given a great deal of their time for months past. In this they have been supported by Mr. Key as honorary Secretary. The Military authorities have greatly assisted the Committee to keep down expenses by lending a considerable quantity of military equipment which has been used for the erection of stalls. In this connection I would especially mention the help of Mr. Borrett, Mrs. Kinnaird Watson, Mrs. Hoare and the numerous ladies who are working under their leadership. The organisers of the several sections—the list is again too long to permit of individual mention—deserve our thanks.

The necessity of building two large pavilions on the adjoining land has involved special electrical difficulties, in handling which the China Light and Power Co., Messrs. Callender's Cable and Construction Co. Ltd., and Messrs. Wm. C. Jack & Co., have most helpfully collaborated in a way that has placed the Committee under a great obligation. To-night you will see the attractive lighting effects which have been installed.

The Telephone Company has gone to considerable expense and trouble to install the Public Address System which greatly helps speakers in this large building, and will doubtless be found useful to exhibitors for broadcasting announcements within the Exhibition area.

Several firms and Public Companies—both British and Chinese—have given transport facilities and many more have distributed advertisements all over the Colony. All the English newspapers, and several Chinese newspapers, have rendered essential assistance by placing their columns freely at the disposal of the Committee. I may perhaps conclude this incomplete resume by thanking the many exhibitors on whose combined support the Fair depends.

CANTON VISITORS WELCOMED.

I extend a very hearty welcome to H.E. Mr. Lin Yun-koy and our other Canton friends, who have done us the honour of coming here to-day to attend this Fair. Their presence here affords further proof of the excellent relations which exist between Canton and this Colony. This Fair is primarily held on behalf of British products, but many of these, I am happy to say, are purchased by Canton. In some things there is a healthy trade rivalry between Canton and Hong Kong, but speaking generally our interests are closely interwoven, and the prosperity of the one is largely dependent on the prosperity of the other. It is a matter for congratulation therefore that the friendship between the two places is so happily maintained.

I have much pleasure in declaring the Fair open and in wishing it great success.

Following the ceremony, the Chairman entertained H.E. the Governor, Lady Peel and a large number of the official guests to luncheon in the Roof Garden.

SALE OF WORK

ASSISTING HONGKONG'S FEMALE PRISONERS

The Hongkong Female Prisoners' Industrial Sale of Work took place at the Union Church, Kowloon, yesterday afternoon. The opening ceremony was performed by Mrs. F. A. Hopkins.

The Rev. Dr. E. L. Allen, as chairman, said: "There are just two duties I have to perform as chairman. The first is to express our very genuine regret at the enforced absence of Mrs. Southern. It would have been a great pleasure to have had Mrs. Southern with us this afternoon, not only for her own sake but because of the interest she has taken in this work. She was very largely the prime mover in the effort to do something of this kind among the women prisoners, and though her time in the Colony is short before she goes home, yet she was particularly anxious to have been present at this Sale. We are very sorry she is not with us, but we are grateful to Mrs. Hopkins for taking her place. I will read the short address Mrs. Southern sent along."

Dr. Allen then read Mrs. Southern's address, as follows:

Mrs. Southern's Message.

It is a matter of great regret to me that indisposition prevents me coming this afternoon to open this sale of work, and I am very grateful to Mrs. Hopkins for deputising for me. Since the idea of giving the women prisoners some occupation in their leisure time was favourably entertained by Mr. Franks, excellent work has been achieved—the practical proof of it will be on view this afternoon. The articles represent the voluntary work of women prisoners. The work is not allowed to interfere in any way with prison routine or with the labour due from the women as prisoners. It is done in those leisure hours which uneducated women prisoners would otherwise pass in stolid inactivity. It was financed originally by private subscription. The proceeds of the sale go to buy fresh materials for the women to work on, and any little surplus goes to a fund administered by the Superintendent of Prisons for the benefit of discharged women prisoners.

Only those who saw the women before any outside interest had been taken in them can realise the value of the enterprise. Those people who comfort themselves with the reflection that "stone walls do not a prison make nor iron bars a cage," have probably never seen the inside of a jail nor the dejection of women prisoners given an hour's leisure with no means of occupying it. The same type of person writes to the papers when a suggestion is made for the improvement of the prisoners' lot and says it is no use turning prisons into Ritz Hotels. Sensible people do not want to make prisons attractive, but they want to make it a means of improving the prisoner. Idleness can never lead to improvement, and one feels that the mere fact that these women have been taught handicrafts and reading and writing may be an asset to them in the future—irrespective of the fact that they feel there are people who are interested in their welfare.

Desire To Learn.

These women have an intense desire to learn—and that in itself should be accounted a virtue. Maude Roydon says "this desire to know is a divine thing."

To those who have devoted so many hours during the past year to the welfare of the women prisoners I want to pay a high tribute. Mrs. Franks, who is away on leave, has taken an unflinching interest in the enterprise sponsored by Mr. Franks, and we are very glad that Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins are continuing that interest. From the very beginning Miss Atkins and her helpers have given untiringly of their slender leisure to the women. They or-taking the girl by the shoulders. "Can you tell us where Barry is now?"

"Holiday Island, I think. That is where—"

"Where is Holiday Island?" asked Lottie sharply.

"I don't know. It was an island, that's all. Barry bought it—"

"Celeste!" roared her father outside the door. "Are you there?"

Come out. No more nonsense!"

"You may have the dress," Lottie said hurriedly. Unbuckling her wrist watch, she added, "And this."

She motioned Mona to be still, took Barry's picture from the frame, slid it between the pages of a magazine and put it in the girl's arms. The hurry and flurry outside had subsided. The searchers were exploring the crew's quarters.

"Come with me," Lottie said. "I'll take you down this way and get a boat for you. Maybe the quartermaster won't recognize you. Come!"

The quartermaster preferred not to recognize the crestfallen young lady who hung on Lottie's arm and grasped a magazine convulsively. Lottie secured a boat, gave the oarsmen two shillings and bade him move off.

She watched while the little bark bobbed its way to the quay. "Now," she said to the quartermaster, "take this message to Celeste's father and that nurse. Tell them Mademoiselle has gone ashore."

Mona met her with a white face. "Look here," Lottie began without waiting for her to speak, "if you are going to faint at every girl who is in love with Barry down here you'd better get a grip on yourself. That kid has a high school crush on Barry. She admits he didn't care for her and he probably didn't even know she was around. You know what men are when they go hunting."

"I know what pretty French girls are when they go hunting!" returned Mona. "And you gave her his picture!"

"You can get a dozen others by cabling and having them sent by mail. Sallie would attend to it, or Mrs. Faxon. I gave her the portrait to get rid of her because she gave us quite a tip."

ganised the work originally and they must be gratified at the remarkable results of their devotion and instruction. To many of the women handicrafts were entirely unknown.

We are very glad to welcome back Mrs. Maitland, one of our most practical workers. Mrs. Kotewall gave very practical advice on the inauguration of the work. Miss Woo and her staff gave us welcome aid in the beginning, but when the women's jail was moved to Lai-chi-kok it became necessary to obtain some helpers in Kowloon. Mrs. Short and her friends stepped into the breach nobly and are proving a tower of strength to the work. Apart from these helpers we owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. H. Green, who made it possible even in the constricted space of Victoria Jail for the women to grow a few flowers.

I wish the sale all success and the workers a continuance of their splendid efforts.

Sale Declared Open.

Mrs. Hopkins then declared the sale open, and was presented with a delightful basket of red and white carnations.

Mr. Hopkins thanked Dr. Allen for his kind remarks, and also thanked the ladies who were present for so kindly attending the sale. The ladies who visit the prison were also thanked for their good work.

We can charter a plane there and fly to Holiday. It's easy!"

"We may have passed Holiday Island," Mona suggested.

"Yes; but if we charter a plane we can fly back or down or across—wherever we must go—in no time!" Mona nodded miserably.

"I'm glad I brought you along, Lottie," she said meekly.

"Listen, Mona. I'm as anxious to see that dark-haired friend of Barry's as you are to find Barry."

"Are you in love with Steve?"

"Maybe. That remains to be seen! Come on, let's have tea."

The evening dragged. The girls went to the dance at the Aquatic Club to make the time pass more quickly. At midnight the party returned to the Miranda and at one o'clock she had cleared for Port of Spain.

But at Port of Spain Lottie and Mona, in the kindly guidance of young Dr. Allen, failed to find the man who they hoped would direct them to Holiday Island. He had gone fishing at Gasparee and would not be back for several days.

"Then we'll stay several days," Mona decided.

They drove back to the quay for their baggage, took it through the customs and found a taxi.

"Let's drive through the park," suggested the doctor, smiling. "It is going to cost us the large sum of 12 cents!"

They drove up Frederick street and, skirting the Savanna, drew up at the Queen's Park Hotel.

"Tea," said Lottie, indicating the cool open lobby which looked out on spreading saman trees. "I'm famished. Why, great heavens! Mona, do you see what I see?"

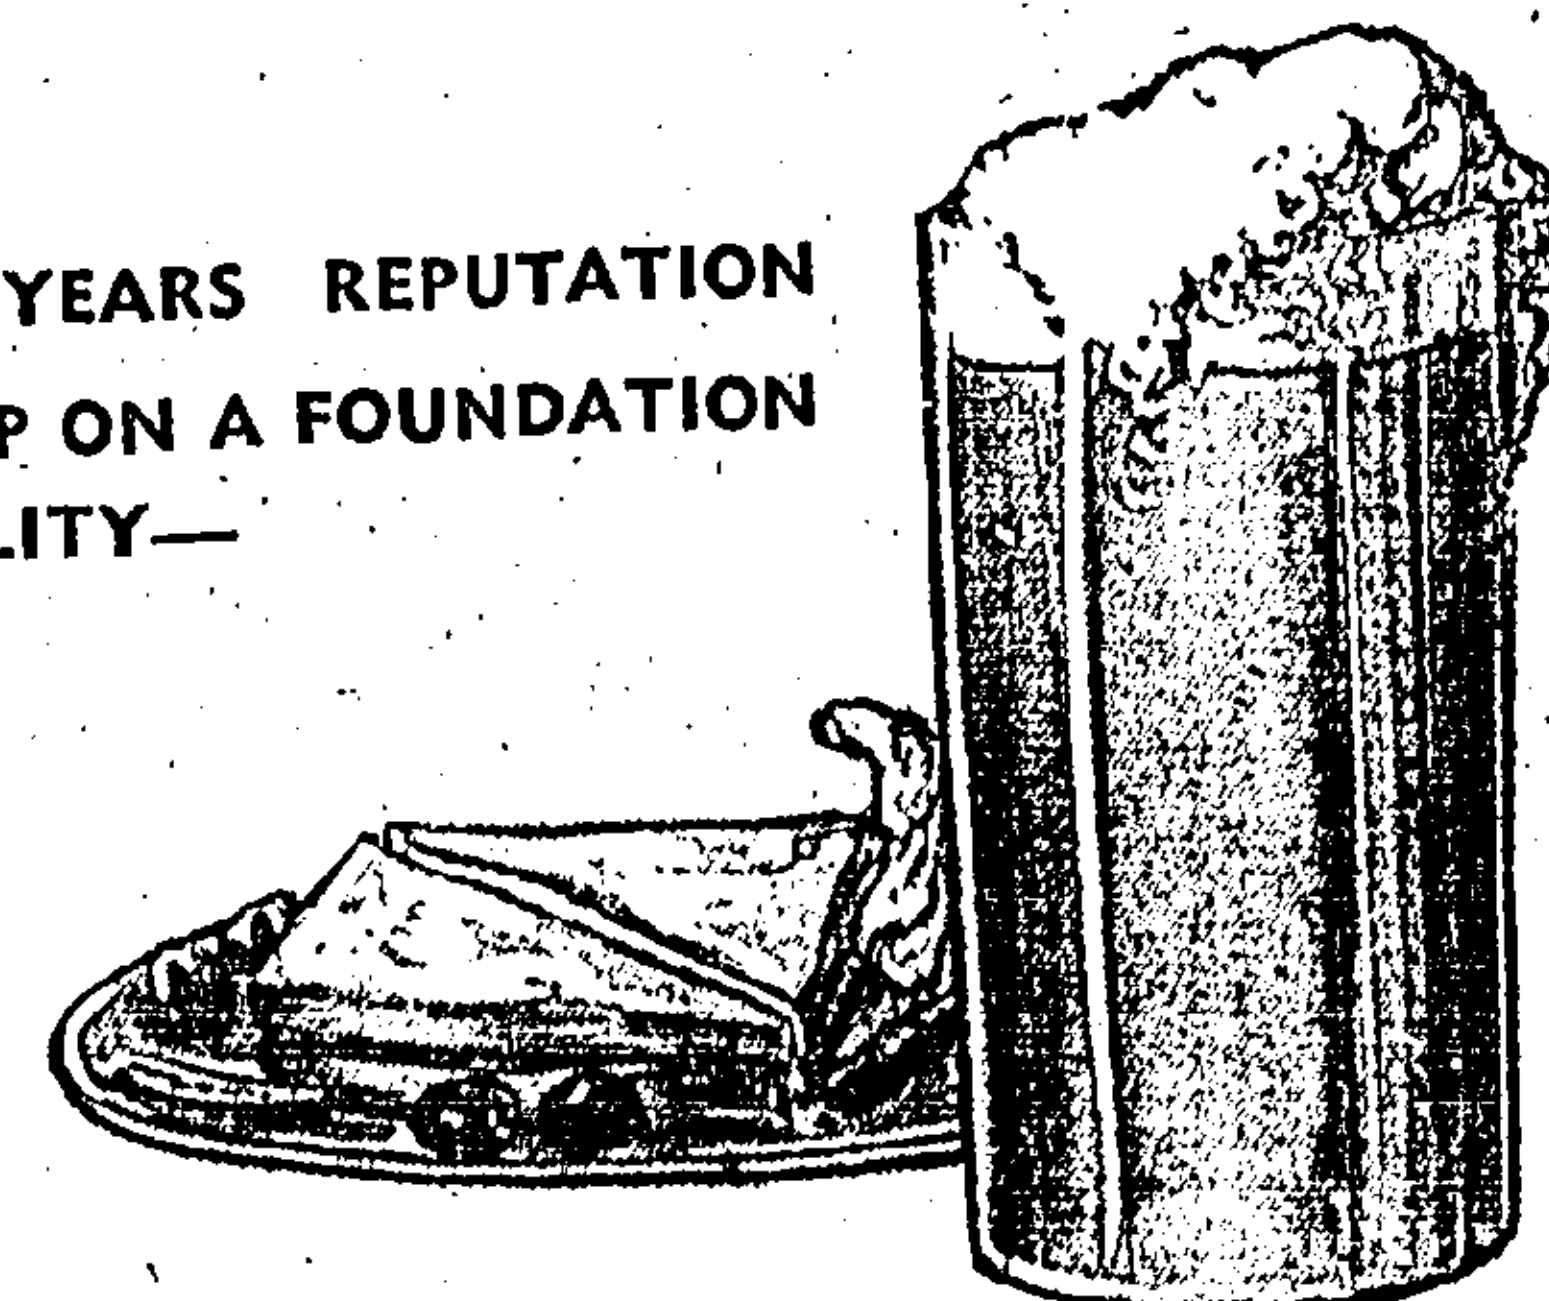

There, seated at a table, dressed in aviator's togs, and pensively sipping a cooling drink, sat Bud Moran.

TALL CRICKET SCORING: BARLING 269, IDDON 204

SUSSEX AND SURREY TOP 500 MARK

DERBY GIVE KENT A SHOCK

PHENOMENAL scoring featured the first class cricket programme during the last three days, several matches producing well over 100 runs apiece.

As a result the honours list is full of batting achievements, including two double centuries and nine other three figure innings. Lancashire lost their 100 per cent record, being forced to rest content with first innings points against Warwick after compiling the huge score of 485 for 8 declared.

The outstanding feature of this innings was Iddon's splendid batting which produced him 201 runs. He remained undefeated until the close of the innings.

Warwick, however, easily held their own against this imposing total, and in scoring 314 and 177 for 3 were never in danger of outright defeat.

BARLING'S BATTING.

C. F. Barling's record of making the highest score of the season, achieved only last week, fell before Barling's magnificent innings against Hampshire.

The Surrey batsman helped himself to 269 and Surrey topped the 500 mark before the innings closed.

But the easy wicket allowed Hampshire to score just as freely, and with Mead and Pothecary contributing centuries, Hampshire in spite of a follow on saved the game with ease.

Sussex returned to the form displayed in the first two matches of the season when they outplayed Gloucester to win by an innings.

KENT SURPRISED.

Derby surprised Kent by administering an eight wickets defeat. Scoring was comparatively low, but it did not prevent Leslie Ames chalking up his first century since returning from Australia.

But the Derby attack proved too good for the Kent men, and with Mitchell bowling his best to capture 8 for 92 and Copson following this up with 5 for 38, defeat was inevitable.

The West Indies continue to show improvement and added the scalp of the M.C.C. to their belt. Hendley was again prominent with a fine century.

MOST IMPORTANT GOLF SHOT AUSTRALIAN CHAMP SAYS THE DRIVE

Drastic revision of the British Amateur Championship conditions is advocated by Cyril Tolley, the exholder of that title.

He has been in the United States for nearly two years engaged in the insurance business. "I want to see our Championship decided under totally different conditions he told Reuter.

"Personally, I would prefer a qualifying round, and then the matches over 36 holes.

"That, I feel sure, would improve the standard of golf.

"An 18 holes game is not an adequate test. There have been occasions when a first class golfer made one mistake early, and he has not had the opportunity to retrieve it.

"Such matches as I suggest would be better guides to international team selection.

"Our present scheme is like a first class lawn tennis player having a one set match at Wimbledon.

"I am totally opposed to the present form of play.

"I will compete in the Amateur Championship at St. Andrews, but I would anticipate participation there with much greater enthusiasm if the championship were to be played on the lines in operation in the United States.

ARMY BOXING TITLES

Shanghai Honours Shared by E. Lanes & Argylls

SPECTATORS SEE SPIRITED SCRAPS

Six Shanghai Area Open Individual Boxing Championships of the British Forces ranging from bantam to light-heavy weights, were decided at the Union Jack Club last week before a large crowd of spectators.

A fine exhibition of boxing was staged by some of the finalists, with Drum-Major Quilter of the East Lancs, who won the light-weight crown, showing the best form of the evening. Out of the six champions, representatives of the 2nd Battalion, East Lancashire Regiment, and the East Lancashire Regiment, and the other two by the Argyll leather pushers.

MCPHAIL IN FORM.

Most of the boys showed up well yesterday with Pte. McPhail, a tiny doing double duty. McPhail had to meet two opponents in one evening. In the opening bout he defeated Pte. Kilburn by showing a better knowledge of the game and pushing his left into his opponent's face time and again. His opponent proved to be a slugger, but could not get at the fast moving McPhail.

By virtue of his victory over Kilburn in the semi-final, McPhail qualified to meet Pte. McCormack of the Argylls for the bantam weight title in the last bout of the evening. After about 1½ hours rest, McPhail went into the ring again and although facing a fast opponent, outclassed him, using some neat right and left hooks and doing some clever dodging.

In the featherweight final, after being pressed in the opening round, Bds. Duff of the East Lancs beat L. Cpl. Collier, also of the East Lancs. Both boys went at each other hammer and tong. Collier used a left jab to advantage in the opening round. The second canto proved to be very even with neither doing much hitting.

In the last, Duff went all out and with rights and lefts to the head gained the necessary points for a win.

QUILTER WINS.

Drum-Major Quilter of the East Lancs, former Boy and Army Champion, proved to be much too good for L. Cpl. Smith, East Lancs, in the lightweight class. Quilter showed an excellent knowledge of the finer points of the game and although Smith put up a great front, he could not do much with the exception of keeping on the defensive.

Using a beautiful "one-two," Quilter cut open Smith's mouth in the second round and punished his opponent badly with a two-fisted attack. In the third, the former champion slacked down a little and gave a fine performance of footwork and dodging.

The welterweight tussle proved to be a "Mut and Jeff" affair, with "Lanky" Pte. Mason of the East Lancs defeating Pte. Gallagher of the Argylls. A great deal of slugging and in-fighting was seen in this event, with Mason scoring more often by virtue of his reach and also keeping cooler than Gallagher, who tried time and again to rush his opponents off his feet, only to run into a barrage

The Jewish Recs. Rowing Club and the Russian Tennis Club are entering the league competition for the first time, while the Nagai Wata Kalsha tennis club, winners of the second division last year, will compete for the senior honours this summer.

BORDERERS TO PLAY ARTILLERY FOR RUNNERS-UP POSITION

SPORTING GESTURE BY THE S.W.B.

(By "Veritas")

As a result of a sporting gesture on the part of the South Wales Borderers, it is probable that a replay for the Runners-up position of Division 1 of the Football League will take place this week end between the S.W.B. and the Royal Artillery.

The Borderers finished up on level peggings with the Artillery, but enjoyed a superior goal average.

Their position was, however, made possible, by the awarding of four points from their match with the Police, who were unable to play the return fixture.

The Borderers have offered to meet the Artillery on Saturday in a play off match, and for this, I understand, they have obtained the permission of the Football Association. The Gunners have accepted the offer.

CLASH WITH CHARITY GAME.

There is, however, one fly in the ointment. The fixture clashes with the charity game between the Combined Services and Chinese, arranged for last week, and forced to be held over to this Saturday.

The best part of the original Combined Services team is composed of Borderers and R.A. Combey, Allen, Pardoe and Seal of the Gunners having been chosen, and Mullane and Podmore of the Borderers.

At the moment there appears to be a little difficulty regarding the time of kick off for the two matches, and it may mean one of the two games being played on Sunday.

If, however, both are played on Saturday, it will mean a complete re-arrangement of the Services eleven to oppose the Chinese. The team will have to be composed of Lincoln and Navy representatives.

The Artillery have already decided on their team to meet the Borderers, and it is the strongest they can turn out at the moment.

Allen is still in hospital, but his deputy will be Wroe. The eleven is:

Combey; Wroe and Green-shields; Rodgers, Pardoe and Harris; Wood; Gough, Bryant, McDonald and Seal.

A CLOSE FINISH.

Ferguson Wins Bowls

Singles Title.

TWO-SHOT VICTORY.

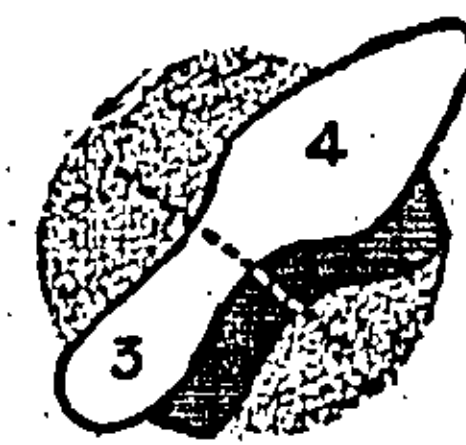

By the narrow margin of two shots T. Ferguson of the Kowloon Cricket Club eliminated C. E. Marques of the Club de Recreio in the open lawn bowls singles championship on the Kowloon B.C.C. green yesterday afternoon.

Ferguson was playing better bowls than his opponent during the first half of the game and at the 13th head had established a commanding lead of 20 shots to 10. However, he had much difficulty in securing the single point for victory and allowed his opponent to score on the next seven heads before he qualified to meet A. E. Coates of the Craigengower C.C. in the second round, winning by 21 shots to 10.

On another rink J. S. Logan and J. Macdonald of the Kowloon Bowling Green played a very one-sided game with the former running out winner by 21 shots to eight.

W. V. Field of the Craigengower C.C. and J. G. Ozorio, the Club de Recreio player were engaged in another somewhat one-sided game with the Happy Valley representative entering the next round by winning 22-10.

BIG GAME FISHING

COL. MACPHERSON'S ADDRESS TO ROTARY

Hongkong Rotarians were favoured with a wealth of first-hand information regarding big game fishing, at their tiffin at Gloucester Building yesterday, when an address on "Fish" was given by Lieut. Col. E. R. Macpherson, who expressed the hope that a club for big game fishing would be formed in the Colony at an early date.

Hon. Mr. S. W. Ts'o presided, and the following new members were welcomed.—Messrs. S. H. Ross, A. E. Bates, H. M. Siu and Dr. W. B. A. Moore.

Guests present included Rotarian J. M. Chalot, of Canton, and Rotarian D. C. Howland, of Calgary, Canada, who is Rotary Secretary for Eastern Asia.

Lieut. Col. Macpherson said.—I would like to say how much I appreciate the privilege of being allowed to talk to you to-day on a subject like this. I feel it is a great honour and I will say that I do admire your courage in asking a fisherman to talk to you—(laughter), and especially a Scots one.

There is one thing a fisherman has to be careful about, and that is not to touch on weights. May I point out that King David issued one of the most profound warnings against all fishermen, for it is written in the 62nd Psalm, "The children of men are deceitful upon the weights." (Laughter). So I will spare your feelings and shun any reference to weights, and will make my appeal to all honest fishermen.

Hunter and Hunted.

In the wide expanses of the romantic ocean to-day we find two things going on continually—one lot of fish are always being chased and others are the chasers. It is really very much like the human life. So fish, you will find, are divided into two broad kinds, the dromedary fish and the pelagic, the latter being the big game fish such as the tunny. I have tried to find out from earlier accounts when big game fishing was developed or explored, and subject to correction of course I should say that there was no serious big game fishing earlier than 1886 although at this date Blue Fin tunny were caught off Santa Catalina, with hand lines. Much interest centres round tunny fishing and we now catch them in the North Sea. The hand line was used up to 1900, and in the early years of the present century George Farnsworth invented a most ingenious method of catching them. His invention was the jumping kite, which was attached to the trace, and he manipulated the rod so that the trace skimmed along the water. This attracted any fish within 500 yards, and they rushed at it. The line to which the kite was attached had to be a very fine one.

The biggest fish ever caught with a hand line was one of 261 pounds in 1909. In the early years of the century we find a great improvement in the technique of fishing in the development of rods of stronger construction.

The Cornish Pilchard.

May I digress for a new moment and discuss the many curious things we find in the ocean regarding fish. I carried out some interesting observations on a humble fish called the Cornish pilchard. This fish breeds in the fjords of Norway then disappears. It re-appears off the coast of Cornwall, and nowhere else in the world. It is caught by the Cornishmen, pressed, the oil is taken out and transformed into various products such as a fine oil for delicate machinery and cod liver oil. The pressed fish are sent to Italy, where they are the staple dish of the Italian workmen. Why fish do these things I do not know, but perhaps in explanation of this migration I might mention the plankton theory. The sea is full of minute organisms both animal and vegetable, and it is on these that fish thrive. My theory is that possibly these minute organisms give up oxygen more readily than water. What causes these plankton streams the scientists are now endeavouring to ascertain.

The sea I suppose is the hardest school in the world. It is the life of the hunter and the hunted all the time. You have probably seen a porpoise jumping in the water as you have stood on the deck of a steamer. The real reason for that is that their bodies are covered with lice and the only method they have of scratching themselves is jumping into the waves of ships—they cannot rub themselves against each other as they have not developed that technique. (Laughter). They leap out of the water and come down with a frightful smack and get rid of a number in that way. The porpoise is being continually attacked by smaller life and pursued by larger game.

The funny part about all this is that it was not until really after the War that we have been able to develop the technique of big game fishing. When I fished off the coast of South California and the delightful Bahamas, our gear compared with that of to-day was childish.

Here Col. Macpherson described the reel invention of Major Pomeroy, who used a brake similar to that in a Ford car inside the reel. That, he said, was the first real advance made.

It then became necessary, he continued, to strengthen up the lines. We fished in the early days with a line with a breaking strain of 30 pounds, and 16 ounce rods, and the result was that we simply couldn't hold the fish.

First Tunny Caught.

In 1922 a tunny appeared off the British coast at Scarborough. I could hardly believe it was a new thing, my idea being that they were always there but had not been observed before. Their object was get in close and get at the herrings when they were netted. This species was identified as the Thunnus thynnus or Blue fin tunny; but the first fish was not landed until 1930 by Mr. Mitchell Henry at Scarborough. Since 1930 the development has been phenomenal.

My old haunts at California were a cradle of big game fishing.

In the sea to-day there are thousands of fish but they all fall under two main headings, herrings and mackerel. The herring tribe includes tarpons and barracudas, and the mackerel family include tunny and albacore. The width of a sporting fish like the tunny is always measured by the depth from the dorsal fin to the ventral fin, and the next measurement is made in front of the tail. The best ratio in the mackerel type is 6 to 1 while in the herring there is only a ratio of 2½ to 1. Therefore the mackerel class have the better fighting characteristics. They are a perfect stream lined fish, and it is the shape of the fish that has given a valuable clue to people who have studied aerodynamics.

Speed of 55 Miles An Hour.

The herring has no method of housing its fins when in motion and it is here that the mackerel holds a distinct advantage. It has a greater speed and the tunny, which is of this class, is the fastest fish afloat and can attain a speed of 55 m.p.h. As soon as it is well under way it takes in its large fins and thus has a perfect stream line. Projecting from the side of the tail is a small fin, a sort of a flange, and that idea has been copied in the tails of the aeroplane and airship. In sail-fish the two long pelvic and dorsal fins are received into a groove, but in the tunny the second dorsal and the anal fin are rigidly fixed to prevent the body being twisted round by a sudden spurt. In addition the sail, sword and tunny fish have additional flanges projecting from the base of the fin rays. All these characteristics make the tunny able to offer such a fight when you try to catch him. Referring to marlin, Col. Macpherson said they were not so well stream lined and did not offer so much fight, but were nevertheless a good big game fish. The record catch was one of 996 pounds.

Again referring to the tunny, Col. Macpherson said it took several hours to land a tunny. "The first thing we have to do is to get out in a boat with our machinery to where the tunny are. They will be on the surface trying to get at the herrings that have been caught by the fishing fleets. We then put over our line. No breaks are used as in the Pomeroy days. The first rush is at 55 miles an hour and the fisherman sits on a revolving stool in the boat. If the fisherman is in an ordinary row boat he gets (Continued on Page 15.)

towed all over the place. Col. Peel, a great big game fisherman, one day finished 17 miles from Scarborough last year one unfortunate fisherman was dragged to his death. He was not using a quick release harness and was dragged overboard in a flash and was not seen again.

Breaking Strain of 108 Pounds. Col. Macpherson explained the structure of a big game rod he had with him, and pointed out that the hooks which were used were often hand forged and this had brought about a revival of a very old industry in England. The strain on the line he exhibited was 1,000 feet long and the breaking strain was 108 pounds. Parts of it were doubled and the breaking strain there was over 200 pounds. The line was made of the finest Russian flax.

"It is not always the biggest fish which give the best run," he said. "The biggest fish was caught in 48 minutes, but a fish of 400 pounds has been caught only after four hours. Generally, if you have anything over 300 pounds you are in for three hours' work at least. For big game fishing you have to be fit—as fit as if you intended playing a game of rugby and one game of soccer in one afternoon, otherwise you could not stand the strain. You have to fight the fish from the very beginning, and in this respect the tunny is unlike the shark, which you can land very easily. The shark is generally poor sport."

Col. Macpherson then explained the peculiar method the tunny has of breathing, and how after the first run of sometimes over an hour he comes to the surface and then goes down again for the second run. This continues in many instances for well over three hours. He continued:

Sport in Hongkong. And now what about Hongkong? When I came out here I heard rumours about fish, and as a result of many interviews, including various officials of the Chinese Maritime Customs, the Junk Inspector of the Harbour Board, etc., it has been definitely established that tunny have been caught every year in the nets of the fishing fleets around Hongkong.

Mr. Hillyer (the Junk Inspector) himself saw and measured a tunny seven feet long which was brought into Shaikwan last June. The fish had completely destroyed $300 worth of nets and probably weighed some 300 pounds. In all, some ten tunny were recorded as having been landed in Hongkong last May and June, and fetched over $70 each.

I am going to try my humble best to see what can be done in Hongkong, and if there are any here interested I would like to hear from them and I might be able to form a tunny club eventually in Hongkong. Such a thing has many advantages, and is an added attraction to a place. Of course you have to look out for the inevitable typhoons.

Apparently the principal fishing fleets operate from Aberdeen, Cheung Chau, Taiipo and Shaikwan, and fish the waters within seven to ten miles of their respective ports. The best fishing ground of the lot however lies partly outside the British waters, namely in a zone five miles south of Mira Point, east to Medoa Island, and it is here that most of the tunny are caught. The tunny appear to be blue fin, although yellow fin may also exist.

So far no direct evidence exists that Allison's tunny have been caught, despite the fact that a guide book alleges that a 140 pound Allison's tunny was landed on rod and line in Hongkong some years ago. This was probably landed at Gap Rock. The Allison's tunny is very similar to the ordinary tunny, and is a very sporting fish, being more difficult to land.

Col. Macpherson in conclusion thanked the Rotarians for the opportunity afforded him of addressing them.

Vote of Thanks.

He was thanked on the motion of Rotarian A. L. Shields, who said:—I much appreciate the opportunity given me of thanking Col. Macpherson for his very interesting address. I don't know how many of you have tried sea fishing in Hongkong, but a number of years ago we started the Hongkong Angling Association here with a burst of enthusiasm to put sea fishing on the map. Mr. S. Hornell, brother of our late president, was secretary, and he got out a number of charts on which were to be entered particulars of the catch, etc., so that some curves could be got out as to when and where fish were most likely to be found. None of those charts was ever filled out, as fish were caught so seldom and no statistics could be drawn up. I may say that I was president of the Angling Association, but in spite of my exalted position nothing happened at the end of my line. (Laughter).

He recalled that two fish of about 19½ and 15 pounds respectively had been caught in Aberdeen Channel, while three fish resembled

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

At the King's Theatre to-day you will have a further opportunity of seeing the Calcutta picture, "Jack the Boy". This is an excellent comedy with Jack Hulbert at his best. The story, written by Jack Hulbert and Douglas Furber, concerns the ambitions of Jack Brown, son of a police chief who, determined to show that he can brighten the force, joins up as a constable and sets himself to capture a gang of "amash and gral" raiders.

He does so but not before he and Mrs. Bobday, proprietress of the Cafe Loch Lomond and possessing a real "Scottish" accent (Gleidy Court), treat us to some of the funniest incidents seen in a comedy. Jack also does some delightful singing and dancing.

Winifred Shawter, Francis Lister and Peter Gathorne are also in the cast.

"Red Dust"

The peculiar odour of boiling sap from rubber trees recently brought curious citizens in nearby districts to the high fence surrounding the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer "back lot". Those who had the ambition to climb on boxes and peep over were startled to see a complete jungle rubber factory in operation.

This elaborate installation was made to provide authentic scenes for "Red Dust", a picture of life on rubber plantations, which features Clark Gable and Jean Harlow. The production is now at the Queen's Theatre.

A unique film of exploration and high adventure in far away lands is showing at the Central Theatre to-day. It represents the first experiment of its kind, combining the expeditions and thrilling exploits of six celebrated explorers.

Explorers represented in the picture are James L. Clark, vice-Director of The American Museum of Natural History, with motion pictures of Africa; Harold McCracken and his films of his Siberian-Arctic Expeditions; Gene Lamb and his scenes of China and Tibet; Dr. Laurence M. Gould and his story of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition; Lt. Commander J.R. Southern and his adventures in the Southern Seas; and Harold Noice with his spectacular scenes of the headwaters of the Amazon in Brazil.

It is the best film of its kind presented to the Hongkong public, and as each and every explorer is a leading scientific institution or a government in his undertakings, the authenticity of every scene and episode is beyond question.

"A Passport To Hell"

Charmingly youthful, daintily feminine are the modes designed and created for Elissa Landi in "A Passport To Hell", coming to the King's Theatre.

The range in type from negligees to stunning formal. The sports clothes are especially attractive, and all forgotten is the theory that in order to be correct they must be masculine in inspiration. There is a sport costume of white lace and a full bifurcated skirt which is the essence of femininity.

A negligee of royal blue carmen's crepe is trimmed in red, white and blue Strass beads. A street costume is of white crepe Roman with royal blue soufflé blouse and a formal of white alligator satin which boasts a bolero of bouquet sequins boasts of a split skirt with a light train. It is one of the most attractive gowns of the collection.

Playing opposite the star are Paul Lukas and Alexander Kirkland. In the cast are such other favourites as Warner Cloud, Yola D'Avril, Donald Crisp and Earle Foxe.

"Madame Butterfly" The treasured romance of the theatre, "Madame Butterfly" turned into a motion picture by Marlon Gering and a cast headed by Sylvia Sydney, Cary Grant and Charlie Ruggles, has been booked for the Queen's Theatre to open to-morrow.

The story by John Luther Long and the play by David Belasco have both been brought up to date in the process of filming. B.P. Schulberg, who produced the picture for Paramount, and Gering, who directed, nevertheless took pains to retain the spirit of the original.

Sylvia Sydney, her dark eyes and eyebrows slanted, her hair lacquered, her figure draped in colourful oriental costumes, plays the role of Cho-Cho-San, the demure Japanese maiden wooed by the young American naval officer stationed in the city in which she lives. Cary Grant, husky, virile Englishman who is truthfully Hollywood's path to stardom, plays the latter role.

ADDRESS TO 600
CHILDREN

THIS MORNING'S SERVICE

Nearly 600 school children, and many adults, were present in St.
John's Cathedral this morning, when Empire Day was fittingly commemorated. Those present included Mr. N. L. Smith, Director of Education, and Mr. A. R. Sutherland, Inspector of Schools.

The service was conducted by the Rev. N. V. Halward, while the Rev. A. D. Stewart preached an inspiring sermon. The Lesson was read by the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave.
The service concluded with the singing of the National Anthem.

Rev. Stewart spoke of sacrifices for one's country, to die for it, live for it, or to change an enemy into a friend. He referred to Wat Yuen, a famous official in the state of Chou, some 2,000 years ago, who died for his country and whose death is being celebrated this coming Sunday. He also referred to Queen Victoria, Florence Nightingale and Nurse Cavell and re-capitulated the story of the good Samaritan. If nations could only turn their enemies to be their friends, he said, there would be no need for guns and fortifications.

The preacher in speaking of the Empire, stressed the significance of Empire Day.

Schools represented were:—
Penk School, Kowloon Junior School, St. Stephen's Girls' College, Yau-mat School, Queek's College, Ellis Kadorie Indian School, Gap Road School, Garrison School, Wantai School, Diocesan Girls' School, Diocesan Boys' School, Central British School and Quarry Bay School.

A party of Girl Guides and Wolf
Cubs attended the service in uniform, and although many Boy Scouts were present with their respective schools, they were not officially represented.

CATHOLIC SERVICE.

A service for Catholic schoolchildren was held at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Caine Road, this morning.

The musical side of the service was supplemented by the Band of the St. Lewis Industrial School.
Children from the Convents led in the singing. At the close the whole congregation joined in the singing of the National Anthem.

The following were represented:
Garrison School (Boys), Garrison School (Girls), St. Joseph's College, La Salle College, W. Yau College, St. Louis Industrial School, Sacred Heart College,
Doksin English School, Italian Convent, French Convent, St.

A LIGHTHOUSE TRAGEDY

2 LIVES LOST IN VAIN EFFORT

MOTHER AND SON WITH DEAD

Sydney (Nova Scotia).
The climax of a dramatic story was reached when the Canadian ice-breaker Montcalm sent out a wireless message stating that she had arrived off the lonely Flit Island lighthouse and taken off the lighthouse-keeper and the body of his drowned son for burial on the mainland.

For five days the folk on the isolated lighthouse had been trying to communicate with watchers on the mainland, but the pack ice prevented any assistance by boat.
Then an aeroplane dropped a message asking that two red flashes should be signalled in the case of death or need for urgent assistance.

The two red flashes came.
Immediately the Montcalm, under special Government orders, rushed to the rescue from Sydney and after breaking through a mile of ice, found the keeper of the lighthouse with the body of his son. The father had rescued one son from the floating ice but was unable to save the other.

During the funeral service on the mainland the eldest son and the keeper's wife will keep the light going.—Reuter.
